Fifty years of leadership

The Arts in North Carolina and COVID-19

Even though participation in the arts has been greatly disrupted by the coronavirus pandemic, and artists and arts organizations severely impacted, our network across North Carolina is responding in a myriad of creative ways that demonstrate the power of the arts to connect, cope, and heal. We at the North Carolina Arts Council want to do our part to call attention to important action items and resources that will benefit the state's arts industry. For further information visit (<https://www.ncarts.org/arts-north-carolina-and-covid-19>).

North Carolina Artist Relief Fund
Location: North Carolina

This fund has been created to support creative individuals who have been financially impacted by gig cancellations due to the outbreak of COVID-19. Artists and arts presenters in North Carolina can apply for emergency funding. Apply at this link (<https://vaeraleigh.org/artist-relief-fund>).

COVID-19 and the arts in South Carolina

As with the rest of state government, the South Carolina Arts Commission remains open and serving our constituents. Our team continues working diligently to respond to your needs. During this time, the best way to reach us is via email. We will resume in-person business as soon as state/local authorities and public health experts deem it safe to do so. For further info visit (<https://www.southcarolinaarts.com/covid-19-response/>).

The National Endowment for the Arts is open for business. Our staff, while working remotely for the next several weeks, is available to you via phone or email, as usual. We look forward to receiving and reviewing our next round of grant applications in the coming weeks. We're also evaluating our grant application deadlines and may adjust them to help applicants dealing with the effects of COVID-19.

We know that there are more than five million Americans who make their livelihoods in the broader arts and cultural sector across the country and are potentially at risk. We also know that the arts provide comfort, resilience, wisdom, and the means for self-expression and connection, perhaps even more so during challenging times such as these. We have FAQs and relief resources and opportunities related to COVID-19 available on our website at (<https://www.arts.gov/covid-19-resources-for-artists-and-arts-organizations>), and we will continue to update these sections with new information as it becomes available.

Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

Paying Tribute to Our Queen

Being Queen of the Carolina Arts' Facebook Page isn't just a hollow award of so called bragging rights. Good thing, as our current Queen, Kristi Ryba of Charleston, SC, doesn't brag about her accomplishments. Most of the time I learn about her accomplishments second hand. But, being our Queen comes with perks - not the kind you can take to the bank, but the kind others wished they had use of for sure.

And, let me remind some of how she got that crown. A work by Ryba was featured on our July 2017 cover of Carolina Arts. It received 7,524 views during that month - thousands more than our previous Queen, Wan Marsh of Charlotte, NC, who received several thousands more views than any other cover in our history. We'll never forget our first Queen.

Ryba's cover wasn't our most popular cover, several months later, our Nov. 2017 cover received 9,223 views that month, but the cover featured a group of works by a group of Seagrove, NC, potters - both men and women potters. We didn't want Kings and Queens battling to try and find out whose work was the most popular - which would be impossible to find out anyway - so we stuck with individual works by an artist who receives the most works to become Queen or King.

There have been a few covers that looked like they would put up a challenge, but they faded in a week or so. So for now, Kristi Ryba is our Queen.

So what is this all about? Well, on Page 10, we're running a full page ad promoting the first print Ryba is offering of one of her works, much like the work that was on our cover. If you got the bucks, you can own the original, but if not, she has two opportunities for less expensive ownership.

I'm giving you a warning that now is the time to start collecting works by this rising art star. Ryba recently won a Southern Prize and State Fellowship award from South Arts based in Atlanta, GA, was one of the top awards at ArtFields in Lake City, SC, and her work has been featured in the 701 CCA Biennial in Columbia, SC.

Strike now before her works rise above your pay grade. Long live our Queen!

Hard Questions

Every month I get asked some hard question that are mostly answered with hard answers.

Like speaking of covers, I get asked, "Why that work?" meaning why not my work or work they like. I usually tell them it's complicated, having to do with: exhibits, timing, covering regions, etc., but mostly we have to pick from works presented to us each month - meeting all those factors. If it was just up to me, you'd be seeing a lot of abstract works on our cover.

People, mostly artists, ask why they don't see more articles from the areas they live? First off, those galleries have to send us notice of those exhibits and send them on time. We hear a lot from artists in Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, Columbia, Beaufort, Greensboro, Rock Hill, all over the Carolinas. We also hear from artists in Savannah and Augusta, which don't seem to understand the meaning of our name - Carolina Arts. The worst is explaining to an artist who thought the gallery presenting their exhibit was sending us info, but they didn't.

Artists also ask us a lot why we didn't include the info they sent us about a reception; about bringing some new work to a

Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Manning Williams

The Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, is presenting Manning Williams: Reinventing Narrative Painting, on view in the Museum's Gallery 8, through Apr. 18, 2021.

Williams's paintings are rooted in the history, traditions, and terrain of the South Carolina Lowcountry. A Charleston native and lifelong resident, Williams (American, 1939-2012) earned degrees from the College of Charleston and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. His highly personal approach to realist painting emphasized storytelling and was fueled by an interest in portraying subjects that he found on the periphery of the city and along the barrier islands. Western subjects also commanded Williams's attention, and during the later years of his career his concern with narrative was expressed in a more abstract style. Reinventing Narrative Painting features thirty paintings from Williams's prolific career that spanned more than forty years.

Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, Offers Photographs From Robert Marks Collection

The Gibbes Museum of Art, in Charleston, SC, home to one of the foremost collections of American art, will celebrate the art and storytelling power of film and photography with the launch of an all-new, in-person film series, "Gibbes Film in Focus", and a virtual lecture series, "Depth of Field: Perspectives on 20th Century Photography". Launching in February 2021, both programs will coincide with the Gibbes' exhibition, In Body and Soul: The Figure in Modernist Photography, on display in the Museum's Gallery 9, through Apr. 18, 2021.

"We are thrilled to share the illustrious mediums of film and photography with our community," says Angela Mack, executive director of the Gibbes Museum of Art. "The Gibbes always strives to inspire and engage our audiences in new ways as well as provide opportunities to learn, discover and experience new art and artists."

"Hands of Georgia O'Keeffe, no. 26", 1919, by Alfred Stieglitz (American, 1864-1946). Gelatin silver print, Gift of Robert W. Marks; 1974.012.0130

Drawn from the Robert Marks Collection, this exhibition features thirty photographs by renowned 20th century photographers. From Alfred Stieglitz's intimate composite portraits of Georgia O'Keeffe to Lewis Hines's depictions of American laborers, modernist-era photographers radically shifted how the human body was captured on film and for what purpose. Employing a variety of techniques from cropping and zooming, to distortion and framing, photographers explored the human figure for social, performative, voyeuristic, and documentary purposes. Highlights include the work of Stieglitz, Hine, Berenice Abbott, Margaret Bourke-White, George Platt Lynes and László Moholy-Nagy.

The exhibition is made possible by a substantial collection of photographs given to the Gibbes in 1974 by Charleston native, Robert Marks (1907-1993). The Robert Marks Collection, 160 photographs strong, is the backbone of the Gibbes photography collection.

Perhaps nearly as intriguing as the collection of photographs, is the collector himself—born and raised in Charleston, Marks was considered exceptionally bright but unmanageable by his instructors at Porter-Gaud Military Academy. Conforming to traditional academic settings remained a problem for him at Yale where he enrolled as a freshman but dropped out before his sophomore year. A year later he was asked to leave the College of Charleston as well. Though he rarely attended classes, he regularly contributed to the campus and local newspapers.

Recognizing writing was his passion,

"Icarus", 1931, by Lewis W. Hine (American, 1874-1940). Gelatin silver print; Gift of Robert W. Marks; 1974.012.0037

Marks moved to New York in his twenties where he established a prolific career as a freelance writer for the nation's top newspapers and magazines including Esquire, The New York Times, and The Saturday Evening Post among many others. His journalistic pursuits gained him insider access to the latest cultural events in the world of art, music, and theater. He mingled among the most select artistic circles of mid-century New York. He traveled extensively and interviewed celebrities including many Hollywood starlets such as Sophia Loren and Audrey Hepburn.

Throughout his career Marks' interests and writings ranged widely from the arts to mathematics to philosophy. In 1958 he published his first novel The Horizontal Hour that was featured very briefly on The New York Times Best Seller list. He followed this with The Story of Hypnotism and several books with his good friend, the renowned designer and futurist inventor Buckminster Fuller. Despite his long and prolific career in the publishing industry, Marks made his most memorable and financially successful splash as an author late in life with a series of erotic romance novels set in Charleston and published under a pen name John Colleton. So successful was the series of novels, Marks returned to Charleston in 1973 and remained here for the rest of his life.

"Jimmie Daniels, Singer Currently at Le Ruban Bleu", 1933, by George Platt Lynes (American, 1907-1955). Gelatin silver print. Gift of Mr. Robert W. Marks 1974.012.0102

Many related programs will be offered in conjunction with this exhibition, contact the Gibbes Museum of Art for further details at (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Larson Shindelman

The Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art at the College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, is presenting the exhibition Larson Shindelman: Geolocation, curated by Bryan Granger on view through Mar. 5, 2021.

Geolocation presents two series of works by artist duo Larson Shindelman, Geolocation and #Mobilize. They use publicly accessible geographic data from tweets and track down specific locations where Twitter users were when they posted on social media. Once there, the artists make a photograph from the location, connecting the tweet—stored on a remote server and readable around the globe—and the physical world. This body of work explores the connection between text and images, digital and analog, and private versus public.

Twitter estimates there are over 500 million tweets daily, creating a new level of digital noise. Clive Thompson uses the term ambient awareness to describe this incessant online contact in the New York Times Magazine article, “Brave New World of Digital Intimacy.” According to Thompson, “It is ... very much like being physically near someone and picking up on his mood through the little things he does—body language, sighs, stray comments—out of the corner of your eye.” Their collaborative work is a means for situating this virtual communication in the physical realm. They imagine themselves as virtual flâneurs, ethnographers of the Internet, exploring cities 140 characters at a time through the lives of others.

Nate Larson and Marni Shindelman’s collaborative practice, Larson Shindelman, was established in 2007. They investigate the data tracks we amass through networked communication. Their work ties the invisible to actual sites, anchoring the ephemeral in photographs and immersive video installations.

Larson was born in Indiana and currently resides in Baltimore, MD, where he is on faculty at Maryland Institute College of Art (MICA). He received his MFA from The Ohio State University in 2002. Larson is a Baltimore-based contemporary photographer working with big data, historical research, and community partnerships to create expanded documentary projects. His projects harmonize the insights of abstract datasets with the personal storytelling that comes from one-on-one relationships.

Shindelman was born in Florida and currently resides in Athens, GA, where she is an associate professor of photography at the Lamar Dodd School of Art at the University of Georgia. She received her MFA from the University of Florida in 2002.

All events will be held virtually on the Halsey Institute website at (halsey.cofc.edu/live) unless otherwise noted.

The Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art at the College of Charleston provides a multidisciplinary laboratory for the production, presentation, interpretation, and dissemination of ideas by innovative visual artists from around the world. As a non-collecting museum, we create meaningful interactions between adventurous artists and diverse communities within a context that emphasizes the historical, social, and cultural importance of the art of our time.

Redux Contemporary Art Center in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Mills Brown and Celeste Caldwell

Redux Contemporary Art Center in Charleston, SC, is excited to present Welcome, a two-person exhibition highlighting the work of Washington, DC, based artist Mills Brown and local Charleston artist, Celeste Caldwell. Redux’s two-person exhibitions present the public with an opportunity to examine and engage with the interconnectivity and parallels between the work of two distinct creative practices. The exhibition will be on view from Feb. 12 through Mar. 27, 2021. A reception will be held on Feb. 12, from 5-7pm.

The work showcased in Welcome begins with small moments often set in domestic spaces, among women, and rooted within a Southern tradition. Ornamental painted surfaces and rich, patterned textiles playfully converse, while layered ideas about home, childhood, vulnerability and experiences of womanhood weave connections into a more nuanced conversation. The artists invite viewers into the intimate moments contained in each work, and in turn we ask what it means to feel fully welcomed in a space.

Work by Mills Brown

Through a variety of methods including sewing, embroidery, and painting, Celeste Caldwell considers the reality of a complex female experience. By combining traditionally feminine objects and patterns with symbols of violence and stories of female empowerment, she explores modern femininity in and outside of the home. She depicts home as a stage for vulnerability, a place where she defies it as a child and learns to welcome it as an adult.

Childhood also plays an important role in the work of Mills Brown, as she uses translucent acrylic washes, bright oil pens and collaged photos and paper to reinvent memories from the different places she’s called home. Brown references photos as she unearths her family history, drawing on images and stories of ancestors both familiar and unknown. Influenced by Southern Gothic literature, she counters these personal, familial paintings with portraits and interiors inspired by fictional worlds from classic American mythology. Both artists analyze the idea of home as a place of rooted history, current vulnerability, and future empowerment.

Caldwell is a practicing illustrator and fiber artist in Charleston. She graduated from College of Charleston in 2018 with a double major in Studio Arts and Art History, and a minor in Arts Management. She completed a work-study at Arrowmont School of Arts & Craft in 2019 where she studied fiber col-

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Members of the Goose Creek Artists Guild

The City of North Charleston, SC, will present the 38th Annual Goose Creek Artists Guild Judged Show, featuring works by Guild Members, on view in the Park Circle Gallery, from Feb. 2 - 27, 2021.

The Goose Creek Artists Guild, founded in 1982, will present its 38th Annual Judged Show featuring two-dimensional works in a variety of subjects and media. Comprised of artists from Berkeley, Dorchester, and Charleston counties, guild members from all levels of expertise express their talents in oil, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, drawing, and mixed media.

Ribbons for Best of Show as well as first, second, and third place in multiple categories will be awarded by guest judge Helen K. Beacham. Beacham is an award-winning artist and instructor who works primarily in watercolor. She has studied with Dick Phillips, Brent Funderburk, Milford Zornes, Mira Lehr, and others. Her work is in many private and corporate collections throughout the US, Canada, England, Ireland, Italy, Kuwait, Australia, and elsewhere around the world. She serves as a juror and watercolor workshop instructor in the United States and abroad.

The Goose Creek Artists Guild meets monthly for live demonstrations and business to further its purpose "to bring together a group of artists interested in self-improvement, public recognition, and the promotion of the arts in the community." For more information, contact the Guild Secretary, Pam Smith, at 843/819-6533.

Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Richard Dye

The Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, is pleased to present The Beauty of Sea-Level, in Oils, an exhibition featuring a collection of oil paintings by Richard Dye, on view from Feb. 1 - 28, 2021.

Dye's work often depicts landscapes, seascapes, and wildlife, as well as the effects of light on water and skies. "I want to portray the beauty I see in the world day to day, but often overlook in our busy lives, another chance to admire the gifts around us" he states. Dye has been recognized for his artwork since his childhood days in Oyster Bay, NY. His relationship with coastal South Carolina began in childhood also, as his summer vacations were spent at Folly Beach. He later attended the College of Charleston.

Dye lived in New England and worked in graphic arts and sales. After joining art associations and winning awards, he studied at the NH Institute of Art further developing his fine arts skills and painting in acrylics and oils.

Along with his wife Heidi, Dye moved

Ella Walton Richardson Fine Art in Charleston, SC, Features New Works by Over 30 Artists

Ella Walton Richardson Fine Art in Charleston, SC, will be featuring new works on display by 30 American, Asian and European artists working in a variety of mediums and styles, from Feb. 1 - 28, 2021. Ella Walton Richardson Fine Art has been Charleston's premiere art destination since 2001.

If "art is water for a thirsting soul" a recent quote from the owner Ella Richardson, many of us are parched now. A new painting can transform a room. If you are local, we are happy to safely deliver pieces to your home. If you're not, we can ship on approval or visit the gallery with FaceTime. You can then see the details in a painting, the frame, how it looks in natural light versus halogen light. We can also create images to show you how particular artwork will look on your walls. Whatever direction you are looking to move in, whether additions to your collection or starting off with a clean slate, we are here to assist.

world class artists. It is time for you to enjoy being transported to places of beauty and tranquility.

Mallory Agerton, a Texas-based painter, sent First Snow an 11" x 14" Oil on Linen Panel. The low winter sun casts light and shadow to poetic effect. The Lowcountry's landscape is Chris Snedeker's inspiration. Whether the subject is a sudden bird, the salt marsh or an inviting lane, his work has a sentimental quality, evoking memories of special places. "I paint full-time, developing works that hopefully evoke the deeper qualities of the beauty of our world that we so often take for granted," he said.

Richard Oversmith has been prolific over the last months, creating canvases large (48" x 60") and small (11" x 14") in oil, and many gouaches. In either medium, his energetic brushwork enlivens his subject: sisters on the beach, a sailboat on a lake, or St Michael's Church at night.

Robert Lange Studios in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Paul Cristina

The Robert Lange Studios (RLS) in Charleston, SC, will present Reflex Geography, featuring contemporary paintings and drawings by Paul Cristina, on view from Feb. 5 - 26, 2021. An all day COVID cautious opening will take place on Feb. 5, from 11am-7pm, and is open to the public.

In his first solo show with (RLS), local contemporary artist Paul Cristina, will offer 40 paintings and drawings. Cristina has created multiple works exemplifying his unique style within the abstract genre, chronicling his development and evolution as an artist into new territory.

For two years the artist has been building new idiomatic expressions with painting.

Cristina says, "The most recent paintings that serve as the foundation and main focus of this new work are a series of large oil on canvas abstract paintings. The direction of this new work gradually developed over the past two years while I was attempting to explore a new aesthetic territory within my own work."

Gallery owner and artist, Robert Lange says of this new body of work, "There is an amazing thing that happens when you look at Paul's paintings - you get lost. The layers upon layers of colors and ideas seem to draw you in and the visual journey you experience is truly an adventure."

One such oil painting on canvas from the show titled Memory Graphs is 36-inches by 48-inches. This piece from afar appears to be a color study of abstract shapes but as you approach, layers and shadows are revealed to create folds. Cristina describes the process of finding these works, "How do I get to a place with my art that feels more honest, natural and visceral that would allow the entry into new levels of intensity and depth, while simultaneously eliminating anything unnecessary that stands in the way of this progress? Through trial and error and experimentation solutions gradually revealed themselves."

Work by Paul Cristina

When stepping back to look at the work as a whole, Cristina decided upon the title Reflex Geography, referring to both the act of creation and also the study of this creation. He said of the show, "The geography can often be simply determined by the type of information received from the memory/sensory/intuition messaging system. The material received produces the reflex. The reflex determines the geography: A reflex (often unconscious and involuntary) arrives and presents itself, then is put into the geography (form of one's choosing: the "temporal database"), which allows the idea/impulse to thrive and develop and take shape into what we see as the artist's work. In conclusion: The reflex geography is the documentation of the Temporal Database."

Cristina recently selected just 25 from well over 100 sumi ink studies on yupo paper to incorporate into this body of new work. Each study is very personal for the artist in both selection and execution. He says about creating the ink drawings, "It was about killing old ideas while discovering new ones along the way. To put it simply: I wanted something new and surprising. I needed a new world of challenges and new territories to explore. I wanted something unfamiliar and alien that I had never seen myself do before - and ultimately, I wanted something unpredictable and unexpected."

After the success of numerous bodies of work in the past, Cristina's desire to explore has become foremost in his process. Cristina says, "I began to grow somewhat dissatisfied with most of my work throughout 2017-2018 and desperately felt the need to explore new ground within my thought process, hoping that it would eventually evolve into an entirely new phase of creative challenges for my future work. Throughout 2019 I began focusing in on the primary aspects of my work that I found to be the most problematic or unresolved and was gradually able to determine the proper course of action that would pave the way for some new developments to take place."

The newness of this body of work for the artist will translate as a new viewing experience for visitors as well.

Robert Lange Studios is a gallery space run by artist and gallery owners Megan and Robert Lange. As such, it is dedicated to the development of an on-going dialogue between artists from a diverse range of artistic disciplines at differing levels of their careers.

Robert Lange Studios has been voted Best Art Gallery in Charleston four years by the Charleston City Paper and Nathan gallery; or just that they finished a work? I have to explain to them that it is not an exhibit, it's not what we do. They seem to have no idea how much of that kind of info we'd be buried under each month and how boring it would be to readers. We're not a newsletter for artists.

One of the hardest questions I get asked comes from advertisers who want to know why we keep including coverage of areas we don't get support from? I keep telling them we are not a - you pay, you play, publication and that we really appreciate their support, but we feel covering all makes us a better, more interesting publication and more attractive to readers. We'd love more support, but we don't require it to participate. That's good - right?

Coastal Discovery Museum on Hilton Head Island, SC, Features Works by SC Women Artists

The Coastal Discovery Museum on Hilton Head Island, SC, is presenting Treasures of Our Coastal State, a juried & curated fine art exhibition, featuring works by members of the South Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Women Artists, through Feb. 28, 2021.

This distinguished group of artists unveil our coastal state through their use of composition, texture and hue. Whether captured through the lens or created on canvas, these works embrace the diversity and beauty of the vistas and seas in which we live. Artwork will be on exhibit and available for purchase. Additionally, selected artists will be at the Museum Thursdays between noon – 2pm to discuss their work during the exhibition.

“The scent of salty air that rolls off an open shore, a trail that leads to a mountain summit or a tranquil breeze on a quiet lake are all a part of our coastal state,” says exhibiting artist, Joanna Biondolillo.

Work by Kate Kennedy

The work of 21 artists were selected for Treasures of Our Coastal State. They are: Earline Allen, Donna Belber, Joanna Biondolillo, Sandy Dimke, Joan Eckhardt, Suzanne Fiorino, Karen Gottschall, Susan Hammond, Susan Irish, Debra Kelly, Kate Kennedy, Juliana Kim, Candace Whittemore Lovely, Laura McRae Hitchcock, Joan McKeever, Karen Renshaw, Mary Steffen, Marianne Stillwagon, Bernice Tate, Nancy Vineburgh and Melinda Welker.

Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Steve Gregar

The Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, will present and exhibit of abstract works by local artist, Steve Gregar, from Feb. 2 - 27, 2021. A reception will be held on Feb. 7, from 5-7pm.

Gregar will donate 50% of the sales from artwork to Bluffton Self Help, a local non-profit that provides food, clothing, educational and financial assistance to neighbors in need.

“It is always a great feeling to give back to a community which has given so much to all of us,” Gregar said.

Gregar is no stranger to giving back. He has written children’s books to raise money for St. Gregory the Great Catholic Church. He also helped renovate the May River Montessori School. Gregar is a New York native who moved to Bluffton 23 years ago. He worked in telecommunications for more than 30 years, 8 of which were spent at Hargray. When he retired 10 years ago, he started painting as a hobby - which quickly became his passion.

“If you are looking to fill an empty space on a wall at home or office, give my work a look and know that if it is appealing to you, a purchase will not only fill an empty space

The Johnson Collection Gallery in Spartanburg, SC, Features Harmon Award Artists

The Johnson Collection Gallery in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Excellence & Emancipation: African American Artists and the Harmon Foundation, which explores the history and influence of the Harmon Awards, on view through Mar. 6, 2021.

Established in 1926, the Harmon Foundation’s Distinguished Achievement Awards initiative was open exclusively to African Americans working in eight fields of endeavor, such as music, literature, science, and the fine arts. The program became best known for celebrating the work of African American visual artists through nationally touring exhibitions.

Work by Malvin Gray Johnson

The Johnson Collection’s upcoming exhibition showcases works created by legendary artists who were exhibited and honored by the Harmon Foundation, including Malvin Gray Johnson, William H. Johnson, Lois Mailou Jones, and Hale Woodruff, among others. In their respective roles as makers, teachers, historians, and activists, the 18 featured artists had profound impacts on art in the early twentieth century, and their legacies continue to inform today’s creative and cultural conversation.

TJC Gallery, the Johnson Collection’s hometown exhibition space, is located on West Main Street in downtown Spartanburg. The Johnson Collection is dedicated to ensuring a safe visit for all guests: face coverings are required, and guests are asked to please maintain social distance in the gallery space. Hailed by The Magazine Antiques with having staged a “quiet art historical revolution” and expanding “the meaning of regional” through its “exhibitions, loans, publications, and institutional partnerships,” the Johnson Collection seeks to illuminate the rich history and diverse cultures of the American South.

Metropolitan Arts Council in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Blaine Owens at Centre Stage

The Metropolitan Arts Council in Greenville, SC, will present an exhibit of works by Blaine Owens, on view at Centre Stage, from Feb. 2 through Mar. 11, 2021.

Known as "Greenville's Hometown Photographer," Blaine Owens spends countless hours exploring the beauty of the Upstate and surrounding areas. Using a minimum of electronic editing, his focus is on thoughtful composition that features authentic lighting and showcases the magnificent palette of the region he cherishes.

Owens is a Greenville native whose pieces adorn the walls of hundreds of homes and offices. Although he photographs many familiar landscapes, his genuine approach is distinctive. His awards include the Fuji Masterpiece Award bestowed by the Fuji-film Corporation for his artistic depiction of the Furman University Lake and the natural elegance of a swan swimming in the morning sunlight. Other photos capture whimsical poses from farm animals and abandoned manmade treasures that are often overlooked - all culminating in an offbeat flair that is easy to recognize and bound to

Hampton III Gallery in Taylors, SC, Features Works by Charles Basham and Thomas McNickle

The Hampton III Gallery in Taylors, SC, is presenting Carolina Scene, featuring paintings by Charles Basham and Thomas McNickle, in cooperation with the Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, on view through Mar. 13, 2021.

After earning Bachelor and Master degrees in Fine Art from Kent State University, Basham went on to become a professor of drawing, painting and color theory and application. Like Andrew Wyeth, the Hudson River painters and countless other landscape painters, Basham presents familiar scenes from the Midwest farmland to the South Carolina Lowcountry and then applies intense, saturated color. Influenced by contemporary color field artists Wolf Kahn and Paul Resika, Basham has mastered capturing dramatic and compelling moments of morning and evening light. The result is emotionally charged and visually stimulating pastels and paintings.

Basham offers the following statement, "Color has always been a consideration in my work that drawing and painting from the landscape has intensified and clarified. The basis for any color sense is derived not only from nature but also from studying painters. Sublime colorists like Courbet, Cezanne, Monet and Matisse have shaped my sensibilities; more contemporary painters like Fairfield Porter and Rackstraw Downes have revealed the subtlety of tonalities. I am drawn to nearly any color experience in paintings that I can add to my understanding and utilization of color in my own work and assist my interpretation of nature."

Basham's work is in the permanent collections of fine American museums such as the Asheville Art Museum, the Mint Museum, the Butler Institute of American Art, the Hoyt Center for the Arts, the Hunter Museum of Art, the

Work by Charles Basham

Hickory Museum of Art and the Greenville Museum of Art, among others.

Pennsylvania native Thomas McNickle's exceptional technical ability has been evident since he first began painting in his teens. An intrinsic feature of his painting is the Zen philosophy of rapid execution. Approaching each painting in a meditative state, McNickle relies on complete and relaxed concentration for the layering of direct, spontaneous strokes of color. The power and individuality of these brushstrokes transforms archetypal motifs of land and sky into unique and personal images that are both representational and abstract.

McNickle offers the following statement, "For me, light is the key to time and place. Light makes each moment and location unique. Once the light has caught my attention, I begin to work quickly, often doing several different studies at once. It's the process that matters, not the finished product. Eventually, the studies and photographs taken on location crystallize in a studio painting. I don't enlarge the studies in the studio but, rather, regard them as bits of information that contribute to a greater understanding of the subject. I want to stand in one place and time, experience it, and, through the act of painting, understand it more fully. A landscape

MAIN STREET, OLD SALEM
WINSTON SALEM NC

JWALTERS 95

Plate #49 - Viewed from the campus of Salem College in Winston-Salem, NC, 100 North Main Street (originally named Wachovia Center) was, at the time this sketch was drawn (1995), the tallest building in North Carolina, outside of Charlotte. The granite domed tower, designed by architect Cesar Pelli, takes design cues from the nearby Moravian settlement of Old Salem, including the Moravian arch motif in the dome and entrance, and the Moravian star pattern in lobby marble mosaics.

The Art of Architecture

by Steve Wong

Noted architect John Walters of Tryon, NC, has published Carefully Placed Lines on Paper, a 230-page book with 100 of his sketches of buildings that are works of art, visited by him over the course of his 45-year-old career.

"I think, when properly executed, architecture is an art form," Walters said. "In choosing the subjects for these sketches, most were chosen because they were examples of art and architecture merging as a successful example of both." The sketches were created while Walters was traveling for either business or pleasure, and he came upon buildings that appealed to him. The sketches were made onsite, often with finishing touches added later.

In the book's introduction, Walters said: "As an architect, sketching is a normal part of the design process. Clients are frequently amazed as I sketch an idea while they watch, especially with the prevalence of the computer. Did my sketching ability help develop my architectural skills or did my architectural skills further develop my sketching? I believe they go hand in hand."

The 100 images were culled from more than 400 that date back to 1978. They are arranged in chronological order and each is presented on a two-page spread with the image on the right side and the short description on the facing left side. All but two are of buildings in the USA, and several are in Tryon, where he now lives and continues to work. The Tryon buildings include, among others, Spanish Court on Melrose Avenue and Tryon Elementary School. He has designed several notable local buildings, including the Smith-Payer Hospice House, The Landrum Depot Renovation, The Polk County Early College, and most recently, the addition to the Tryon Fine Arts Center and the addition to The First Baptist Church of Tryon.

"I feel that drawing a building provides a better way to understand it," he said. "Drawing a building forces one to see every detail, many of which are missed by simply taking a photograph." In his introduction, Walters notes, "The few seconds spent taking a photograph are rarely remembered, but I will always remember the circumstances and time spent drawing these images."

A native of Greenville, SC, Walters moved to Tryon in 2002 after an extensive career in Charlotte, NC, with several architectural firms. He is a 1973 and 1976 graduate of Clemson University where he studied architecture. In Tryon he has been active with several community, civic, and government organizations related to art, planning, and development.

Walters started compiling his book in 2018 and was able to give it more time when the COVID-19 pandemic locked down much of the world's businesses. "I started off thinking this would be a nice gift to my children and grandchildren, as a record of some of my work, but as I developed it further, I felt it might appeal to a larger audience," he said.

"Why did I choose these subjects to sketch?" Walters asks in his introduction. "A memory of a particular trip... an architectural detail... or perhaps the discovery of an image that I felt would make a pleasing composition. While the reader may recognize many of the buildings, others are unknown, utilitarian structures that

simply appealed to me."

Printed with only black ink, Carefully Placed Lines on Paper measures 8.5 x 8.5 inches and sells for $24.95 plus tax and shipping. It is available through Walters' website at (www.jwaltersarch.com); his office at 70 Pacolet Street, Tryon; or locally at retail outlets The Book Shelf in Tryon and The Garage on 25 in Fletcher, NC.

Editor's Note (Tom Starland): When I first heard of this book and its title I expected a book full of loose sketches, but was surprised to find, what I would call, more detailed drawings - with lots of detail and lots of info.

Having driven around many of the cities and towns in both North and South Carolina in my delivery days, it became a game as to how many of the structures I have seen, including the big rocking horse in Tryon, which I used to park under almost every month. I've also seen a few of the structures which are outside of the Carolinas.

I also loved the short descriptions of the structures, giving a little history, naming the architects and sometimes dates when they were built and dates when they were drawn. Time marches on and change is always in the wind. Some buildings have had varied lives throughout time.

This book makes a great gift or resource for someone who has traveled around the Carolinas or is looking for ideas or reasons to travel. At $24.95, its a great flip through book on rainy days.

Plate #93 - Circular Congregational Church is located at 150 Meeting Street in Charleston, SC. This Romanesque Revival building dates from 1892, after an earlier church was destroyed by fire. The term "circular" actually comes from the form of that earlier church, designed by architect Robert Mills, architect of the Washington Monument. The current church was designed by the New York architectural firm of Stephenson and Greene. Drawing date 2011.

BLAINE OWENS

February 2 - March 11, 2021

Known as “Greenville’s Hometown Photographer,” Blaine Owens spends countless hours exploring the beauty of the Upstate and surrounding areas. Using a minimum of electronic editing, his focus is on thoughtful composition that features authentic lighting and showcases the magnificent palette of the region he cherishes.

Blaine is a Greenville native whose pieces adorn the walls of hundreds of homes and offices. Although he photographs many familiar landscapes, his genuine approach is distinctive. His awards include the Fuji Masterpiece Award bestowed by the Fujifilm Corporation for his artistic depiction of the Furman University Lake and the natural elegance of a swan swimming in the morning sunlight. Other photos capture whimsical poses from farm animals and abandoned manmade treasures that are often overlooked—all culminating in an offbeat flair that is easy to recognize and bound to bring joy to those who see it.

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Katherine Boxall

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Intelligent Abstraction, an exhibition of abstract paintings by Katherine Boxall, on view through Mar. 6, 2021.

This is the artist's inaugural solo exhibition with the gallery and a catalogue is being published for the occasion.

A Canadian native, Boxall holds a MFA from the San Francisco Art Institute. After moving to Charlotte in 2018, Boxall immediately began constructing her intelligent, expressive paintings using a mix of materials: acrylic, spray paint, pastel and oil.

Of this new body of work, Boxall says: "The paintings in this exhibition were created in my warehouse studio in Charlotte, North Carolina, during the 2020 pandemic. The work is influenced by the unusual grounding experience we all find ourselves in, but also a series of nomadic camping trips that my partner, dog and I have been undertaking across the United States this year. Being from Canada and far from 'home', these paintings memorialize moments of novelty and escapism living, working and traveling in America."

During Boxall's academic years she was the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including the Elizabeth Green-shields Foundation Artist Grant and the San Francisco Art Institute MFA Fellowship. Boxall's work has been featured in exhibitions across Canada, Australia and the United States, most recently in a solo exhibition at the Mint Museum.

Jerald Melberg Gallery is located on South Sharon Amity Road near the intersection with Providence Road.

Hickory Museum of Art in Hickory, NC, Features Works by Andy Warhol

The Hickory Museum of Art in Hickory, NC, is presenting Works by Warhol, featuring 36 iconic masterworks by one of America's most prominent artists, Andy Warhol, on view through June 6, 2021.

The exhibition will raise the museum's profile while affording opportunities to connect with audiences of all ages. The museum's staff is pleased to partner with

Imagine One Hospitality as the presenting sponsor for this important project, which will be accompanied by a Studio54 themed gala. This special event will occur at a time when it is safe for our community to come together and celebrate Andy Warhol's pioneering creative spirit. Imagine One Hospitality's restaurant,

Café Rule & Wine Bar will also host programs and events that will activate the exhibition.

The Hickory Museum of Art is taking every precaution to keep you safe during your visit. Our surface spaces are sanitized every two hours and hand sanitizer stations are located in each gallery. Museum staff and guests are required to wear masks per state guidelines. "At a time when everyone can use an opportunity to see the world anew, we feel so fortunate that our friends at Imagine One Hospitality have so generously supported this important project. We are excited for our community to experience the galleries and accompanying programs, which will be presented with a focus on social-distancing, safety, and observance of recommended guidelines," said the museum's Executive Director, Jon Carfagno.

Featuring a broad cross-section of examples from Warhol's storied career, the galleries will be activated by the appearance of pop culture staples such as "Mick Jagger," "Santa Claus," and "Mickey Mouse." The show will also explore Warhol's responses to major moments in US history, including the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Neil Armstrong's moon landing, and the perception of Native Americans in the aftermath of the bicentennial of the United States.

The exhibition will include the entire series of "Myths". This body of work was completed in 1981 and showcases Warhol's lifetime fascination with Hollywood imagery. Afflicted as a youth by a sickness termed St. Vitus' Dance, the artist spent countless hours absorbing television, movies, and graphic novels. "Myths" marks a return to his formative encounters with figures such as Howdy Doody, the Wicked Witch of the West, Superman, and more. However, the series can also be interpreted through the lenses of consumerism and gender stereotypes.

A series of events will surround and enhance the exhibit experience. HMA Members will have priority access when while Works by Warhol is on view. While the museum will be open to the general public, the Coe Gallery will be roped off to allow a members-only viewing experience. Although the museum is closed on Mondays and Tuesdays, HMA is offering exclusive members-only access to the galleries on Mondays during the run of the exhibition, through June 6, 2021.

While Andy Warhol is a world-famous artist, there's much more to him than his "Campbell's Soup" series. Join HMA Executive Director, Jon Carfagno, at Café Rule for Warhol Wednesdays, an evening dedicated to Warhol's work, life, and his impact on the international art world. Currently scheduled dates are Feb. 17 and Mar. 3. Guests can enjoy themed food and drinks, such as the Warhol Burger and Pop-tini, as Carfagno takes you on a journey into the world of Andy Warhol. Spots are limited to 10 people to allow for social distancing. Café Rule will continue to offer the Warhol Wednesday menu throughout the run of the exhibition.

Works by Warhol will also feature a documentary by Anna Banas titled "American Icon: Andy Warhol". Inspired by her special interest in art history, Banas, a junior at Ardrey Kell High School in Charlotte, NC, participated in the documentary category of the National History Day Competition. She stated, "After learning about Andy Warhol's great cultural impact, I was inspired to create my documentary on him and his work." HMA will host an Artist's Talk with Anna Banas via Zoom on Feb. 28 at 2pm. Tickets are $5 for HMA members and $10 for non-members.

Those who are interested in making reservations for one of the Warhol Wednesday evenings or arrangements to participate in Member Mondays should contact Hickory Museum of Art at 828/327-8576. Please visit (www.hickoryart.org) for more information on event dates as well as other possible virtual and in-person programs as allowed by Covid-19 restrictions at that time.

This exhibition is sponsored by Imagine One Hospitality, LLC. Additional sponsors include Corning Incorporated

Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, Features Works by M.C. Escher

The Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, will presents its featured spring exhibition, The Imaginative Worlds of M.C. Escher, on view Feb. 6 through June 6, 2021, with a free public preview day on Feb. 5, from 10am-8pm. Celebrate the opening of The Imaginative Worlds of M.C. Escher with extended hours, free admission and a lively day of art. Capacities are limited with timed reservations, so book your spot in advance. Free.

A consummate boundary-pusher and arguably the most famous printmaker of the modern era, Maurits Cornelius Escher (1898-1972) used his art to challenge perspectives, deftly exploring the relationships between art and science, reality and illusion, chaos and order, and logic and absurdity.

"Escher has to be one of the most recognized artists of the 20th century. His mind-bending, reality-warping prints include subjects like infinite staircases, tessellating birds changing into fish and back again, and two hands drawing each other," says CMA Executive Director Della Watkins. "His work is known and beloved today by everyone from kids to designers to scientists, and we're looking forward to sharing it with all our visitors."

Escher's images pervade popular culture and fascinate audiences with their imaginative design, consummate draftsmanship, and dreamy visions. Initially inspired by nature, Escher's work later became submerged in what he referred to as "mental imagery," a host of subjects influenced by Moorish architecture, mathematical equations, alchemy, and the concept of metamorphosis.

This is the largest private traveling Escher exhibition in the world and includes woodcuts, lithographs, drawings, and all eight mezzotints from his career. Visitors will see his best-known prints as well as lesser-known works, spanning his entire career from his earliest print to his final masterpiece, and also get a glimpse into the artist's process with a woodblock study and lithographic stone.

The Imaginative Worlds of M.C. Escher is presented through the support of our generous sponsors and grantors. Presenting sponsor: Dominion Energy. Contributing sponsors: Jeffrey C. Caswell, Caroline and Kester Freeman, and Susan Thorpe and John Baynes, and Mrs. Myrtle T. Robinson. Friend sponsors: Mary and John Kessler, Sam and Sandy McGuckin, Ann Marie Stieritz and John Carran, and The Weinkle Family. Patron sponsors: Barbara Boyd, Julie and Mike Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Dukes, Good Neighbour Foundation, Mr. William C. Schmidt Jr., Brenda and Rick Wheeler, and Dr. and Mrs. Peter A. Zvejnieks. Grantors: City of Columbia, Richland County Government, South Carolina Arts Commission, and South Carolina Department of Parks, Recreation & Tourism.

Works in this exhibition came from the Collection of Paul and Anna Belinda Firos, Athens, Greece.

The CMA has implemented cleaning and physical distancing practices to safeguard staff and visitors. Face coverings are required for everyone over the age of two. Learn more about what to expect during your visit here.

701 Center for Contemporary Art in Columbia, SC, Features Works by Lori Larusso

701 Center for Contemporary Art in Columbia, SC, is presenting Lori Larusso Feast & Foe, on view through Feb. 28, 2021.

Much of the work in the exhibition was developed during a residency at 701cca. Larusso deals with food, domestic labor and giving care. She explores how food, its preparation and presentation and its role in caregiving differs between socio-economic groups and changes over time. Her meticulous process, involving skill and labor beyond precise painting, echoes domestic labor. Her colorful shaped paintings of food and food-related items are seductive, reductive and surprising, inviting viewers to reexamine seemingly common objects and ideas.

For nearly 20 years, solo and group exhibitions of Larusso's work have graced local, national, and international venues. Her consistently evolving work has earned her multiple awards from the Great Meadows Foundation, SouthArts, Kentucky Arts Council, Kentucky Foundation for Women, and most recently, the Community Foundation of Louisville's 2020 Fischer Prize for Visual Arts. Additionally, Larusso has been awarded numerous residency fellowships from competitive International programs including Bemis Center for Contemporary Art, McColl Center for Art + Innovation, MacDowell, and chaNorth.

Larusso earned her MFA from the Maryland Institute College of Art's (MICA) graduate interdisciplinary program, the Mount Royal School of Art and a BFA from the University of Cincinnati's College of Design, Architecture, Art, and Planning (DAAP). Lori's work is represented by Skidmore Contemporary in Santa Monica,

University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, Features Works by Amanda Smith

The University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, is presenting Restless Sleepers, featuring works by Amanda Smith, on view in the McMaster Gallery, through Feb. 18, 2021.

Smith is an award-winning interdisciplinary artist based in Missouri, where she is an Assistant Professor of Painting and Drawing at Missouri State University.

Smith's exhibition at McMaster Gallery, Restless Sleepers, features hybrid quilt paintings and cushion-stuffed works which challenge our common associations of quilts as sources of comfort and conduits to rest. Her works tap into our collective unease about transitioning environmental, political, and social landscapes. Smith adapts the forms of functional items for resting or sleeping outdoors - such as sleeping bags and hammocks - into varying shapes or substrates of wall works. These wall installations simultaneously embody aspects of comfort and uncertainty, and reference camouflage or protective cover while also being visually overt and maximalist.

Smith is a Visiting Artist at the Univer-

Smith earned her MFA from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and her BA from the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, WA. She has exhibited and lectured nationally and internationally, including exhibitions at SPRING/BREAK Art Show in NY, the Rochester Art Center in MN, the Leedy-Voukos Art Center in Kansas

Sumter County Gallery of Art in Sumter, SC, Features Works by Sumter Guild Show and Diane Kilgore Condon

The Sumter County Gallery of Art in Sumter, SC, is presenting two exhibitions including the Annual Sumter Artists' Guild Winners Exhibition and Diane Kilgore Condon, Wild Kingdom, both on view through Feb. 12, 2021. Diane Kilgore Condon will give an artist talk Thursday, Feb. 11, at 5:30pm.

When COVID isolation and post-holiday cabin fever have set in, the Sumter County Gallery of Art provides the perfect getaway with two fantastic exhibitions in a welcoming, safe space.

Because the annual January South Carolina Watermedia Society Exhibition, is completely virtual, SCGA staff went in search of an artist that would be a great complement to the Sumter Artists' Guild Winners Exhibition. We are excited to present the art of Diane Kilgore Condon. Kilgore Condon is a painter who was born in Wisconsin and lives and works in Greenville, SC, and is the owner of ArtBomb Studios. Kilgore Condon received a BFA in Fine Arts from Bob Jones University in Greenville, SC. There she studied with renowned South Carolina artist, Carl Blair.

Established in 2001, ArtBomb launched what is now Greenville's important Pendleton Street arts district. From a September 2019 article in Living Upsate SC magazine: "In 2001 Diane Kilgore Condon wasn't trying to be a trailblazer, she simply needed a new spot for her studio. Working full time as merchandising manager for Belk department store, Kilgore Condon had an art studio in downtown Greenville where she painted part time. When her landlord decided on another use for the space, she began searching for a new place to paint. In 2001, the Village of West Greenville didn't exist. Only a handful of retail and restaurants remained open, with empty storefronts and homes in decline dotting the landscape of the once thriving textile mill community."

"When Kilgore Condon stepped inside the two-story brick building that originally housed the Brandon Mill Company store, she did so with an open mind. The place was pretty big, and she remembers thinking, "that maybe I should ask a few artists to come along." At the end of the conversation the owner said he'd be willing to sell it. Having left her job to become a full-time artist, Kilgore Condon formed ArtBomb Studios, a nonprofit organization, and invited other artists to move their studios to Pendleton Street. A genuine desire to see each other flourish is another part of The Art Bomb's success, according to a resident artist of 15 years."

"The resident artists all root for each other and are thrilled with each other's success. Many credit ArtBomb as being the catalyst for what is now the trendy, artistic and entrepreneurial district called The Village of West Greenville. It continues to be a close-knit community where artists can create, and a place where lasting friendships form – some of the four-legged variety. In the past 20 years, ArtBomb artists have rescued 44 dogs from the streets of West Greenville. Kilgore Condon's beloved Elsie, a puppy she found abandoned on a nearby street, was her constant companion for 14 years and a muse for many of her paintings. Several of the paintings in the Sumter exhibition feature Elsie."

Kilgore Condon has had three solo exhibitions in South Carolina at Bob Jones University, the Greenville County Museum of Art, and the Pickens County Museum. She has also participated in several group exhibitions throughout the South including the Morris Museum in Augusta, GA, the Burroughs & Chapin Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC; the Sumter County Gallery of Art in Sumter, SC, and the City Gallery at Waterfront Park in Charleston, SC.

Her paintings are a profusion of flora and fauna (dogs, birds, rabbits) spilling out of large – and small canvases, hence the title Wild Kingdom, and are very pleasing to the eye. Kilgore Condon is among the Upstate's most prolific and respected painters and the Sumter County Gallery of Art is very excited to present an exhibition of her work.

The Sumter Artists' Guild is one of the most active Artists' Guilds in the state. President Laura Cardello – a multi-talented artist, has worked tirelessly to expand the Guild's artistic presence in Sumter in a variety of creative ways. It has been especially challenging in 2020. She is supported by a group of hardworking officers, Vicki Hagner, Jennifer Franklin, Erin Duffie, and Lisa Melton.

SCGA director Karen Watson notes, "This year's COVID edition of the Sumter Artists' Guild Exhibition which opened July 30th without an opening reception saw slightly fewer entries but overall, the exhibition was one of the strongest in years. Watson is quick to point out though that every Guild Exhibition is strong, but this year had a little something extra. The judge for the 2020 Guild Exhibition was Robert O. Keith IV and he picked out an amazing array of winners. When we add Genevieve Rath as the 2020 Peoples Choice Winner for her exquisite watercolor Owl, SCGA staff knew our audience could look forward to a stellar Sumter Artists' Guild Winners Exhibition."

Work by John Quinton Dingle

The exhibition will include a broad range of styles and media with an emphasis on representational and mixed media. Accomplished fiber artist Sylvia Pickell won Best of Show with her sublime quilt Snail Trail with bits of Japanese fabrics in an intricate pattern. J. Michael McGuirt won first place with his charming and surreal painting

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Offers Exhibition Focused on the Moon

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, will present Meeting the Moon, an exhibition featuring prints, photographs, ceramics, sculptures, and more from the Museum's Collection, on view in the Museum's McClinton Gallery, from Feb. 3 through July 26, 2021.

2021 marks the 60th anniversary of the beginning of the Apollo space program at NASA, but its inception was hardly the beginning of humankind's fascination with Earth's only moon. Before space travel existed, the moon – its shape, its mystery, and the face we see in it – inspired countless artists. Once astronauts landed on the moon and we saw our world from a new perspective, a surge of creativity flooded the American art scene, in paintings, prints, sculpture, music, crafts, film, and poetry.

This exhibition, whose title is taken from a 1913 Robert Frost poem, examines artwork in the Asheville Art Museum's Collection of artists who were inspired by the unknown, then increasingly familiar moon. Meeting the Moon includes works by nationally renowned artists Newcomb Pottery, James Rosenquist, Maltby Sykes, Paul Soldner, John Lewis, Richard Ritter (Bakersville, NC), and Mark Peiser (Penland, NC). Western North Carolina artists include Jane Peiser (Penland, NC), Jak Brewer (Zionville, NC), Dirck Crusier (Asheville, NC), George Peterson (Lake Toxaway, NC), John B. Neff (NC), and Maud Gatewood (Yanceyville, NC).

Helen Gerardia, "Moonlight", circa 1965, screenprint on paper, 16 x 20 inches. Asheville Art Museum. © Estate of Helen Gerardia.

"Meeting the Moon offers the opportunity to combine science and popular culture with works of art in the Museum's Collection," says Whitney Richardson, associate curator. "I think all visitors will find something that draws them into this exhibition, whether it's the artwork, poetry, music, or science of space travel. It's such an affirmation of humanity to find these mysteries, like the moon, which enchant us all."

This exhibition is organized by the Asheville Art Museum and curated by Whitney Richardson, associate curator.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on American Impressionism

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, is presenting Across the Atlantic: American Impressionism through the French Lens, drawn mostly from the collection of the Reading Public Museum in Reading, PA, on view in the Museum's Appleby Foundation Exhibition Hall, through Apr. 19, 2021.

The exhibition explores the path to Impressionism through the 19th century in France. The show examines the relationship between French Impressionism of the 1870s and 1880s and the American interpretation of the style in the decades that followed.

More than 75 paintings and works on paper help tell the story of the "new style" of painting which developed at the end of the 19th century—one that emphasized light and atmospheric conditions, rapid or loose brushstrokes, and a focus on brightly colored scenes from everyday life. Scenes include both urban and rural settings from when artists preferred to paint outdoors and capture changing effects of light during different times of day and seasons of the year.

"The first things I notice in this exhibition are the beautiful color palettes found in Impressionist art—rich greens, whimsical purples, and serene blues," says Whitney Richardson, associate curator. "If you are an enthusiast of French and American Impressionism, this exhibition is a dream come true. The Asheville Art Museum is delighted to host this exhibition—primarily from the Reading Public Museum's impressive collection of Impressionist art—and offer visitors a fully immersive view of this late 19th-century style of painting."

Across the Atlantic will also feature works by artists whose paintings helped pave the pathway to Impressionism such as members of the Barbizon School including Jean-Baptiste-Camille Corot and Narcisse Diaz de la Peña. Other French painters whose techniques and subjects paralleled those of the Impressionists like Charles-François Daubigny, Leon-Augustin Lhermitte, and Jean-Charles Cazin will also be examined. Many of these artists practiced painting outdoors, en plein air, a new freedom that the commercial availability of tubed paint and portable easels afforded them.

Some of the key artists featured in the exhibition include Edgar Degas, Mary Cassatt, Edgar Degas, "The Laundress Ironing (La Blanchisseuse Repassant)", circa 1882–1886, oil on canvas, 27 1/2 x 27 3/4. Reading Public Museum, Reading, PA, gift, Martha Elizabeth Dick Estate.

Camille Pissarro, and others who exhibited in the official Impressionist exhibitions in Paris in the 1870s and 1880s. Although familiar and beloved by modern audiences, in their own time, the Impressionists were thought of as a rather radical alternative to the traditions of academic painting. The progressive group of artists avoided the official, state-funded Salon in Paris and instead decided to exhibit their works in unconventional locations.

Among the earliest American artists to embrace the style were John Singer Sargent, William Merritt Chase, John Henry Twachtman, Willard Metcalf, Childe Hassam, and Frank W. Benson, among others, whose works are included in the exhibition. American collectors and taste-makers were among the first to begin collecting Impressionist paintings. By the 1910s, the Reading Public Museum was collecting works by American Impressionists, a genre that would later become one of its greatest strengths.

A host of American artists, many of whom traveled to France around the turn of the century to continue their studies in fine art, embraced the style including Daniel Garber, Edward Redfield, Robert Spencer, Arthur Watson Sparks, Robert Lewis Reid, William Paxton, Chauncey Ryder, Frederick John Mulhaupt, and Guy Wiggins, are highlighted in this exhibition.

Special admission fees apply to this exhibition in addition to general Museum admission fees: $7 per Museum Member and $10 per non-member. Across the Atlantic: American Impressionism through the French Lens is organized by the Reading Public Museum, Reading, PA. Generous support for this project provided by Art Bridges, The Maurer Family Foundation, and Bitsy & Jim Powell.

The Museum's galleries, the Museum Store, and Perspective Café are open with limited capacity. Art PLAYce, our intergenerational makerspace, and the Frances Mul-hall Achilles Art Research Library remain temporarily closed. Admission tickets are available at (ashevilleart.org/visit). Visitors may become Members at the welcome desk during their visit or online at (ashevilleart.org/membership).

Southern Highland Craft Guild at the Folk Art Center, in Asheville, NC, Offers Works From Tryon Arts & Crafts School

The Southern Highland Craft Guild at the Folk Art Center, in Asheville, NC, is presenting Thermal Belt: Artists of the Foothills, presented by Tryon Arts & Crafts School, on view in the Center's Main Gallery, through May 9, 2021.

The Southern Highland Craft Guild opens its first exhibition of the 2021 year. The exhibit features artists working in the foothills in and around Tryon, NC, who are affiliated with the school. Disciplines represented include bladesmithing, copper textured bronze, hand-built and wheel-thrown ceramics, glass lampwork, jewelry, quilting, weaving, wooden furniture, woodcarving, and woodturning.

Work by Madison Greer

Tryon Arts & Crafts School (TACS) is an Education Center Member of the Southern Highland Craft Guild and located in Tryon, approximately 40 miles southeast of Asheville in Polk County. The town has a rich history in the arts since its establishment as an artists' colony during the craft revival at the turn of the twentieth century. The town's accessibility to Asheville by rail and its mild, "thermal belt" climate made it a desirable destination for affluent lovers of arts and literature. Today, the climate and beautiful scenery still team with the arts to uphold Tryon's historic charm.

Tryon Arts & Crafts School is housed in a retrofitted public-school building situated adjacent to Harmon Field parks and recreational lands and the Pacolet River. The school is host to an artisan retail shop, gallery, 200-object Heritage Collection, and seven independent studios, covering a range of media – Blacksmithing, Clay, Enameling, Fiber, Glass, Silversmithing, Welding, and Wood.

TACS' mission is to provide creative opportunities for everyone through education, instruction, and expression of heritage and contemporary arts and crafts in a friendly, stimulating and enriching environment.

The Southern Highland Craft Guild is a non-profit, educational organization established in 1930 to bring together the crafts and craftspeople of the Southern Highlands for the benefit of shared resources, education, marketing and conservation. The Southern Highland Craft Guild is an authorized concessioner of the National Park Service, Department of Interior.

Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville Offers Group Show by Member Artists

Blooms marks Asheville, NC's Asheville Gallery of Art's second new member show of the new year and celebrates the early signs of spring through the beauty of nature, new life, and of course, florals! Viewers can expect to see a variety of work from this month's featured artists: Kate Coleman, Cynthia Llanes, Jacqueline Oliver, and Claire Simpson-Jones. From figurative work to still lifes, every piece connects with the "Blooms" theme... and brings a preview of what's to come. The exhibit will be on view from Feb. 1 - 28, 2021.

Kate Coleman has been a professional artist for more than 18 years. She is best known in the gallery for her large, whimsical bird portraits, and her most recent work employs her signature style of acrylic paint and collaged vintage book pages to create a unique, textured image. For Blooms, Coleman turns from fauna to flora, creating layered paintings of plant life that have personal and biographical meaning.

Work by Kate Coleman

Cynthia Llanes has created art from a young age, starting with designing clothes for her dolls and then working as a textile designer in the Los Angeles fashion district before moving to the Blue Ridge Mountains and pursuing an art career. Llanes is a mixed media artist, creating vivid depictions of nature's beauty with color and texture. Her paintings for Blooms are inspired by some of her favorite poet's descriptions of flowers and are exclusively painted using alcohol ink, which creates especially bright, saturated colors perfect for florals.

Jacqueline Oliver creates narrative paintings and ink drawings inspired by the natural world, depicting plants, animals, and people in her illustrative style. Her work often contains hidden details to reward the curious viewer. She works in a variety of mediums, from acrylic to papercutting, and her artwork for Blooms celebrates the new life that emerges in springtime.

Claire Simpson-Jones works primarily as a watercolorist, painting landscapes and women in nature to capture the important role of nature in our lives. Her paintings reflect her deeply rooted passion for the natural environment and are inspired by her extensive travels near and far. Blooms features Simpson-Jones' watercolor figures in a new context, mingled with soft florals in a peaceful, serene environment.

Bender Gallery in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Marco Reichert

Bender Gallery in Asheville, NC, is presenting Man and Machine, a solo exhibition featuring new and pivotal works by European painter, Marco Reichert, on view through Mar. 30, 2021. There will also be a virtual tour of the exhibition available at Bender Gallery's website.

Berlin-based Reichert is an emerging abstract painter whose current work challenges our ideas of what contemporary art is by using traditional painting techniques in conjunction with experimental "painting machines" to create multi-layered artworks. Reichert's concept is new and unique, and his paintings exhibit a singular recognizable style.

Reichert uses a broad range of materials and imagery, both traditional and technological in creating his bold and thought-provoking work. His painting "robots" are integral to the presentation; each adheres to a programmed set of geometric rules and allows Reichert continuous access to the entire surface of the canvas. He first projects depth by the juxtaposition of paint and glue on the canvas. Often, Reichert glues the raw canvas on the floor to catch traces of prior paintings and to relate every single work to a much wider comprehensive ongoing process. His machine then supplies the compositional counterparts. The work is planned out yet also capricious as it develops during the creative process, and each image is fundamentally tied to the elements utilized.

abstract, linear, fluid, and organic fields of color onto the raw canvas. On the other hand, there is an overtly technical-digital component through the construction of devices as "robot designers" made by the artist himself. This is a creative process in which the machine becomes the means for reaching visual results that would not be possible otherwise. Reichert almost becomes unified with his devices, touching the screen and manipulating the equipment in search of innovative marks and form.

The mostly large-scale paintings shown in the exhibition highlight the dichotomy of a dialogue between spontaneous touches of ink, oil or other media brushed or sprayed on by Reichert himself, and the more geometrical and mechanical forms, with regular rhythms and lines, that inhabit the surface of the canvas obtained through the use of digital media.

Reichert (Berlin, 1979) lives and works in Berlin. Before earning his master's degree in painting at the Kunsthochschule Berlin Weißensee, Berlin, he studied information technology at Humboldt University, also in Berlin. It was at Humboldt that he decided that IT was not for him, so he pursued his passion in art. It was a natural progression to incorporate his background in technology and computers into his artwork.

Reichert has taken part in solo and group shows in such prestigious international institutes and galleries as the RIBOT gallery, Milan, Kunstverein Weinheim, Collection Baumgärtner, Weinheim (2014); Herbert-Gerisch Stiftung, Neumünster (2014); Georg Kolbe Museum, Berlin (2011); Freies Museum Berlin, Berlin (2010); Künstlerhaus Bethanien, Berlin (2009), and many others.

There is a dichotomy between spontaneous touches of ink or acrylic, the use of a spray and brushstrokes freely chosen by the artist and the more calculated geometrical forms, with regular line and rhythms that inhabit the surface of the painting and that seem almost mechanical because they were obtained by the use of digital media.

On one hand, Reichert utilizes classic pictorial methodology linked to materials and painting in the way we traditionally think of. He traces out drawings and

So you're the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you're wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you're the owner of a commercial art gallery and you've never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don't see your exhibits included.

My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, "Why that is the case?" If you're not included - it's your fault.

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Four Women

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, will present an exhibition of works by four women artists: Alix Hitchcock, Lea Lackey-Zachmann, Katherine Mahler, and Mona Wu, on view from Feb. 5 - 28, 2021.

For this select show, Alix Hitchcock has worked with colored inks and waxy china markers using drawings from models or stencil shapes of human forms and foliage forms. These large format works intentionally create a somewhat chaotic vision, where the layering of forms with added gestural marks and calligraphic lines may belie gravity, or blur distinctions between foreground and background; figure and space.

Hitchcock holds a MA in painting from NYU and a BFA in printmaking and painting from UNCG. She has been an instructor in studio art at WFU, Salem College, UNCSCA, The Sawtooth Center for Visual Arts, Reynolda House Museum of American Art, and the Weatherspoon Museum of Art, plus a number of additional esteemed institutions. She was selected as the Winston-Salem Artist of the Year in 1998, and is a founding board member of Artworks Gallery. She has exhibited widely in numerous local and national galleries and centers for art. Her work is held in many collections, both private and public.

Lea Lackey-Zachmann often makes images that are not exhibited or shared with the public. "I appreciate those personal and often meaningful processes," says Lackey-Zachmann. "Each of these paintings arose from experiences like that years ago. They were made quickly and afterwards rolled up, only to be recently found after a studio move." The COVID pandemic period presents the perfect time to rediscover and exhibit these refreshed and completed 20 year old paintings.

Lackey-Zachmann has a BA in Art Education, a graduate teaching certificate in Art Education and an MFA in painting. Also a founding member of Artworks Gallery, she taught art at the college level for over 30 years and continues to paint, make prints and explore video. The Natural world has been a focus of her art since childhood. She lives in Winston-Salem with her husband, two dogs and a cat.

Combining printmaking and painting techniques, Katherine Mahler explores identity through the use of layers, shared symbols and maps. Drawing from her experiences living around the country and traveling globally her art reflects the commonalities and connectedness of the human experience.

New Artworks Gallery member, Mahler has a BA in Studio Art from Kenyon College and a BFA in Art Education from Michigan State University. Mahler is currently applying to be an MFA candidate. She has been teaching art to students of all ages for the past 20 years, including in Texas, Michigan, Louisiana and North Carolina.

Mona Wu is exhibiting her unframed prints in large format, mostly monotypes, both old and new works. Comprised of botanical subject matter, these prints are the product of Wu's love and appreciation of natural beauty ever present locally, in the state of North Carolina.

A native of China, Wu immigrated to the US in 1970. She studied Chinese painting and calligraphy in Hong Kong, then later received her BA in Art History from Salem College and studied Printmaking at WFU. In 2003, Wu was selected as Sawtooth School Winston-Salem Artist of the year. She joined as a member of Artworks Gallery that same year. Wu currently teaches Printmaking and collage at Sawtooth School of Winston-Salem.

Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Ashley Johnson

The Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA), in Winston-Salem, NC, is resuming its Southern Idiom exhibition series with a new exhibition featuring the work of photographer and multidisciplinary creative Ashley Johnson, on view in the Center's Preview Gallery, through Feb. 14, 2021.

The exhibition will feature work from Johnson's powerful "Mark Yourself Safe" photography series, exploring themes around black skin, perception, fear, curiosities, and freedom. Works on view will be available for purchase. Admission to the exhibition is free, with a suggested $10 donation.

"We are excited to bring a solo presentation of the work of Ashley Johnson to SECCA," says Wendy Earle, curator of contemporary art at SECCA. "Ashley has a vibrant and incisive photography practice, and her use of framing and light produces stunning work."

Johnson is a writer and a multidisciplinary

Winston-Salem artists. In contrast to many exhibitions at SECCA, works on view in Southern Idiom are available for purchase. Johnson's exhibition marks the 18th installment of the series, which previously presented artists like Frank Champion, Mona Wu, Owens Daniels, Jessica Singerman, Leo Rucker, Kevin Calhoun, Paul Travis Phillips, Laura Lashley, Sam "The Dot Man" McMillan, and others.

Johnson offered the following artist statement:

1 – On God

"Mark Yourself Safe", which is the title of this work, is a Facebook feature meant to show your friends you're safe from natural disasters and other acts of God; Black men are also acts of God.

2 – On Rorschach

I sat on these images for month as this work is still in progress; not knowing exactly what to say about them, only that I saw, in a dream, black boys running away from a group home and painting these bright orange shapes on their backs.

I dove into books and studies on Rorschach inkblot tests, the scoring system, its biases - and I don't typically like to speak on/share any work when my study on a work isn't done. But here's what I know, and why this work needs breath now.

Rorschach inkblot tests are a psychoanalytical tool used to ask the viewer what they see, perceive or feel. The shapes painted on their backs from my dreams are reminiscent of the shapes used in the test. For the entities that still use them, test results are used to influence decisions on many things: in court to determine custody of a child, to determine fitness for clergy, to determine a person's likelihood that they'll commit violence, to determine if someone has experienced abuse and a myriad of other reasons.

Black skin is the same way, we've been conditioned to project our judgement onto black skin as a space to make determinations on our safety. In this way, we use the size and depth of black skin as a barometer for fear. My brother, in this photo, is a college student who works the meat counter at his job. It does not stop women from clutching their purses when he goes out to restock the shelves, nor does it combat complaints such as having his hat turned backward while he steps outside for a lunch break. Complaints he can't defend without raising his voice. A voice he cannot raise without compromising his income. A voice he cannot raise without scaring his white leadership. A power white fear wields routinely. Knowingly.

These photos are a study of your fear. When you focus on this black man, independent of the shape judging you inadvertently on his back, independent of this photo's creative value, with his pitt bulls and his boxers out, standing in a neighborhood you wouldn't dare step foot in— it's not a question of whether or not you are afraid, because you are. The question is, of what?

3 – On Sight

This work was delivered to me in a dream; so my subconscious chose this orange. A hazardous, alarming orange, heated to a temperature that encourages sight.

Instead of using a black skin as measuring tool for safety, internally try to remove the shape from the body. What does this shape actually say to you? What does the body evoke in you?

Do you see a bird? A butterfly? A map? A mask? A man? Do you sense frustration, power, pain, nostalgia? Do you feel confused, heartbroken, combative, annoyed. Do you feel nothing?

Fear cannot personify itself, it needs belief as an aid. And our beliefs are a collection of notions, lack of exposure, generational instruction, DNA and social constructs that boil into instincts and truths we inherit. It registers in the body as shock, outrage, disrespect, disregard, even silence.

What you see could determine the shape of your fear, curiosities, safety or freedom.

Notice if you're able to separate what you see from what you *want to see, versus what you actually register in your body when you look closely.

The shape - the fear - your truth is one thing. *Your work, is realizing that the black male body is another.

Founded in 1956, the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art offers a front-row seat to the art of our time. Through visual art exhibitions, education, music, film, dance and theater, SECCA starts conversations that engage diverse communities and perspectives. Forsyth County Public Library in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Jessica Singerman

The Forsyth County Public Library in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Creative Detours, an exhibition of works by award-winning painter Jessica Singerman, on view through Mar. 31, 2021.

In this collection of paintings, viewers will notice that some are more impressionistic and some have more recognizable elements - the work hovers between abstraction and representation. In this way, Singerman explores the way things look (shapes, colors, line, edges, etc...) and the way things feel (hot sunlight, cold wind, the smell of leaves, birdsong, etc...).

Singerman's work is inspired by the poetry of nature, color and light in the landscape, seasons, and the passing of time. Says Singerman, "All of our senses are awakened when we spend time outside. The rhythm of steps while hiking, the whirl and clicks on a bike ride, the changing shapes of light and shadow between trees, the sound of birdsong - the memory of all these impacts on my senses feeds into my process of abstraction. I love to explore my experiences in nature through the elements of color, shape, line and composition."

Viewers may recognize Singerman's paintings from the billboard featuring her work on Route 52. She was one of the 2020/2021 Triad region ArtPop Street Gallery winners.

Work by Jessica Singerman

Singerman lived alternatively in France and the United States during her early life. She earned her BA with Highest Honors in 2002 from the College of William & Mary, Virginia, and her Masters of Fine Arts in 2004 from the University of Delaware while on a fellowship. Her award-winning paintings and drawings are exhibited and collected internationally. Singerman lives and works in Winston-Salem.

University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, Features Works by Xaviera Simmons

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, is presenting Xaviera Simmons: Falk Visiting Artist, on view at the Weatherspoon Art Museum, through May 29, 2021.

Images and objects, bodies and geography, the personal and the social: artist Xaviera Simmons binds these themes together in artworks that respond to the gaps and distortions in our understanding of histories - be they artistic, political, or economic. Working extensively from archival sources and thinking deeply about art history, she focuses on documents and artifacts that shed light on "the experiences of White, Indigenous, and Black Americans who descend from slavery, stories shaped in relationship to the overarching theme of White threat and terror." Honoring the layers and nuances of these narratives, she works within abstraction and metaphor—offering viewers accumulations of visual elements to be considered from multiple perspectives.

Curator of Exhibitions, Dr. Emily Stamey notes that "this is an important show with which to launch 2021, for as much as Simmons's work challenges us to critically examine the past, it also pushes us to find new ways of looking and seeing, perspectives that will help us move us forward."

The Falk Visiting artist program is a partnership between the Weatherspoon and UNCG's School of Art. In conjunction with her exhibition at the Weatherspoon, Simmons will be meeting and working with students and will present a public talk.

This exhibition was organized by Dr. Emily Stamey, Curator of Exhibitions.

An Artist Talk with Xaviera Simmons will be offered on Mar. 11, at 7pm. This will be a virtual event, registration is required, visit (<https://weatherspoonart.org/>).

The Weatherspoon Art Museum at UNC Greensboro acquires, preserves, exhibits, and interprets modern and contemporary art for the benefit of its multiple audiences, including university, community, regional, and beyond. Through these activities, the museum recognizes its paramount role of public service, and enriches the lives of diverse individuals by fostering an informed appreciation and understanding of the visual arts and their relationship to the world in which we live.

Craven Arts Council in New Bern, NC, Offers Works by Billingsley Family

The Craven Arts Council in New Bern, NC, will present One Family, Three Visions, on view in the Main Gallery, at the Bank of the Arts, from Feb. 3 - 28, 2021.

This exhibition will feature the work of three members of the Billingsley family: Carl Billingsley, Catherine Billingsley and their son Benjamin Billingsley. The Craven Arts Council will host a reception during the Feb. ArtWalk on Feb. 12, from 5 - 8pm.

Each member of the Billingsley Family works in different mediums and each has a unique artistic vision. Carl Billingsley is a sculptor who primarily works in cast metal, stone, wood, and steel. Carl's work is impressive in size and monolithic in style. He is one of the grandmasters of iron who brought iron artwork to the art world in the United States. He previously worked at East Carolina University as Area Coordinator of the Sculpture Department. He is now retired from academia and focusing on his studio practice.

Catherine Billingsley was born and educated in Milwaukee, WI, and received her BFA in Weaving and Textiles from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 1969. Catherine returned to school and in 2003 earned her MFA in Textile Design from East Carolina University in Greenville. For the next 5 years she was part of the adjunct faculty and taught the entry-level textile survey course and all levels of weaving. She is also retired from

North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, Features Works by Brenda Behr

North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, NC, will present The Immediacy of Realism, featuring oil and watercolor paintings by Goldsboro, NC, artist, Brenda Behr, on view in the Mims Art Gallery at NC Wesleyan College's Dunn Center, from Feb. 8 through Mar. 21, 2021. Due to Covid restrictions there will not be an opening reception.

In June 2003, when Behr returned to Goldsboro, the city of her youth, she also returned fulltime to her love of painting. With a Masters in Fine Art degree from Syracuse University and throughout her three decades career in graphic design and advertising art direction in Minneapolis, MN, she never neglected her love for drawing and painting. Since her first solo show at the Arts Council of Wayne County in 2004, Behr has been exhibiting her paintings in museums as well as numerous galleries across the state.

Many of her paintings are of a narrative genre and show everyday life and candid portraits of people in eastern Carolina. She will also capture noteworthy events around the country and work those up from photographs. Behr is skillful in drawing with a sharp eye for meaningful detail and with the development of color in her painterly style breathes an engaging vitality into her paintings. Weather-permitting, she daily paints plein air outdoors at some location that has peaked her interest or needed for commissioned work.

The Greenville Museum of Art in Greenville, NC, and Iredell Museums in Statesville, NC, have granted the artist solo exhibitions. In 2015 she was awarded the North Carolina Seafood Festival Commemorative Poster Artist; and in September of the same year she won 1st place in painting at the North Carolina State Fair. In 2016 one of her oil paintings was selected for the permanent collection of the Fort Wayne Museum of Fine Art in Indiana. At the Wilmington Art Association's Annual Spring Show 2018, one of Behr's oil paintings was awarded Best in Show. She has been featured three times in Our State Magazine, and is included in several books Distinctive North Carolina, Volumes I and II; Painting North Carolina: Impressions en plein air; Painting North Carolina: A Visual Journey, also Strokes of Genius 4: The Best of Drawing. Eight of Brenda's watercolors now hang permanently on walls of the Chapel Hill campus of the University of North Carolina.

Work by Brenda Behr

Behr is a member of Oil Painters of America, the American Impressionist Society and the Portrait Society of America. She is a signature member of the Watercolor Society of North Carolina.

North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh Offers Egyptian Mummies

The North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC, will present Golden Mummies of Egypt, on view in the East Building, Level B, Meymandi Exhibition Gallery, from Feb. 13 through July 11, 2021.

The Golden Mummies of Egypt comes from the Manchester Museum in England, it is the exhibition's first appearance at an American art museum. The exhibit features eight extraordinary gilded mummies and more than 100 related objects including papyri, jewelry, ceramics, and deities that connect the domestic, daily sphere of these Greco-Roman Egyptians to the religious world of the gods.

Golden Mummies of Egypt explores beliefs about the afterlife during the relatively little-known era when Egypt was part of the Greek and Roman worlds (circa 300 B.C.E.–200 C.E.). In a series of lavishly illustrated thematic sections, it showcases the outstanding collections of the Manchester Museum to allow visitors to examine life for the wealthy in multicultural Roman Egypt, where diverse Egyptian, Roman, and Greek communities and cultural influences were blended.

"People have been clamoring for mummies since I joined the Museum in 2005," says Egyptologist and Curator of Ancient Art Caroline Rocheleau. "Manchester Museum has made this happen in a most spectacular way. What I love about this exhibition is that it's more than just mummies—it's about hopes for the afterlife at a time in Egypt when Egyptian, Greek, and Roman cultures blended together."

Excavated from Hawara, Egypt, south of modern-day Cairo, the mummies and related objects offer glimpses into where the people lived, what they believed, and their unique blend of cultural traditions during this time. The exhibition sends visitors on a journey exploring seven key themes: life in a multicultural society, ideas about the afterlife, becoming a god, the art of identity, meeting the gods, preserving the body, and the mummies' modern discovery.

The practices of preservation and decoration of the body, and the transformation of the deceased into a god, are spectacularly shown by the mummies on display. The exhibition also traces expectations for the afterlife and introduces cultural constructions of identity, strikingly demonstrated by haunting painted panel portraits. These portraits not only preserve a rare corpus of ancient painting but also present modern viewers with a series of human likenesses that literally and figuratively bring them face to face with the past.

Visitors can learn more about three of the mummies by using digital interactives to see underneath the wrappings, thanks to data gathered through digital radiography paired with multidirectional CT scanning. They will explore the gold coverings, or gilded skin, that transformed these everyday citizens into gods, using the power of this eternal metal that won't tarnish or decay. A catalogue with deeper context about these objects, the excavation, and more, will be available for sale in the Museum Store.

"Golden Mummies of Egypt represents a crossroads of cultures, where elaborate, deliberate preparations for the afterlife were informed by multiple time periods and geographies," said Museum Director Valerie Hillings. "Using art and science together, we're able to explore concepts around humanity, divinity, and ideals of eternal beauty."

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Fine Art Print Works

FRANK Gallery in Chapel Hill, NC, is presenting an Invitational Print Show, on view through Feb. 6, 2021.

FRANK Gallery is currently hosting an exhibition highlighting the work of five regional printmakers. The works of Raj Bunnag, Bill Fick, Ellen Heck, Heather Muise and Dominick Rapone reflect several different printmaking techniques and styles.

Bill Fick is a member of Duke University's Art Department and also Assistant Director, Visual and Studio Arts at Duke's Rubenstein Arts Center. His work in this exhibition deals with a variety of sociopolitical and satirical themes aimed at reflecting society's fear and anxiety emanating from the current COVID-19 pandemic.

Durham, NC, print artist Raj Bunnag's large intricate linocuts are from his series March of the Druggernauts: Fantastical Manifestations of the War on Drugs. In this series Bunnag examines the monstrous impact our nation's drug policies have had on the world at large. His intent is to challenge our perceptions of what we know about drugs, prohibition, and addiction.

Winston-Salem, NC, print artist Ellen Heck combines two print processes: relief and intaglio. She builds up flat layers of color over a series of reduction woodcuts culminating with a final tonal layer of aquatint and dry point on copper. The artist's three prints in the show take the point of view of an observer watching a printmaker at work.

use esoteric, codified and symbolic imagery that conjures up the ideas of magic, divination and possibilities that may or may not exist in our world.

Dominick Rapone teaches at the Craft Center at NC State and Super G Print lab in Durham. His works in the show are silkscreens that are made one-of-one with flat areas of transparent color layered over paint brushes with drawing as a final layer. Before relocating to the Triangle Rapone taught at the School of Visual Arts and other noteworthy arts institutions in New York City.

Some Exhibits That Are Still On View

Our policy at Carolina Arts is to present a press release about an exhibit only once and then go on, but many major exhibits are on view for months. This is our effort to remind you of some of them.

Work by Barb Bordogna

The Artists Collective | Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting The Art of Survival, on view through Feb. 27, 2021, that explores how regional artists have been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic and expressed its influence creatively. The exhibit has more than 70 visual artists from Upstate South Carolina participating. All pandemic safety protocols will be observed when entering the building. "This exhibition was conceived in early April of this year when I was sharing on Facebook with some fellow artists how it felt to get motivated to work when all else was falling apart due to the pandemic," the Collective's Board Chair Beth Regula said. In addition to the art being on physical display in the Collective's Solomon Gallery, images of the entries will be posted to the Collective's website, (ArtistsCollectiveSpartanburg.org). For further information visit (ArtsCollectiveSpartanburg.org).

Work by Virginia Scotchie

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, is presenting Fantastical Forms: Ceramics as Sculpture, on view through Apr. 5, 2021. The 25 works in this exhibition - curated by associate curator Whitney

Richardson - highlight the Museum's Collection of sculptural ceramics from the last two decades of the 20th century to the present. Each work illustrates the artist's ability to push beyond the utilitarian and transition ceramics into the world of sculpture. North and South Carolina artists featured include: Elma McBride Johnson, Neil Noland, Norm Schulman, Virginia Scotchie, Cynthia Bringle, Jane Palmer, Michael Sherrill, and Akira Satake. Works by American artists Don Reitz, Robert Chapman Turner, Karen Karnes, Toshiko Takaezu, Bill Griffith, and Xavier Toubes are also featured in the exhibition. The Museum is also offering both onsite and virtual programs; a full calendar can be found at (ashevilleart.org/events).

Work by Daly Smith

The Franklin G. Burroughs • Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, is presenting the 18th National Exhibition of the American Society of Marine Artists, on view through Apr. 17, 2021. Marine art is a genre that depicts maritime activities, inshore and harbor scenes, naval scenes, ship portraits, waterscapes and marine wildlife. Marine art took root as its own genre during the Dutch Golden Age of the 17th century, when artists began to make their careers by specializing in naval and trade ship portraits and scenes. Many of the conventions of the Dutch tradition of marine painting are still practiced today. The Romantic period of the 1900s ushered in the dawn of the popularity of the seascape, making waterscapes absent of vessels common for the first time. European marine artists, who came to America, helped establish this genre in prosperous port cities, including Boston, New York and Salem. its exhibit The Enveloping Landscape: A Contemplative Photographic Journey, on view in the Baker Exhibit Center Gallery, through May 2, 2021. What began as an individual documentary photography project has turned into a unique collaboration between the Arboretum, an environmental artist, and members of the local community that encourages meaningful dialogue, and most importantly, inspires an increased commitment to caring for our planet. The Enveloping Landscape started as a project launched by documentary photographer Susan Patrice in 2016. Using contemplative photography practices and hand-built cameras designed to produce round images, Patrice captured the same three square-miles of forest for two years, both in and around the Arboretum. The North Carolina Pottery Center in Seagrove, NC, is present several new exhibits including: North Carolina Ceramic

Gems, on view through June 19, 2021, and Raku: Spontaneity in the Flames, on view through June 19, 2021. North Carolina has a large number of potters all making their own ceramic gems ranging from historical to utilitarian to more contemporary. This show, Ceramic Gems, focuses on the work of a dozen of those potters. Featured artists include: Stanley Mace Andersen, Alan Bennett, Marina Bosetti, Benjamin Burns, Terry Childress, Garry Childs, Becky Lloyd, Chris Luther, Dian Magic, Michael & Ruth Fisher Rutkowsky, Brad Tucker, and Jim Whalen. Raku pottery incorporates elements of knowledge, experience, excitement, unpredictability, and spontaneity, and is somewhat akin to a semi-controlled convergence of science, craft, art, and magic with a bit of chaos thrown in for good measure. Come see a colorful variety of Western-style work by a number of North Carolina's Raku potters from across the state, in the exhibit, Raku: Spontaneity in the Flames, and learn more about the making of Raku. Featured artists include: Edge Barnes, Steven Forbes-deSoule, David & Deborah Garner, Katherine Graham, Delores Hayes, Harry Hearne, Charlotte Munning, Phil Pollet, Colleen Black Semelka, Andy Smith, Courtney Tomchik, and Dan Triage. port in Charleston County. This exhibit will create an immersive experience for visitors. In the areas of civic engagement, racial disparities, the environment and performance art/music, this exhibit will aim to connect the dots from historical data and archival information up to the present conditions of the Lowcountry. "Resilient". Local artist Chris "Kolpeace" Johnson will highlight the power of being resilient with this work that recognizes African Americans who have shown strength through adversity including the late local activist Muhiyidin D'baha and Cyntoia Brown, who faced life in prison after being convicted of homicide as a juvenile. These pieces are tributes to memorialize the impactful strength of an unsung hero in the community, engaging the soul and spirit. "The African Origins of Mathematics". Charleston resident and artist Robert "King David" Ross highlights the direct impact Africa has had on modern mathematics in this exhibit. Showcasing the first math instrument, the Ishango bone, the exhibit allows visitors to see the influence Africa has had on every aspect of life. Admission: Free. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-5pm, with guided tours at 10:30am, 11:30am, 1:30pm, 2:30pm, and 3:30pm. Contact: 843/805-5507 or visit (www.cofc.edu/avery).

Gibbes Museum of Art, 135 Meeting Street, Charleston. Gallery 9, Through Apr. 18 - "In Body and Soul: The Figure in Modernist Photography." The Gibbes Museum of Art, home to one of the foremost collections of American art, will celebrate the art and storytelling power of film and photography with the launch of an all-new, in-person film series, "Gibbes Film in Focus", and a virtual lecture series, "Depth of Field: Perspectives on 20th Century Photography." Launching in February 2021, both programs will coincide with the Gibbes' upcoming exhibition. Drawn from the Robert Marks Collection, this exhibition features thirty photographs by renowned 20th century photographers. From Alfred Stieglitz's intimate composite portraits of Georgia O'Keeffe to Lewis Hines's depictions of American laborers, modernist-era photographers radically shifted how the human body was captured on film and for what purpose. Employing a variety of techniques from cropping and zooming, to distortion and framing, photographers explored the human figure for social, performative, voyeuristic, and documentary purposes. Gallery 8, Through Apr. 18 - "Manning Williams: Reinventing Narrative Painting". Williams's paintings are rooted in the history, traditions, and terrain of the South Carolina Lowcountry. A Charleston native and lifelong resident, Williams (American, 1939-2012) earned degrees from the College of Charleston and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. His highly personal approach to realist painting emphasized storytelling and was fueled by an interest in portraying subjects that he found on the periphery of the city and along the barrier islands. Western subjects also commanded Williams's attention, and during the later years of his career his concern with narrative was expressed in a more abstract style. Reinventing Narrative Painting features thirty paintings from Williams's prolific career that spanned more than forty years. Galleries Two & Three, Through June 27 - "Charleston Collects: Devotion and Fantasy, Witchcraft and the World's End". This selection of paintings and prints from a major, private, Charleston collection of Northern Renaissance art introduces a world of intensely, and sometimes disturbingly, vivid imagery that speaks to uncertainties of the period and remains relevant today. This exhibition is a selection of art curated by Lawrence Goedde, Ph.D., professor of art history at the University of Virginia. The collection, which is comprised of objects created in the Low Countries and Germany between 1440 and 1590, showcases a world of contradictions and unease—whether the subject is a troubled Virgin Mary contemplating her young son, or a menacing group of malevolent figures inspired by Hieronymus Bosch, or Albrecht Dürer's famous scenes from Revelations. In the turbulent era of the Renaissance and beginning of the Reformation in Northern Europe, patrons found their hopes, desires and anxieties mirrored in these artistic images, further inspiring pious beliefs or depicting fantastic visions of good and evil. Galleries 1, 4, and 5, Permanent Exhibition - "18th and 19th Century American Paintings and Sculpture". American paintings, from colonial portraits to Civil War-era landscapes, occupy the Gibbes Main Gallery. Portraits of leading political, social, and military figures include works by Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Benjamin West, Gilbert Stuart, Thomas Sully and Samuel F.B. Morse. The gallery also features landscape and genre scenes by Angelica Kaufmann, Louis Mignot, Eastman Johnson, Conrad Wise Chapman, and William Aiken Walker. The paintings collection is complemented by examples of neoclassical sculpture on view in the Campbell Rotunda, and decorative art objects on loan from the Rivers Collection. Gallery 5, Permanent Exhibition - "Miniature Portraits". The first American miniature portraits were painted in Charleston, and today the Gibbes is home to one of the most prestigious portrait miniature collections in the United States. Containing more than six hundred objects, the collection spans nearly two hundred years and represents the work of over a hundred artists.

Small enough to fit in the palm of the hand, these tiny portraits were treasured remembrances of loved ones in the age before photography. Presented in state-of-the-art display cases, and in viewable storage drawers featured miniatures include works by Mary Roberts, Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Charles Wilson Peale, Pierre Henri, Edward Greene Malbone, George Engleheart, and Charles Fraser. Gallery 6, Permanent Exhibition - "20th Century American Regionalism and the Charleston Renaissance". At the turn of the twentieth century, American artists looked to their European counterparts and beyond as they developed identifiably American artistic movements. Two particularly strong influences during this time period were French Impressionism and Japanese woodblock prints. Another prevailing theme during this period was the growing interest in American subject matter. American regionalism and social realism played important roles in the development of art in Charleston, which flourished as a destination for artists, particularly during the years of 1915 to 1945 a period now known as the Charleston Renaissance.

Gallery 7, Permanent Exhibition - "Modern and Contemporary". Modern and contemporary art in America encompasses a wide range of styles, subject matter, and media. As a whole, the diversity of modern and contemporary art reflects the rich and varied heritage of our nation and the lowcountry region. Works in this gallery were created over the past forty years by artists who are native to the area, who have worked here, or who have created objects that reflect the complex story of the region. The works are grouped to reflect several themes including the southern landscape, the human figure, abstraction, and the legacy of slavery in America. Ruth and Bill Baker Art Sales Gallery, Through Feb. 7 - "Mementos Entwined: The Sentimental Art of Hairwork by Gina Iacovelli". Iacovelli was an artist in residence at the Gibbes Museum from Oct. 26 - Nov. 22, 2020. While at the Gibbes, Iacovelli demonstrated hairwork and weave techniques on her homemade braiding table, while sharing her research into hairwork history and how it was shaped by evolving concepts of life and death. "Mementos Entwined" explores sentimental tokens and the deeply rooted connection between life and death. Through Feb. 7 - "How it Was... Charleston in 1963 by Andrea Hazel". Hazel was an artist in residence at the Gibbes Museum Oct. 26 - Nov. 22, 2020. "How It Was...Charleston in 1963," depicts scenes of homes and communities that have been demolished and displaced in the wake of Charleston's rapid growth and development. Hazel is a member of the Southern Watercolor Society, the South Carolina Watermedia Society and the Charleston Artist Guild. Museum Shop - Now offering the inventory of the Tradd Street Press, reproductions of works by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner among other exhibit related art objects. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Admission: Yes. Contact: 843/722-2706 or at (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

The Charleston Museum, 360 Meeting Street, Charleston. Founded in 1773, is America's first museum. Lowcountry Photography Gallery, Through Apr. 4 - "Portraits Of The Lowcountry: Cased Images From The Archives". We're bringing it back! Because the Museum had to close its doors in the middle of the exhibit earlier this year, we decided to bring it back! In case you missed it, a selection of daguerreotypes, ambrotypes and tintypes will once again be exhibited featuring individual and family portraits of the Lowcountry. The invention of photography made it possible to record an accurate portrait, rather than an artist's notion. For the first time a true portrayal of the sitter, who oftentimes wanted their image immortalized performing a particular task or with specific props, could be captured. Textile Gallery, Through Apr. 25 - "Designers & Artisans: Made In The Lowcountry". What does it mean to be a maker? This exhibit explores the designers and artisans working in the Lowcountry from the 18th century to the present day, and how creativity and identity go hand-in-hand. Designers and artisans play an important role in the Lowcountry, as makers of both goods that serve a purpose and artistic creations that inspire the community. With objects ranging from 1788 to 2019 and grouped by craft, this exhibition displays some of the finest textile artistry from the Museum's collection, and examines what it means to be a maker, both amateur and professional. Ongoing - "Becoming Americans: Charleston in the Revolutionary War". Charleston played a critical role in the Revolutionary War. South Carolina was the wealthiest of the thirteen rebellious colonies and Charleston was its key port to maintain its trade with the outside world. The British would make three attempts against the city during the Revolutionary War. Their defeat at the Battle of Sullivan's Island on June 28, 1776 was a crucial patriot victory, which convinced many that independence could be achieved. The Siege of Charleston, meanwhile, was the longest siege of the Revolutionary War and the largest battle in South Carolina. These events and others are chronicled in the new exhibit, which will also feature artifacts and period images that have not been exhibited at the Museum before. Ongoing - Featuring the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific collections in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm

& through the Summer months, Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 843/722-2996 or at (www.charlestonmuseum.org).

Columbia Area

Columbia Museum of Art, Main & Hampton Streets, Columbia. Feb. 6 - June 6 - "The Imaginative Worlds of M.C. Escher," with a free public preview day on Friday, Feb. 5. A consummate boundary-pusher and arguably the most famous printmaker of the modern era, Maurits Cornelius Escher (1898-1972) used his art to challenge perspectives, deftly exploring the relationships between art and science, reality and illusion, chaos and order, and logic and absurdity. "Escher has to be one of the most recognized artists of the 20th century. His mind-bending, reality-warping prints include subjects like infinite staircases, tessellating birds changing into fish and back again, and two hands drawing each other," says CMA Executive Director Della Watkins. "His work is known and beloved today by everyone from kids to designers to scientists, and we're looking forward to sharing it with all our visitors." Through Jan. 1, 2025 - "The Collection". Come see the newly organized collection. We've gathered ancient and modern works of art, together in one space, that explore our shared archetypes, myths, and ideals. Galleries 5 & 6, Ongoing - "Modern & Contemporary Art from the Collection". Celebrating some of the CMA's greatest hits, this exhibition features over 30 paintings, drawings, photographs and sculptures from the Museum's collection that have not been on view recently. It offers the visitor experiences both serious and sensual and is designed to both entertain and enlighten. Notable works included are by Jasper Johns, Howard Thomas, Sally Mann and Edward Ruscha, whose famous image of the Hollywood Hills (on view) has become a staple of the art world. Ray Taylor Fair Gallery, Ongoing - Featuring a new and permanent installation of its ancient art collection. The installation includes approximately 50 objects that introduce the major ancient civilizations from the Mediterranean and Near East. Examples of the earliest form of writing from 12th century B.C. Mesopotamia, are shown next to Egyptian scarabs and Greek painted vessels. The world of the ancient Romans is represented by 2nd century glass and bronze items and portrait sculpture. Many of these works have not been seen since the Museum moved to its location on Main Street in 1998. The collection has grown over the last several years with the donation of 12 fine Roman sculptures in 2002 from Pennsylvania collector Dr. Robert Y. Turner. Admission: Yes, but there is no admission charge on Sun. Hours: Tue.-Sun., from 10am-5pm. Contact: 803/799-2810 or at (www.columbiamuseum.org).

Work by Amanda Smith

McMaster Gallery, room 119, basement level, McMaster Building, 1615 Senate Street, Columbia. Through Feb. 18 - "Restless Sleepers," featuring works by Amanda Smith. Smith is an award-winning interdisciplinary artist based in Missouri, where she is an Assistant Professor of Painting and Drawing at Missouri State University. Smith's exhibition at McMaster Gallery, "Restless Sleepers", features hybrid quilt paintings and cushion-stuffed works which challenge our common associations of quilts as sources of comfort and conduits to rest. Her works tap into our collective unease about transitioning environmental, political, and social landscapes. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-4:30pm. Contact: Olga Dickey, Gallery Director, at 803/422-4289 or e-mail to (yukhno@mailbox.sc.edu).

701 Center for Contemporary Art, 701 Whaley St., Columbia. Main Gallery, Through Feb. 28 - "Lori Larusso Feast & Foe". Much of the work in the exhibition was developed during a residency at 701cca. Larusso deals with food, domestic labor and giving care. She explores how food, its preparation and presentation and its role in caregiving differs between socio-economic groups and changes over time. Her meticulous process, involving skill and labor beyond precise painting, echoes domestic labor. Her colorful shaped paintings of food and food-related items are seductive, reductive and surprising, inviting viewers to reexamine seemingly common objects and ideas. Hours: Wed.-Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 803/238-2351 or at (www.701cca.org).

SC State Museum, 301 Gervais St., Columbia. Ongoing - "Early American Face Vessels from the George H. Meyer Collection". This new exhibit features collection of more than 100 early American face vessels, this exhibition offers a rare opportunity to trace the development of this tradition as it unfolded in regions east of the Mississippi River and Texas, from the 1820s to circa 1945, including around 20 early face vessels from South Carolina. Ongoing - "The Graphic Eye: South Carolina and the Intersection of Art and Design," showcases a century of graphic design, from the 19th century to concert posters. From mass-produced media of the early 20th century to posters of today, "The Graphic Eye" explores South Carolina's strong and diverse connection to the graphic arts. Guests are invited to examine the difference between art and design and consider when art can also be design and vice versa. Ongoing - "A Voice of Her Own: South Carolina Women in Politics". This exhibit celebrates the 100th Anniversary of the 19th Amendment, which guaranteed women the right to vote. This exhibit features objects, images and stories showing the ways South Carolina women engaged with the political history of our state. From tribal women leaders, to the first female Governor of the state, this exhibit shows how women worked to gain a voice of their own. The exhibit is free with museum general admission. The Crescent Café, second floor mezzanine of the Museum. The house menu offers a variety of baked goods, juices, coffee, hot chocolate and tea. Luncheon offerings include deli sandwiches and alternating daily soups, as well as grilled chicken salads and sandwiches. And let's not forget the house specialty: spectacular fudge, handmade on-site. Hours through Feb. 28, the museum will be closed on Mon. and Tues. each week, and open Wed.-Sat., from 10am-5pm and Sun., from noon-5pm. Admission: Yes. Contact: call 803/898-4921 or at (<http://scmuseum.org/>).

Works by Carey Morton

Hyman Fine Arts Center, Francis Marion University, Florence. Kassab Gallery, Through Feb. 18 - "Carey Morton: Future Relic". "I pursue the unification of opposing forces. Religious iconography, modern technology, ancient myth and the natural world coalesce in forged steel, wood, and found objects. These materials combine from the minimal to the theatrical. Seeking to expose the nuances that lie within the extremes of life the resulting works become complex symbolic structures in which we can consider past, present and future," says Morton. Feb. 23 - Apr. 1 - "Charles Clary: Handcut Paper Art". Charles Clary was born in 1980 in Morristown, Tennessee. He received his BFA in painting with honors from Middle Tennessee State University and his MFA in painting from the Savannah College of Art and Design. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8:30am-5pm. Contact: 843/661-1385.

University Place Gallery, Francis Marion University, 142 North Dargan Street, Florence. Through Feb. 26 - "[SUB]LIMINAL," is a multimedia painting exhibition by artist Ashley Hamilton. Hamilton's emotionally charged work addresses themes of loss, meditation, grief and joy. The artist's sensitivity to the human experience is conveyed through vibrantly colored paintings which range in size from the very small to large scale works. Images are abstracted repetitively and completed through a process of excavation and multilayering that includes acrylic, spray paint, oil pastels, and paint pens. Hours: Tue.-Fri., noon-5pm. Contact: Colleen Critcher at 843/661-4637, 843/661-4638 or at (<https://www.fmarion.edu/universityplace/>).

Greenville County Museum of Art, 420 College Street, Greenville. Closed for renovations. Ongoing - "The Real Thing". Selected from the GCMA permanent collection, The Real Thing reflects the authenticity of experience that informed the creation of powerful works by African-American artists. The exhibition title is derived from the 1968 song Ain't Nothing Like the Real Thing, written by Nickolas Ashford and Valerie Simpson and originally performed by Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell. Ongoing - "Andrew Wyeth: Eight Decades". Andrew Wyeth (1917 - 2009), regarded as one of the most important American artists of the 20th century, launched his career in 1937 with a sold-out exhibition of his watercolors in New York. On the occasion of the young artist's remarkable debut, his father and mentor, noted illustrator N.C. Wyeth wrote him a congratulatory letter prophesying, "You are headed in the direction that should finally reach the pinnacle in American art." Ongoing - "Impressionism and the South 2019". On April 15, 1874, in an act of defiance against the official French government-sanctioned Salon exhibitions, thirty self-proclaimed Independent artists opened an exhibition at photographer Nadar's vacated Paris studio. Shortly after, a satirical review that mocked Claude Monet's Impression, Sunrise gave the movement its name. Impressionism was the first bombshell launched against academic tradition. The movement defined light as color, becoming the first modern language of paint. Ongoing - "Art and Artists of South Carolina: David Drake, Jasper Johns, William H. Johnson, and Grainger McKoy". The contributions of South Carolina artists to our culture are as varied and rich as the stories of the artists themselves. The GCMA is proud to dedicate an entire gallery to the accomplishments of four of the nation's greatest artists, each of whom has called South Carolina home. Ongoing - "How? Who? Why?". According to Rod Stewart, every picture tells a story. Whether its subject is a familiar Old Testament morality tale or an apocalyptic warning of impending nuclear doom, the physical process of making a picture (or a print, painting, or sculpture) sometimes assumes an equal role in the story's telling. If nothing else, the manipulation of a medium can be the message. Admission: Free. Hours: Wed.-Sat., 10am-6pm and Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 864/271-7570 or at (www.gcma.org).

Visual Arts Institute, on the Greer Campus of Greenville Technical College about 4 miles north of Greer on Highway 290, Locust Hill Road, Taylors. Benson Campus Galleries, Through Feb. 19 - "Alabama, Y'all," is a collection of Alabama photographs and sculptures made by an Alabama collector, Patrick Owens. His Alabama fascination began with childhood family trips to the home place in Tuskegee. Though never an Alabama resident, he was bred of Alabama stock. His people, his roots, his family stories and myths are all Alabama born. Now and particularly over the past decade, Owens makes intentional, frequent trips to Alabama to glean the landscape for images and detritus to bring home to his South Carolina studio. Each image, each discarded bit has its own origin story and its own history of usefulness. Owens has reimagined these stories making them his own. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-5pm. Contact: Laraine Wells, Administrative Assistant at 864/848-2023 or e-mail at (laraine.wells@gvltec.edu).

Orangeburg

Cecil Williams Civil Rights Museum, 1865 Lake Drive, Orangeburg. Ongoing - Established in 2019, the exquisite ultra-modern facility displays 1000 images of the Civil Rights Movement, but from the perspective of The Epochal South Carolina Events That Changed America. The massive archives comprise the largest collection of images of this type among all museums in the United States; including the Atlanta based High Museum which archives 300 images. The images were created by the founder, Cecil Williams, who began photography at age 9 and covered almost all historically significant events in South Carolina; from 1950 Briggs v. Elliot in Summerton, thru the 1969 Charleston Hospital Workers' Strike...and Beyond. From 1955 through 1969, Williams was a freelance journalist for "JET" magazine. His images have appeared in thousands of magazines, newspapers, historical publications, and motion picture productions. The museum design itself is part of the founders' DNA because; upon graduating from high school, Williams wanted to attend Clemson University to study architecture but denied because of his race. He then purchased a drafting board and through the years, designed three residences; including one featured in "EBONY", and the museum's design which has evolved into a living history facility. Hours: call ahead for hours. Contact: call 803-531-1662 or at (www.cecilwilliams.com).

Spartanburg

Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. The downtown cultural district area is often bustling with events and pedestrians, and the pedestrians rely heavily on a multitude of crosswalks to safely traverse the downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. For more info visit (<https://www.chapmanculturalcenter.org/pages/blog/detail/article/c0/a1555/>).

Work by Carol Cole Czczot

Artists Collective I Spartanburg (formerly West Main Artists Cooperative), 578 West Main St., Spartanburg. Through Feb. 27 - "The Art of Survival," an art exhibition that will explore how regional artists have been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic and expressed its influence creatively. The exhibit will have more than 70 visual artists from Upstate South Carolina participating. The general public will be able to see the exhibition Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at no charge. All pandemic safety protocols will be observed when entering the building. "This exhibition was conceived in early April of this year when I was sharing on Facebook with some fellow artists how it felt to get motivated to work when all else was falling apart due to the pandemic," the Collective's Board Chair Beth Regula said. "The discussion led to motivating each other to continue to work and create. Knowing that motivation to make art comes sometimes when an exhibit is scheduled, I proposed that we encourage each other in the community and then come together at Artists Collective I Spartanburg for an exhibit." Ongoing - The Collective features a twenty thousand square foot facility offering affordable studio space, retail space, three galleries, a full ceramics studio, printery, and works by 50 local artists. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm; with extended hours on the 3rd Thur. of each month until 9pm for Spartanburg's Art Walk. Contact: 864/804-6501 or at (artistscollectivespartanburg.org/).

Virtual Exhibitions

Through June 20, 2021 - "Expanding the Pantheon: Women R Beautiful". We are pleased to present The Mint Museum's first online exhibition. This exhibition features 26 photographs from Ruben Natal-San Miguel's Spring 2020 exhibition at Postmasters Gallery, New York City. For the last two decades, Ruben Natal-San Miguel has been challenging the expectations of who gets memorialized and celebrated in our art spaces. His portrait "Mama (Beautiful Skin)" has been one of the most impactful photographs in the Mint galleries in recent years. The woman—arms crossed, shoulders back—stares at the viewer, with confrontation that may outshine her own confidence. The bold red backdrop—a van, with slight reflections in the refulgent surface—highlights not only her stalwart posture, but also, her skin, an effect of vitiligo. The details—her skin, her cornrows, the white T-shirt, even the red van—are not elements often seen in an art gallery or museum. This is Natal-San Miguel's mission: to introduce a new range of venerated beauty for our consideration.

Asheville Area

Work by Helen Gerardia

Asheville Art Museum, 2 South Pack Square at Pack Place, Asheville. McClinton Gallery, Feb. 3 - July 26 - "Meeting the Moon," an exhibition featuring prints, photographs, ceramics, sculptures, and more from the Museum's Collection. 2021 marks the 60th anniversary of the beginning of the Apollo space program at NASA, but its inception was hardly the beginning of humankind's fascination with Earth's only moon. Before space travel existed, the moon—its shape, its mystery, and the face we see in it—inspired countless artists. Once astronauts landed on the moon and we saw our world from a new perspective, a surge of creativity flooded the American art scene, in paintings, prints, sculpture, music, crafts, film, and poetry. Through Mar. 15 - "Question Bridge: Black Males". The three-hour documentary-styled art installation "Question Bridge: Black Males" will be on view at the Asheville Art Museum. This innovative transmedia project facilitates a dialogue between Black men from diverse and contending backgrounds, and creates a platform for them to represent and redefine Black male identity in America. Through Mar. 15 - "Vantage Points: Contemporary Photography from the Whitney Museum of American Art". The exhibit features a selection of photographic works from the 1970s to the mid-2000s that highlights how photography has been used to represent individuals, places, and narratives. Drawn exclusively from the Whitney's permanent collection, this presentation includes approximately 20 artists, including Diane Arbus, Richard Avedon, Gregory Crewdson, William Eggleston, Nan Goldin, Sally Mann, Peter Hujar, Robert Mapplethorpe, Cindy Sherman, Lorna Simpson, and Andy Warhol. Through Apr. 5 - "Fantastical Forms: Ceramics as Sculpture". The 25 works in this exhibition—curated by associate curator Whitney Richardson—highlight the Museum's Collection of sculptural ceramics from the last two decades of the 20th century to the present. Each work illustrates the artist's ability to push beyond the utilitarian and transition ceramics into the world of sculpture. North and South Carolina artists featured include Elma McBride Johnson, Neil Noland, Norm Schulman, Virginia Scotchie, Cynthia Bringle, Jane Palmer, Michael Sherrill, and Akira Satake. Works by American artists Don Reitz, Robert Chapman Turner, Karen Karnes, Toshiko Takaezu, Bill Griffith, and Xavier Toubes are also featured in the exhibition. Appleby Foundation Exhibition Hall, Through Apr. 19 - "Across the Atlantic: American Impressionism through the French Lens," drawn mostly from the collection of the Reading Public Museum in Reading, PA, the exhibit explores the path to Impressionism through the 19th century in France. The show examines the relationship between French Impressionism of the 1870s and 1880s and the American interpretation of the style in the decades that followed. Ongoing - The Asheville Art Museum, the hub for 20th- and 21st-century American art in Western North Carolina, has re-opened to the public. The $24+ million, state-of-the-art facility encompasses 54,000 square feet and adds 70 percent more Collection gallery space. For the first time in the Museum's history, it has the capacity to host major traveling exhibitions from nationally recognized museums. The expansion increases its physical space and dramatically increases its role as a community center, educational resource, economic engine for WNC, and cultural concierge for the region's residents and visitors. Opening exhibitions include: "Appalachia Now! An Interdisciplinary Survey of Contemporary Art in Southern Appalachia," is the inaugural special exhibition of the newly renovated Museum. Curated by Jason Andrew, the juried exhibition features 50 artists of diverse backgrounds from the Southern Appalachian states of North Carolina, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. The exhibit provides a regional snapshot of the art of our time—a collective survey of contemporary Southern Appalachian culture. "Intersections in American Art," is the largest presentation ever drawn from the Museum's Collection of 5,000+ works and 4,000+ architectural drawings. It celebrates the unique qualities of art from Western North Carolina, placed within the context of art from across the United States. The intersections of regional and national art are highlighted throughout the galleries, as are three specific ways of understanding the works here: Time & Place; Experiments in Materials & Form; and Collaboration & Interdisciplinary Dialogue. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Fri. till 8pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 828/253-3227 or at (www.ashevilleart.org).

Asheville Gallery of Art, Ltd., 82 Patton Avenue, across from Pritchard Park opposite the old location, Asheville. Feb. 1 - 28 - "Blooms," marks Asheville Gallery of Art's second new member show of the new year and celebrates the early signs of spring through the beauty of nature, new life, and of course, florals! Viewers can expect to see a variety of work from this month's featured artists: Kate Coleman, Cynthia Llanes, Jacqueline Oliver, and Claire Simpson-Jones. From figurative work to still lifes, every piece connects with the "Blooms" theme. . . and brings a preview of what's to come. Ongoing - Featuring original works of art by 31 local artists in oils, acrylics, watercolor, pastel, encaustic, and prints. Hours: Fri. & Sat., noon-5pm or by appt. Contact: 828/251-5796 or at (www.ashevillegallery-of-art.com).

Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center, 120 College Street, Asheville. Ongoing - "Leap Then Look Digital Exhibition, a virtual exhibit at (<https://bit.ly/2lwoyku>). This digital exhibition brings together images and texts from Leap Then Look's BMCM+AC Active Archive Digital Residency. "Leap Then Look" is a collaboration between British artists Lucy Cran and Bill Leslie. Together the duo creates artworks, participatory projects, workshops, and events for people of all ages and abilities. Over the 10 days of the Active Archive residency, Leap Then Look responded to the history of BMC—the images, stories, happenings, and people. They used Instagram (@bmcmmuseum / @leap_then_look) to post archival images and quotes, and to create new work in response to the college's diverse history. Their focus was on process, experience, and material exploration. It was an invitation to the public to join in actively engaging with the archival material, opening up the historical archive and practices of Black Mountain College, making them relevant and accessible for the twenty-first century. Ongoing - An exhibition space dedicated to exploring the history and legacy of the world's most acclaimed experimental educational community, Black Mountain College. Hours: Wed.-Sat., noon-4pm or by appt. Contact: 828/350-8484 or at (www.blackmountaincollege.org).

Center for Craft, 67 Broadway, Asheville. Ongoing - Encompassing an additional 7,000 square feet of program space, including expanded galleries, event and meeting spaces, and coworking space serving the creative sector, this one-of-a-kind National Craft Innovation Hub will engage both the national craft community and western North Carolina residents, further establishing the Center for Craft as a thought-leader in what craft means today, as well as how to support emerging voices and makers. Work by Holly Roberts

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Mezzanine Gallery, Through Feb. 6 - "Afterimage Anxiety: Joshua Rose." "Perhaps I am just in awe of everything when I settle down to really look at things," says Joshua Rose. Community Gallery, Through Feb. 6 - "Rain and the River: Jacklyn St. Aubyn." Painter Jacklyn St. Aubyn creates a magical space in which things aren't what they appear to be. First perceptions may be misleading. She has landscapes and interiors in mind as she works, but not in the realistic sense; rather, she conjures imaginary spaces that defy logic. Mayer Gallery, Through Feb. 6 - "CANTAR DE CIEGOS/ SONG OF THE BLIND: Esperanza Cortés". In conjunction with the 42nd anniversary Tri-State Sculpture Conference, the Turchin Center for the Visual Arts is proud to partner with the 2020 Conference Chair, Travis Donovan, assistant professor of sculpture, Department of Art in Appalachian State University's College of Fine and Applied Arts to host the conference and bring the award-winning sculptor, Esperanza Cortés to campus as a keynote speaker and guest artist for an exhibition. Tri-State Sculptors is an association of education sculptors in the Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina areas. Main Gallery, Through June 5 - "Fictive Strategies: Suzanne Sbarge & Holly Roberts". Sbarge and Roberts share a similar sensibility; they both use collage, weaving textures and images into surrealist enigmatic artworks that open subconscious doorways into the ambiguous space of the night: haunting dreams brim with narrative probability remaining stubbornly resistant to a literal interpretation. Both artists live in and are intimately familiar with the New Mexico landscape where a deep stillness is part of the character of both the land and the people who inhabit it. - Excerpt from Mary Anne Redding. Gallery A, Through May 1 - "Refugium: Christina Laurel". Laurel is a paper artist creating installations and two-dimensional art, all with a Japanese aesthetic. Her mission is to create an "exhale" moment, an oasis that offers a respite and refuge from our daily sensory overload. Suspended lace panels support a migrating pattern of butterflies that cast shadows and respond to air movement. Perambulating - whether with shoes, walker or wheelchair - through the suspended cocoons and grounded totems of "Refugium," the viewer will become a part of the installation and a part of the art. Gallery B, Through May 1 - "Longing for Amelia - The Historical and Mythological Landscape: Matthew Arnold". On May 20, 1937, Amelia Earhart and navigator Fred Noonan took off from Oakland, California on the first leg of their historic round-the-world flight. They disappeared 43 days later while trying to locate tiny Howland Island in the remote Pacific. 83 years after Earhart's disappearance her legend survives in the many individuals still searching for evidence of what happened to her on that fateful day in 1937. With this photographic project, Matthew Arnold documents the environs that play host to the many theories which attempt to resolve the mystery of Amelia Earhart's disappearance. The work presented here is from the first stage of Arnold's project—a five-week expedition to the outer reaches of the Northern Mariana and Marshall Islands, photographing the seascapes and landscapes specific to the "Japanese Capture" theory. It is a theory that involves a forced landing in fortified Japanese territory followed by capture, imprisonment, and possible execution at the hands of their Imperial Navy. Hours: 10am-6pm, Tue., Wed., Thur., & Sat. and Fri., noon-8pm. Contact: Hank T. Foreman at 828/262-3017 or at (www.turchincenter.org).

Chapel Hill - Carrboro

Work by Shanequa Gay

Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Held over until Mar. 28 - "Yayoi Kusama: Open the Shape Called Love," featuring early works on paper from the 1950s, a full range of intimate "dot paintings" and "net paintings," examples of provocative sculpture and multi-media work, and one tabletop mirror box. Held over until July 4 - "Instruments of Divination in Africa: Works from the Collection of Rhonda Morgan Wilkerson, Ph.D.", a special installation featuring sculptures and other objects used by diviners in Central and West African cultures, has also been extended. Through July 4 - "holding space for nobility: a memorial for Breonna Taylor". Breonna Taylor was fatally shot by officers of the Louisville Metro Police Department after they forced entry into her home on March 13, 2020. She was twenty-six years old. In the months since her death, her story has become a part of national conversations about racial violence and an impetus for activism against systemic injustices. In this immersive commission, artist Shanequa Gay (American, born 1977) transforms the museum's mixed-use ART& room into an area that can "hold space" for Taylor's memory. Through acrylics and oils, Gay renders publicly shared images of Taylor's face from happy times in her life as a reminder of her roles as daughter, niece, friend, and, as Gay writes, "someone who was loved and is worthy of justice and being seen." Through Sept. 12 - "Clouding: Shape and Sign in Asian Art". This year-long installation explores the diverse forms and functions of clouds in the arts of Asia, juxtaposing works of art in different media and from different time periods spanning the Bronze Age to the present. Museum Store Gallery (Franklin and Columbia Street), Store hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5:30pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Charlotte Area

Bechtler Museum of Modern Art, Levine Center for the Arts, 420 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Fourth-Floor Gallery, Now - "TEN". Since the Bechtler Museum of Modern Art opened our doors in 2010, we have hosted more than thirty modern art exhibitions. TEN features a selection of works from sixteen past fourth-floor exhibitions, all brought together to showcase the excellence and share the joy of the Bechtler collection as we look back at the past decade in celebration of our ten-year anniversary. Second-Floor Gallery, Through July 4 - "Josef Albers: The Interaction of Color". The exhibition is inspired by the Bechtler Museum's rare German edition of The Interaction of Color, featuring 81 silkscreen color studies that serve as a record of Albers's experiential way of studying and teaching color. Born in Germany in 1888, Josef Albers was one of the most influential artist-educators of the 20th century. Best known for his iconic color square paintings, his exploration and expansion of complex color theory principles and dedication to experiential education based on observation and experimentation, radically altered the trajectory of arts education in the United States. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miro, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon., Wed.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Sun. noon-5pm; and open until 9pm the 1st and 3rd. Fri. of each month. Contact: 704/353-9200 or at (www.bechtler.org).

Elizabeth Ross Gallery, Central Piedmont Community College, Central Campus, Overcash Performing Arts Center, Elizabeth Avenue and Kings Dr., Charlotte. Through Mar. 11 - "Into Memory," a solo exhibition featuring work by Monique Luck. Mixed media artist, Luck artfully arranges collage pieces in a desired way, all the while contemplating how simple it would be if we could rearrange the pieces of life in a similar fashion. Her muse is the human figure in mixed media. Monique's work evokes an emotive response speaking to personal loss. While misfortune may be unavoidable, it remains a common thread uniting us all. We live through a time of fear and uncertainty threatening to tear us apart, but by coming together we, like Luck's artwork, form a cohesive and harmonious picture. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-2pm. Contact: 704/330-6211.

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, Levine Center for the Arts, 551 S. Tryon St., Charlotte. Ongoing - "Inter | Sectionality: Diaspora Art from the Creole City," is a bold, multi-regional, multi disciplinary curatorial collaboration and exploration of the emergence of the "Creole City" as a local, regional and global phenomenon. Internationally recognized curators, Sanjit Sethi, former Director of the Corcoran School of Arts and Design and Rosie Gordon-Wallace, founder and chief curator of the Diaspora Vibe Cultural Arts Incubator, Inc. (DVCAI) of Miami, Florida, have designed this collaboration to provide a lens through which communities and community leaders internationally can begin to better understand themselves, their diversities and their unlimited possibilities. This global exhibition represents 25 Miami based artists, 17 countries and two Charlotte guest artists—Monique Luck and Stephanie J. Woods. Ongoing - "... and justice for all". America has the highest incarceration rate in the world. In just 40 years, those confined in this country's prisons and jails has grown 500%. Over 2 million people are incarcerated today. This rise is not due to increased criminal activity, but the callous and inequitable execution of the nation's laws and public policies. While 37% of the country's population represents people of color, an incongruous 67% make up the prison population. ... and justice for all illuminates this racially unjust system. Ongoing - Featuring selections from the John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art, one of the nation's most important and comprehensive collections of African-American art. Hours: Thur. - Sat., noon-6pm & Sun., noon-6pm. Extended hours from noon-8pm on Fridays, Oct. 2, Nov. 6 & Dec. 4. Contact: 704/547-3700 or at (www.ganttcenter.org).

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Visit the Mint Museum at Home at (<https://mintmuseum.org/museum-at-home/>). Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers, Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kojo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic works. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Now - The Mint Museum's new four-story installation "Foragers" offers a transcendent experience while celebrating the tradition of women as makers and providers. Unlike anything ever seen at The Mint Museum before, Brooklyn-based artist Summer Wheat's "Foragers" is a monumental piece of public work of art spanning 96 windows, four stories, and 3,720 square feet at Mint Museum Uptown's Robert Haywood Morrison Atrium. The myriad of vibrant panels that give the illusion of stained glass and celebrates the tradition of women as makers and providers. "Foragers" is part of a larger exhibition "In Vivid Color," which brings together four innovative contemporary artists—Wheat, Gisela Colon, Spencer Finch, and Jennifer Steinkamp—who create works celebrating the power of color and its ability to permeate the space around us. Their work is juxtaposed with a selection of paintings and works on paper, drawn primarily from The Mint Museum's permanent collection, which showcase artists' more traditional exploration of color. Ongoing - "El Tajín: Photographs and Drawings by Michael Kampen". El Tajín is a UNESCO World Heritage archeological site located in northern Veracruz, Mexico, one of the largest and most important cities of classical era Mesoamerica. It is home to hundreds of carved sculptures which have deteriorated over time due to acid rain and wind erosion. Drawings created by Dr. Michael Kampen, now a retired professor emeritus of art history, are the best representations in existence of the site sculptures at El Tajín. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown houses the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. The building also includes a café, a Family Gallery, painting and ceramics studios, classrooms, a 240-seat auditorium, a Special Events Pavilion with outdoor terrace, and an expanded Museum Shop specializing in crafts of the Carolinas. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Now Fri. till 9pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Work by Xaviera Simmons

Weatherspoon Art Museum, University of North Carolina - Greensboro, Cone Building, Tate and Spring Garden Streets, Greensboro. Through May 29 - "Xaviera Simmons: Falk Visiting Artist". Images and objects, bodies and geography, the personal and the social: artist Xaviera Simmons binds these themes together in artworks that respond to the gaps and distortions in our understanding of histories—be they artistic, political, or economic. Working extensively from archival sources and thinking deeply about art history, she focuses on documents and artifacts that shed light on "the experiences of White, Indigenous, and Black Americans who descend from slavery, stories shaped in relationship to the overarching theme of White threat and terror." Through Apr. 3 - "Markmaking: Selections from the Collection". The artworks in this exhibition show a plethora of approaches to markmaking, a term used to describe the different types of lines, scratches, smudges, patterns, dots, and textures that result from the way an artist applies a material, such as graphite or paint, to a surface. Because each mark possesses unique characteristics as well as contributes to the entire composition, it is an effective way to communicate. Marks can be descriptive, intuitive, or expressive. For example, some marks suggest vigorous energy or movement owing to the way they were applied, while others denote close attention to detail. Still, others feature novel techniques such as cutting and burning. On display are works by, among many others: Natalie Alper, Keith Carter, Sol LeWitt, Vik Muniz, Alyson Shotz, and Robert Smithson. In all, these objects show how distinct strokes and application methods make each—and its artist—unique. Through June 19 - "Slow Looking/Deep Seeing". Research has shown that visitors to art venues spend only a few seconds looking at each work on display. The Weatherspoon's curatorial and education staff has organized an exhibition drawn from the museum's collection that will offer visitors a chance to slow down, make discoveries, and effectively connect with works of art. "Slow Looking/Deep Seeing" features a variety of works, both modern and contemporary, and is divided into three sections to facilitate immersive viewing: Reading the Narrative/Image, Noticing as Contemplative Practice, and Interpreting Movement. Figurative paintings with complex narratives will prompt viewers to take some time to decipher their meaning, while both representational and abstract artworks will allow for in-depth examination and peaceful contemplation. Slow Looking/Deep Seeing will be used by UNGC courses this spring as part of the museum's Art of Seeing program. Now in its eleventh year, the program is designed to help students in health and human science fields hone their visual, diagnostic, interpretative, and communication skills. 2nd Floor: The Gregory D. Ivy and the Weatherspoon Guild Galleries, Through Feb. 14 - "Ties that Bind: Selections from the Collection". John Fawcett wrote a hymn on the theme in 1800. Bruce Springsteen took a different approach in an eponymous song popular in 1980. Whether entwined in fellowship with kindred spirits or stretched to the point of breaking, the ties that bind us to one another are often some of the most significant markers in our lives. Ties that Bind explores the various types of relationships that define, brighten, aspire, or perhaps even challenge us on a daily basis. Atrium and Lobbies - Featuring works of art complementing current gallery exhibitions which are rotated in the atrium and public areas throughout both floors of the gallery. Tom Otterness' site-specific work, "The Frieze" is permanently installed in the atrium. Sculpture Courtyard - Featuring selections of American sculpture from 1900 to the present from the Weatherspoon Collection and on loan works from contemporary artists. Admission: Free. Hours: Tue., Wed. & Fri., 10am-5pm, Thur., 10am to 9pm and Sat. & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 336/334-5770 or at (http://weatherspoon.uncg.edu).

Hickory Museum of Art, Arts and Science Center, 243 Third Avenue NE, Hickory. Through June 6 - "Works by Warhol," brings 36 iconic masterworks by one of America's most prominent artists to Hickory Museum of Art. The exhibition will raise the museum's profile while affording opportunities to connect with audiences of all ages. The museum's staff is pleased to partner with Imagine One Hospitality as the presenting sponsor for this important project, which will be accompanied by a Studio54 themed gala. This special event will occur at a time when it is safe for our community to come together and celebrate Andy Warhol's pioneering creative spirit. Imagine One Hospitality's restaurant, Café Rule & Wine Bar will also host programs and events that will activate the exhibition. Featuring a broad cross-section of examples from Warhol's storied career, the galleries will be activated by the appearance of pop culture staples such as "Mick Jagger," "Santa Claus," and "Mickey Mouse." The show will also explore Warhol's responses to major moments in U.S. history, including the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Neil Armstrong's moon landing, and the perception of Native Americans in the aftermath of the bicentennial of the United States. The exhibition will include the entire series of "Myths". This body of work was completed in 1981 and showcases Warhol's lifetime fascination with Hollywood imagery. Ongoing - "Discover Folk Art: Unique Visions by Southern Self-taught Artists". Explore recreations of artist work environments, including a school bus and a barn, family activity stations, more than 250 folk art objects, interactive touch screens and more. Work by Terry Childress

North Carolina Pottery Center, 233 East Avenue, Seagrove. Through June 19 - "North Carolina Ceramic Gems". Every day potters across North Carolina take clay and other natural resources, combine them using their knowledge, shape them into both simple and wonderful things using their artisan skills, and forge them using extreme heat (and sometimes flames) into a kaleidoscopic array of ceramic gems. Featured artists include: Stanley Mace Andersen, Alan Bennett, Marina Bosetti, Benjamin Burns, Terry Childress, Garry Childs, Becky Lloyd, Chris Luther, Dian Magie, Michael & Ruth Fisher Rutkowsky, Brad Tucker, and Jim Whalen. Through June 19 - "Raku: Spontaneity in the Flames". Raku pottery incorporates elements of knowledge, experience, excitement, unpredictability, and spontaneity, and is somewhat akin to a semi-controlled convergence of science, craft, art, and magic with a bit of chaos thrown in for good measure. Come see a colorful variety of Western-style work by a number of North Carolina's Raku potters from across the state and learn more about the making of Raku. Featured artists include: Andy Smith, Charlotte Munning, Steven Forbes-deSoule, David & Deborah Garner, Colleen Black Semelka, Harry Hearne, Courtney Tomchik, Dolores Hayes, Edge Barnes, and Dan Triece. Ongoing - Featuring permanent and changing exhibits on the history of North Carolina pottery, "The North Carolina Pottery Tradition" and "Seagrove Area Pottery". The Center also offers information on activities, maps and information about the potteries located in the Seagrove area and across the state. A display of representative works from more than 90 area potteries is also offered. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm. Contact 336/873-8430 or at (www.ncpotterycenter.org).

Work by Doug McAbee

Upstairs Artspace, (Celebrating 40 Years) 49 South Trade Street, Tryon. Feb. 6 - Mar. 15 - Upstairs Artspace in Tryon opens its 44th season with three new exhibits including: "Even When It's Dark," presents paintings and photographs by Doug McAbee that reflect thoughts and emotions during Covid. Fantastical imagery in the paintings brightens a difficult time. The photographs, called "art remixes," combine familiar museum paintings with photos of McAbee posed in quirky, similar costumes; In Addam Duncan's "Lasting Impressions," black and white paintings in the style of photorealism speak to memories of intimate moments experienced this past year: a child sleeping, sharpening a pencil, listening to music. Duncan is a self-taught artist from South Carolina's Upstate. His versatility includes printmaking, sculpting and tattoo design; "In The Eyes of The Beholder," features work by Roscoe Conn and Joseph Pearson that focuses on African-American experiences. Conn is an established mixed media/collage artist who calls his art "a journey of black eyesight and insight." Pearson is an Asheville artist well known for painting, portraiture, drawing and mural art. His paintings at the Upstairs are of intimate, often charged glimpses of everyday Black lives: a haircut, homework, Thanksgiving dinner. An Open House will be held on Feb. 6, from noon-7pm. The Upstairs continues to rigorously practice social distancing, allowing 20 visitors in the gallery at any given time. Masks are required and are available at the door. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 1-5pm. Contact: 828-859-2828 or at (www.upstairsartspace.org).

Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. On View Now - "She Persists," coincides with the 100th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment and explores the ways in which female artists in Cameron Art Museum's permanent collection persist in their own lives, in their communities, in their world, both personally and politically --- through art. From Mary Cassatt, whose paintings and prints were featured in exhibitions supporting suffrage, to feminist Audrey Flack, whose work Medea is a conscious redeeming of that tragic figure, to Beverly Buchanan, who fiercely explored identity as an African American woman through sculpture, land art, photography, and painting, this exhibition of 100 works for the 100th anniversary of the 19th Amendment creates a powerful dialogue about what it means to be a woman. On View Now - "The Face of Lincoln" is a powerful bronze casting from the original work of sculptor

Robert Merrell Gage. The casting is based on the 1860 plaster face mask made of Lincoln by Gage. Gage made castings of Lincoln throughout his life and starred in the 1955 Academy Award winning film "The Face of Lincoln" (20 minutes), also shown in the gallery. Pancoe Art Education Center, Exhibition Cases, Ongoing - View some of the Seagrove and contemporary pottery from the museum's permanent collection in the cases. Winston-Salem

Work by Mona Wu

Artworks Gallery, 564 N. Trade Street, Winston-Salem. Feb. 5 - 28 - "Four Women Show," featuring original prints and paintings by Alix Hitchcock, Lea Lackey-Zachmann, Katherine Mahler, and Mona Wu. For this select show, Alix Hitchcock has worked with colored inks and waxy china markers using drawings from models or stencil shapes of human forms and foliage forms. Lea Lackey-Zachmann often makes images that are not exhibited or shared with the public. "I appreciate those personal and often meaningful processes," says Lackey-Zachmann. Combining printmaking and painting techniques, Katherine Mahler explores identity through the use of layers, shared symbols and maps. Mona Wu is exhibiting her unframed prints in large format, mostly monotypes, both old and new works. Comprised of botanical subject matter, these prints are the product of Wu's love and appreciation of natural beauty ever present locally, in the state of North Carolina. Ongoing - The gallery is the longest running cooperative gallery established by artists for artist members, showing 12 exhibits per year in the heart of Winston-Salem's Art District. Approx. 21 artists show their work in mediums such as painting, watercolor, drawing, photography, sculpture, encaustic wax, and digital art. The gallery features the work of Marion Adams, Wiley Akers, Woodie Anderson, Mary Beth Blackwell-Chapman, Owens Daniels, Chris Flory, Jim Gemma, Don Green, Alix Hitchcock, Karen Moran Kopf, Lea Lackey-Zachmann, Nanu LaRosee, Barbara Rizza Mellin, Seth Moskowitz, Wendell Myers, Diane Nations, Betti Pettinati-Longinotti, Susan Smoot, Jessica Tefft, Kimberly Varnadoe, and Mona Wu, as well as Associate Members: Kate Magruder and Beverly Noyes. Reynolda House Museum of American Art, Reynolda Road, Winston-Salem. Northwest Bedroom Gallery, Through Mar. 21 - "Girlhood in American Art". In this small exhibition planned for the Northwest Bedroom Gallery, we will examine different constructions of girlhood from the eighteenth to the twentieth century. In Gilbert Stuart's double portrait of two Irish cousins, the artist emphasized the girls' fine embroidery as evidence of the refinement and accomplishments that will soon make them eligible marriage partners. Similarly, William Merritt Chase's In the Studio presents a young girl of sophisticated taste admiring a collection of prints. Later works, by artists such as Mary Cassatt and Robert Henri, convey a complex range of emotions, from affection to amusement to annoyance. All of the pieces in the exhibition reflect the cultural and social environments the girls inhabited. Master Bedroom Gallery, Through July 25 - "A Self in the Remaking: Katharine Smith Reynolds Johnston." Katharine's achievements as a businesswoman and social reformer often overshadow who she was as a woman. Her accomplishments at Reynolda make it all too easy to forget that she had her own complex needs, yearnings, and vulnerabilities. After the death of R.J. Reynolds in 1918, Katharine entered the 1920s ready to embrace an era shaped by new ideas, new technologies, and new fashions. Despite the privilege bestowed by her wealth and status, Katharine could not escape the stress of her many familial and social responsibilities, but in the 1920s, she looked to cultural pursuits and more stylish pleasures. This exhibition examines the modern sensibilities and new relationships that defined Katharine in her final years before her death at age forty-three. Ongoing - Collection of 18th through 20th century art, sculpture, American art, and pottery. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9:30am-4:30pm & Sun., 1:30-4:30pm. Contact: 336/725-5325 or at (www.reynoldahouse.org).

Work by Mark Flowers

ALTERNATE ART SPACES - Charlotte
The Gallery at Carillon, 227 West Trade Street, Charlotte. Through Apr. 30 - "Collective Instincts," featuring new works by Asheville, NC, artist, Mark Flowers. The six works represent a new direction for his familiar narrative style. "My work has evolved this past year, from an obvious narration to a more 'visual jazz' approach to painting. Images are more layered and involved as I plan less and trust my instincts more." The title of the exhibition refers to his new approach to painting. His shaped panels of more than 30 years are still the core format. He now builds his works with an initial layer of original photographic imagery. Flowers then edits his way to completion with paint and mark making. The final result is a more abstract visual experience that still reflects a personal vision. The exhibition is sponsored by Hines Charlotte Carillon LP (<https://www.hines.com/properties/carillon-charlotte>). Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-8pm; Sat., 8am-7pm & Sun., noon-8pm. Contact: e-mail Larry Elder at (lelder@elderart.com).
