The Charleston Museum Debuts a Special Exhibition to Honor Its 250th Anniversary

The Charleston Museum, located on Meeting Street in downtown Charleston, SC, is pleased to announce its 250th anniversary exhibit, America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating, on view in two parts through Jan. 7, 2024.

The Museum's collection celebrates the natural and cultural history of the South Carolina Lowcountry. Today, the Museum's collections, which include over 2.4 million objects, are unmatched in their interpretive value to South Carolina history and the nation.

Part one of America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating began on Dec. 17, 2022, and displays objects that span its impressive history. As a key seaport in the American South, the Museum's collections came in from every corner of the globe before they took on a more Lowcountry South Carolina focus in the 20th century.

Accordingly, the exhibit reflects diverse collections. Highlights include objects from ancient Rome, Sumerian cuneiforms, a chief's helmet from the Sandwich Islands acquired in 1798, Japanese Samurai armor, the earliest known Charleston sampler, the suit worn at the Court of St. James by Thomas Pinckney when minister to Great Britain, and exquisite fans made by African American craftsman Tobias Scott.

Opening mid-2023, part two of the exhibit will showcase a church pew made by enslaved hands measuring 20 feet in length, centuries-old Archaic carved bone pins, a skull from the largest known flying bird, and a couture Fortuny gown.

"It is an incredible privilege for all of us at the Charleston Museum to curate and offer an exhibit as special as this," said Carl Borick, Director, The Charleston Museum, and primary author of The Charleston Museum: America's First Museum. "Bringing in objects from our five major collections and a tremendous group effort by our curatorial and exhibits team, this engaging exhibit not only highlights the history of the Museum but also documents the history of our area, both the positive and the difficult, through these wonderful collection pieces."

The Charleston Museum, founded in 1773 and considered America's first museum, is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization located at 360 Meeting Street in downtown Charleston. The Museum is home to the most extensive collection of South Carolina-related natural and cultural history materials known, two National Historic Landmark Houses and the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. The Museum's mission is to educate Charleston area residents and visitors about the natural and cultural history of the South Carolina Lowcountry through collections, exhibitions, preservation, conservation, research, and related programming. Museum exhibits provide a comprehensive overview of the South Carolina Lowcountry, while its historic houses offer insight into the families that owned the properties, the people they enslaved, and historic Charleston architecture. The Dill Sanctuary is only available for special scheduled programs.

History of The Charleston Museum

On Jan. 12, 2022, The Charleston Museum marked the 250th anniversary of the founding of a "museum," that would eventually become the wonderful institution we know today. Comprised of some of the leading learned men of the colony of South Carolina, the Charleston Library Society was responsible for the creation of this museum. Some of the Society's members who helped found it, such as Thomas Heyward, Jr., and Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, had studied law at Middle Temple in London, and were surely influenced in this new endeavor by their exposure to the British Museum, the two being just over a mile apart.

vegetable or mineral...with accounts of the various soils, rivers, waters, springs, & c., and the most remarkable appearances of the different parts of the country."

Accordingly, the Society "fitted up a Museum for the reception and preservation of specimens of these several natural productions," and appointed Thomas Heyward, Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, Alexander Baron, and Peter Fayssoix to receive them, who we can consider the Museum's first curators.

What was the Society trying to accomplish in this endeavor? The answer is obtained by looking closely at its prospectus. With regard to plants and trees, they

At their Jan. 12, 1773 meeting, Lt. Governor William Bull, president of the Charlestown Library Society, proposed that a committee be appointed "for collecting materials for promoting a natural History of this Province," the genesis of the Museum. The Society's prospectus announced that "taking into their consideration, the many advantages and great credit that would result to this province, from a full and accurate natural history of the same," they "have appointed a committee of their number to collect and prepare materials for that purpose." They asked gentlemen, especially those residing "in the country," to procure and send them "all the natural productions, either animal, endgame but the same rationale – so that people can learn.

We will never know what the "gentleman in the country" contributed to those early collections since the Fire of 1778 destroyed them and associated records. We do know that collecting resumed by the 1790s and the Museum was located on the third floor of the State House, now the Charleston County Courthouse. The institution had strayed from its initial South Carolina focus, however, as evidenced by the earliest known collections records, an accession book in the holdings of the Charleston Library Society. Although acquisitions included a "beautiful species of spider" caught by Thomas Branford Smith on his piazza, most of the remaining objects came from other parts of the world. Since Charleston was one of the key ports in the southeast, with goods coming in from every corner of the globe, this collecting trend continued throughout the nineteenth century.

The Library Society transferred the Museum collections to the Literary and Philosophical Society of South Carolina in 1815. Under its guidance, the collections continued to grow, and were enhanced by contributions from prominent naturalists such as Joel Poinsett, Stephen Elliott, John Edwards Holbrook, and the Reverend John Bachman. Despite a compelling exhibition of its materials in the 1820s, the Museum still lacked permanency, however, and it moved around the City, including locations on Chalmers Street, Broad and Church Streets, and even a "low wooden building" on the grounds of the Medical College (now MUSC). The College of Charleston eventually acquired the collection and combined it with those of Francis Holmes and Bachman to open the Museum on the third floor of Randolph Hall in 1852, which initiated greater stability. The College's Trustees appointed Holmes as curator.

According to Charleston's Daily Courier, this new version of the Museum was

On Our Cover This Month

On our cover this month is a work by Alix Hitchcock, who is part of the exhibit Feathers, Leaves, & Trees, featuring works by Alix Hitchcock and Lea Lackey-Zachmann, on view at the Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, through Feb. 25, 2023. Receptions will be held on Feb. 3, from 7-9pm and Feb. 12, from 2-4pm. Hitchcock is exhibiting new hand colored and hand pulled dry-point prints. These one of a kind monoprints are based on initial drawings from shadows of trees and foliage. You can read all about the exhibit on Page 22.

Directing A Spotlight

I'd like to direct a spotlight on a couple of exhibits we're presenting in this issue. You'll find them both on Page 26 and they both are taking place in Raleigh, NC, an area we don't hear from that often. I've tried to reach out to venues in that area, but except a few, my pleas don't seem to be sinking in to many there.

The first is an exhibition taking place at Meredith College in Raleigh, NC, which is presenting In-Rage, featuring works by Megumi Naganoma, on view in the Frankie G. Weems Gallery in the Gaddy-Hamrick Art Center, through Mar. 12, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 9, from 5-7pm, with a Gallery Talk, from 5:30-6:30pm, in room 137 at the Center.

The second is an exhibition taking place at the Diamante Arts & Cultural Center in Raleigh, NC, which is presenting ALCHEMY: Visions In Color, an exhibition by Puerto Rican artist Adriana Ameigh, on view through Mar. 12, 2023.

These two venues seem to have heard my pleas and sent us press releases about both these exhibitions. They both still have a way to go in providing us all the info and materials we would like for our readers, but I'm happy to be on their radar. So I hope if you live in the area, you go see these two exhibitions to show them it pays to promote your exhibits.

Not A Fan Of Dedicated Months Of The Year

I don't like dedicated months in respect to the arts, mainly the visual arts: Black History Month where all the public venues try to present an exhibit featuring a Black artist or a group of Black artists, Hispanic Heritage Month, Youth Arts Month, Women's History Month, etc.

What I don't like is that many venues think that is the only time they should present such artists and ignore them the rest of the year. In some instances these venues show works by the same artists over and over, only during those special months.

In one instance the shows got so repetitive, featuring the same artists over and over again, that the presenter eventually allowed any artist to enter the show as long as their artwork looked like it fit the month's theme.

I don't like that some artists might be thinking that the only time they can or will be shown at a venue is during one of these special months. There are just not that many open opportunities out there that any artist (emerging artists especially) can afford to not try to enter their work in a show. Exposure is everything in the arts, even open juried shows. And, don't get me started about the selection of "special" jurors to jury "special" exhibitions.

I'm not against shows with special themes, or a special focus, as long as everyone can take the chance of being included - any time of the year.

I'm for open shows all year long.

popular with local citizens as well as "distinguished naturalists" from other states who came to view its collections. The Civil War put an end to this brief golden age. With federal troops threatening the city, Professor Holmes prudently moved most of the collections to Edgefield for safekeeping, a fortuitous decision since some pieces left behind were destroyed after the Union occupation in 1865.

The post-Civil War period was a time of economic decline for Charleston, and the Museum fell on hard times. Fortunately, the College Trustees appointed Gabriel Manigault as the curator in 1873. Despite limited funding and a seeming lack of interest in the Museum by the College, he expanded the collections and improved the exhibits. He was responsible for the acquisition of some of the iconic pieces in the collection, including the North Atlantic right whale skeleton that hangs in the Museum lobby, the Egyptian mummy, and the casts of statuary from the British Museum.

After Manigault's death, the College installed George Hall Ashley as curator but it would be Ashley's successor, Paul Rea, who would bring the Museum into the modern era. Named the Museum's first official "director," Rea oversaw the move of the Museum from Randolph Hall to Thomson Auditorium on Rutledge Avenue, which had been built for a Confederate veterans' reunion and which would later be affectionately remembered by many locals as the "old Museum." Rea also spearheaded the effort to make the Museum independent of the College of Charleston, and in 1915 the South Carolina Secretary of State issued a charter for the incorporation of The Charleston Museum, the first time it would be known by that name.

Rea also hired Laura Bragg, who would succeed him as director. Bragg was influential in the acquisition of the Heyward-Washington House and in expanding the Museum's education programs, which she insisted also be available to Blacks in the era of Jim Crow. She, her successor Milby Burton, and capable administrators such as Donald Herold and John Brum-

Originally the town home of Thomas Heyward, Jr., the Heyward-Washington House (right) had been turned into a bakery with a storefront in the late 19th century. Director Laura Bragg (left) helped raise the funds to purchase the building in 1929 and return it to its original floor plan. One year later, the first museum created in North America produced the state's first home museum when it opened the home to the public.

gardt continued to expand the collections and appropriately steward the Museum throughout the twentieth century.

By 1907 the Thomson Auditorium, built as convention space for the United Confederate Veterans reunion in 1890's, became the home of The Charleston Museum, which remained there until the collection was moved into a new building on Meeting Street in 1980. Within a month, the old building burned. A bequest from John Thomson to the City of Charleston was used to finance the auditorium construction. Although designed by the architect Frank Milburn, who was selected early in his career for this commission, the structure was built in a temporary manner with a cast-iron frame and exterior stucco with applied ornamentation in the Beaux Arts style. The original semicircular colonnade has been preserved as an architectural folly. The city partially restored the plan of the original Cannon Park, and much of the site remains as open green space.

Despite the many transitions that it went through in 250 years, the purpose behind its founding - to educate - would remain. Today, The Charleston Museum, which had its beginnings in the efforts of South Carolina's wealthy elite, is a resource for learning for people from all walks of life from around our state, the country, and the world.

Thomson Auditorium built in 1899, as a convention space for the United Confederate Veterans reunion, later became the home of The Charleston Museum in 1907, which was located at 121 Rutledge Avenue. Redux Contemporary Art Center in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Leigh Sabisch & Allison Koch Redux Contemporary Art Center in Charleston, SC, will present Only Once In The Light, featuring works by Leigh Sabisch and Allison Koch, as Sardine Press, on view from Feb. 3 through Mar. 18, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm.

This new exhibition showcases the ongoing creative endeavors of the artists in their personal practices and as a pair, who merge their energetic and multidisciplinary approach by combining oil painting and printmaking techniques that evolve into truly collaborative work. The artists state "As a team, we have found a way to incorporate the practices and themes of our individual work into a larger scope of collaborative making. As printmakers, we want to push our understanding of such a traditional medium as well as investigate how we can adapt to challenges we face through creating experimental pieces."

Only Once In The Light is the result of the pair looking back on previous bodies of work and noting how they individually incorporate the effects of light. Their varying perceptions of light opened both artists up to the pleasure and complexities of communicating abstract ideas and translating them into a cohesive, physical, shared experience. Sabisch paints masses of twisted limbs which are layered with tonality and depth, highlighting the way light reflects on the figures. Koch plays with iridescence to refract light using gloss finishes. The exhibition results in a cohesive body of work that celebrates Sardine Press's continued experimentation in collaboration. In addition to the six-week exhibition, the pair will host related programming and a printmaking workshop for the public. More information will be announced here.

Leigh Sabisch graduated from College of Charleston with a double major in arts management and studio art and a minor in art history in 2017, where she met the printmaking technician, Allison Koch. Koch, also a graduate from College of Charleston, received a degree in English literature in 2011 and studio art in 2014. In 2019, the duo founded Sardine Press, the mission of which is to cram their love of printmaking and their satisfaction gained from teaching into a mid-sized RV. Together, the two artists have planned and executed printmaking fundraisers for the ACLU and Planned Parenthood as well as pop-up, hands-on printmaking events, residencies and exhibitions.

Redux Contemporary Art Center is a nonprofit organization committed to fostering creativity and the cultivation of contemporary art through diverse exhibitions, subsidized studio space for visual artists, meaningful education programs, and a multidisciplinary approach to the dialogue between artists and their audiences.

Redux Contemporary Art Center is located on King Street, Charleston, SC.

Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Steve Jacobs

The Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, will present Charleston Impressions, an exhibition by Steve Jacobs, on view at the Guild Gallery, from Feb. 1 - 28 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm.

Jacobs' art ranges from loose to realistic, capturing the beauty and history of the city. Born in Germany of American parents with his father having been a member of the military, Jacobs moved to Shem Creek in Mt. Pleasant, SC, and fell in love with the waters and marshes of the town and with the architecture of nearby Charleston.

Jacobs captures this passion using oil, watercolor, acrylics and pencil. For years he entertained Atlanta, as one of its top pianists. Now he frequently paints musical and other subjects which are transformed from realism to fantasy in the same canvas. In his Charleston architectural works, he really pushes the drama of a scene with extreme lights and darks.

The gallery is located on East Bay Street in Charleston, SC.

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Dan Jones and Saila Milja-Smyly

The City of North Charleston, SC, will present two concurrent solo exhibits including: Found Wandering - Photography by Dan Jones (Charleston, SC), and Cultivating Clay - Ceramic Sculpture by Saila Milja-Smyly (Mount Pleasant, SC), both on view at the City's Park Circle Gallery, from Feb. 1 - 25, 2023. A reception for both exhibits will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-7pm.

In his exhibit, Found Wandering, photographer Dan Jones presents images that highlight the art surrounding us in our everyday lives. Jones creates by venturing out to find line, form, texture, and color that come together as a cohesive whole, mostly in manmade materials but also in nature. He does not arrange his subjects and rarely moves any objects in the scenes he photographs, preferring to capture the art as it is in the world. "I see art everywhere every day, in small details and larger patterns everywhere I go," he explains. "Looking at the world this way has played a large part in my development as a photographer."

Jones is a 25-year member of the Cincinnati-based Table of Contents art collective.

Cultivating Clay: Ceramic Sculpture by Saila Milja-Smyly features a collection of 20 single-fired stoneware ceramic pieces. Inspired by botanical forms and textures that might look as if grown in or shaped by nature, Milja-Smyly's designs reflect an interplay of the minimalist visual traditions of her Nordic home of origin and the rich natural expression of the South Carolina Lowcountry. The intent of her work is to show, through the conventional form of botanical sculpture, how the boundaries of the ceramic medium can be pushed further.

Work by Saila Milja-Smyly

"Driven by my curiosity for cultivating new approaches to manipulating stoneware clay and glazes, I seek to explore the technical boundaries of these materials," Milja-Smyly explains. "This means that I have made many of these sculptures more than once, first being a bit too optimistic with my technique and then working to refine the process to enable forms that clay is capable of achieving."

Work by Dan Jones

Milja-Smyly is an independent studio ceramicist and owner of Earthly LLC ceramics company and brand since 2011. She is a member of the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts (NCECA), Lowcountry Ceramics Artists, Tri State Sculptors Association, and International Sculpture Center and her work has been featured in numerous juried and group exhibitions throughout the Carolinas. Current gallery representation includes the South Carolina Artisans Center (Walterboro, SC), Keepsakes at Brookgreen Gardens (Murrells Inlet, SC), Maye River Gallery (Bluffton, SC), Old Charleston Trading Company (Johns Island, SC), and Wynsum Antiques & Interiors (Charleston, SC).

The Park Circle Gallery is located on Jenkins Avenue in North Charleston. Admission is free and free street parking is available on Jenkins Avenue in front of the gallery, as well as on the streets and in parking lots close by.

Lowcountry Artists Gallery in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Gale Ray

Lowcountry Artists Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present Myths from the Sea, featuring paintings and pottery by Gale Ray, on view from Feb. 1 - 28, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm.

Myths from the Sea is a collection of paintings and pottery inspired by shells from the sea. Says Ray, "It all came about one day when I was sitting in my studio contemplating a painting of a triton shell, King Triton. I thought, 'wouldn't it be interesting and challenging to make a large pot imitating the texture of that shell.' I began coiling and pinching out the clay by hand to form the pot. After a couple hours, it began to take shape. When I finished, I cried and thought 'now you have something special.'"

loved the results."

Ray continues, "When I had completed several pieces, I felt they deserved names. Not all pots deserve names. While I was making the pottery, I was listening to The Song of Achilles by Madeline Miller. Greek gods and goddesses filled my thoughts. The first piece was inspired by my painting of the Triton shell therefore; I named it King Triton. In Greek mythology, Triton is the Greek god of the sea and so began the name calling. Neptune Roman God of the sea, Harmonia Greek goddess of harmony and concord, Mene Greek goddess of the moon, Iris Pearl Iris Greek goddess of the rainbow and so it went."

"It takes several weeks to complete a large pottery vessel. This collection took about 9 months to complete. Each pot is one-of-a-kind and has its own qualities. They are all food safe, oven safe and microwave safe."

"The Triton series began. Every pot was challenging to make and satisfying to build," adds Ray. "Several pots were built and had gone through their first firing. They were ready to be completed which meant applying glaze and firing to stoneware temperature. However, glazing the pots was terrifying to me. So, I decided to do a series of studies, small pots with different glazes. Weeks went by before I had enough courage to glaze the first large pot, Triton King. Based on information gathered from the studios, I applied glaze, fired to temp and earrings inspired by her travels through America's State and National Parks. Each unique item is formed by drawing design inspiration from a specific place. Working from her own photos, Valerie recreates the image in metal and uses crushed gemstones to "paint" the details.

Kasey Briggs' original jewelry created from two different mediums, polymer clay and woven beads, are distinctive and unique. The clay-like material lets her create colorful clay blends and marbled effects. The woven beads incorporate glass seed beads in multiple colors, shapes and sizes to create necklaces, earrings, bracelets and lariats.

Laurie Prophater creates diverse styles of necklaces, earrings and bracelets ranging from primitive to playful. She enjoys translating designs from other mediums into jewelry, combining polymer clay with a variety of supporting materials. Laurie's innovative designs earned her a spot as a

Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Local High School Students

The Society of Bluffton Artists (SOBA) in Bluffton, SC, will feature the artwork of local students in their Annual High School Art Show, on view from Feb. 6 through Mar. 5, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 11, from 5-7pm.

This year, three schools are participating in the student art exhibit: Bluffton High School, May River High School and Cross School. High school students involved in their schools' arts programs often go on to pursue careers in art, design or photography.

"SOBA is committed to its mission of providing art education and art appreciation to the local community," said Cynthia Van Nus, SOBA event organizer. "The art show gives students a chance for public recognition for their talents and achievements, the same that is given to student athletes, science projects and music concerts."

John Cullinen, Arts Teacher at Cross Upper School, said Cross School has a growing art program that infuses traditional mediums with digital art and photography - a sampling of which will be shown in SOBA's upcoming show.

have prepared ink drawings, charcoal still life, a ceramic medley, acrylic on canvas and digital print, said Andrea Pejeau, a National Art Honor Society Advisor and art instructor at Bluffton High School.

May River High School students have prepared photography, pottery and paintings - all of which are looking to embrace the whimsical side of life and the beauty of the Lowcountry.

"For me teaching art is more than creating, it is about building connections to our visual society," said Elizabeth Schlieger, the Fine Arts Department Chair at May River High School. "Helping students understand not just how things are created, but why, and then developing an understanding of their place amongst that world."

The Society of Bluffton Artists is the flourishing art hub in Bluffton's historic District at the corner of Church and Calhoun streets. SOBA offers regular art classes, featured artist shows, exhibitions and more.

So you're the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you're wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you're the owner of a commercial art gallery and you've never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don't see your exhibits included.

My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, "Why that is the case?" If you're not included - it's your fault.

Send your info about exhibits to "Carolina Arts" by e-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com). Our deadline is the 24th of the month "prior" to the month your exhibit starts.

Greenville Center for Creative Arts in Greenville, SC, Offers Group Exhibition in Its Main Gallery

Greenville Center for Creative Arts in Greenville, SC, will present It's all around us, featuring works by acclaimed artists Heather Brand, Alan Shuptrine, and Dawn Stetzel, on view in GCCA's Main Gallery, from Feb. 3 through Mar. 29, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 6-9pm, with opening remarks from GCCA Chief Executive Officer, Jess Burgess, at 6:30pm. Exhibition begins First Friday, February 3rd, 2023.

It's all around us is a group exhibition featuring artists Heather Brand, Alan Shuptrine, and Dawn Stetzel with works examining natural and synthetic elements of our surroundings. Through photography, sculptures, and paintings, the artists explore the delicate manner in how man-made materials and structures can affect our relationship with the natural world. Objects, structures, and places which are not found naturally but are created and synonymous with humanity's connection with nature question the desire of an ideal natural world versus balancing ways to respond to and maintain our environment.

Work by Heather Brand

Heather Brand is a visual artist living and working in Meadville, PA. She has an MFA in Visual Studies from the University of Buffalo and is an Assistant Professor of Art at Allegheny College. Her work depicts scenes of humans' mediated relationship with nature via deceptions of built environments concerning the collection, cultivation, and recreation of the natural world.

Brand's work has been shown internationally in London UK, Rome, Italy, Sao Luis, Portugal, and Madrid, Spain. Nationally her work has recently been exhibited at the Southern Alleghenies Museum of Art in Altoona, PA, the Midwest Center Center for Photography in Wichita, KS, and the Community Arts Center of Oneonta in Oneonta, NY.

Alan Shuptrine is a painter known for his realistic watercolors, oils, gold leafing, and handmade frames. Shuptrine's works can be found in the permanent collections of several American museums and hundreds of corporate and private collections nationwide. A multi-faceted artist, Shuptrine is a leading practitioner in the centuries-old art of hand-crafting and water gilding, fine art frames and mirrors, wood carving, and sgraffito etching. Born the son of recognized painter, Hubert Shuptrine (1936-2006), Shuptrine also has continued the legacy of watercolor realism that both Andrew Wyeth and his father Hubert established and has cemented himself as a nationally renowned watercolor artist.

Dawn Stetzel is an artist from the United States currently living on the Long Beach Peninsula on the southern coast of Washington on the unceded land of the Chinook and Lower Chinook. Her performative sculptures interact with environments in the argins, where humans and nature rub together leaving a sometimes-messy residue. An intensely strong work ethic was formed through growing up in Iowa and this physicality and fortitude shows up in her sculptural works. She is innovative in her field of sculpture and has contributed through her work over the past twenty years.

In 2000 Stetzel was awarded her first solo exhibition and a Durham Arts Council Emerging Artist Grant in North Carolina. She has a Master of Fine Arts from the College of Visual and Performing Arts at The University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth. She has exhibited widely in the United States through multiple solo exhibitions, public art commissions and group exhibitions including Grounds for Sculpture, Disjecta and the Portland Biennial.

Stetzel's work is included in permanent public collections at The City of Seattle Office of Arts & Culture and the Shivan Ceramic Museum in the Guangdong Province of China. Her work is printed in multiple publications, she has shown internationally and has lectured in the United States, China and Brazil.

Furman University in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Claire Whitehurst

Furman University in Greenville, SC, will present Artist-in-Residence: Claire Whitehurst, on view in the Thompson Gallery, from Feb. 27 through Mar. 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Mar. 31, from 6:30-7:30pm.

"My work is about the creation of intimate spaces and how to find them. Growing up queer in the American South, my time was spent inventing places to escape. I relay that same task into my studio practice where I find overlap between mediums and use them as passageways to direct visual and poetic narrative," says Whitehurst. "My formal choices reflect the biological world and hint toward the body and the landscape, while ultimately eluding any direct representation. My paintings, prints and sculptures also reference one another, while maintaining an ability to stand on their own. I use wall sculptures as stencils for paintings and those paintings as references for a print or book form. I use translation of mediums as a way of shape shifting, and I relate this to ideas of the self, and the negotiation of where and when to hide or to seek."

Born in Baton Rouge, LA, Whitehurst earned her MFA at the University of Iowa (2020) after earning a BFA at the University

Greenville Technical College in Taylors, SC, Features Works by Alice Ratterree

Greenville Technical College in Taylors, SC, will present Behind the Pictures, featuring works by Alice Ratterree, on view at the Benson Campus Galleries, from Feb. 16 through Mar. 10, 2023.

We all have cherished children's books. They may be the books we tattered with love as a child or they might be books we recently purchased to share with a cherished child. Cherished books are directly kin to the warmth and safety of companion fuzzy bears or imaginary friends. They were the wellspring of our childhood imagination and often channeled our childhood emotions and even now continue to elicit those memories for us. We have been imprinted with the images found in our beloved children's book and we have also probably never given much thought to the maker of those images.

Ratterree's Behind the Pictures provides us an opportunity to appreciate children's published works include Lilliput (Sam Gayton, Peachtree Publishers), a Gold Parent's Choice Award winner and was a Junior Library Guild selection, The Wolf Keepers (Elise Broach, Christy Ottaviano Books), also a Junior Library Guild selection, and Dangerous Jane (Suzanne Slade, Peachtree Publishers).

Ratterree has been a two-time recipient of the Tomie de Paola Illustration Award. She is a classically trained singer with degrees in vocal performance from Florida State University (BM) and Boston University (MM). She has appeared as a soloist with the Boston Pops, Asheville Lyric Opera and Brevard Music Center. Currently Ratterree and her family live in Greenville, SC, and she is the Director of Marketing for the Metropolitan Arts Council.

Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Student Award Winners

The Department of Visual Arts at Greenville Technical College in Greenville, SC, will present 22 Awards, featuring works by award-winning students, who were selected from the "2022 Visual Arts Annual Student Exhibit (VAASE)," on view at the Abney House, at 201 Abney Street, next door to the Greenville Center for Creative Arts in the Village of West Greenville, from Feb. 8 through Mar. 3, 2023. A closing reception will be held on Mar. 3, from 6-8pm.

These award-winning students were selected from the "2022 Visual Arts Annual Student Exhibit (VAASE)". The exhibition was a juried competition among Greenville Tech's Department of Visual Art students. The juror, Karen Oremus, Interim Dean of the College of Visual and Performing Arts, Winthrop University chose 71 works from 144 entries including 19 award winners. Responding to "2022 VAASE", Oremus said "It was challenging as juror to eliminate works from the show, as there was an incredible array of work that merited display, and several that deserved awards. In my selection, I attempted to represent a cross section of works that emphasized strength in a variety of areas such as technique, innovative use of technique, and the expression of compelling content which led to contemplation or an emotional response."

"VAASE's" Halloween Costume Gala and Awards Presentation in October celebrated the success and diligence of all Greenville Tech's student artists. Shane Howell, Department of Visual Arts Chair, presented a total of 22 cash awards. Oremus singled out Kayla Richard's photograph, "Stream" as Best In Show. "... This work evoked an emotional response in me that surpasses aesthetics more so than any other work in the exhibition. My immediate response was one of great empathy and reflection upon the current world we live in. This work depicts the lost, the left behind, the forgotten, the abandoned, the mistreated. The suggested content addressed in this work is relevant and timely and will hopefully trigger the emotional and compassionate response in others through the search for understanding, sharing, and evolution when exploring mortality, ephemerality, and the fragility of life."

"VAASE" awards are made possible by generous contributions from the Metropolitan Arts Council (with funds received from the City of Greenville, BMW Manufacturing Company, Michelin North America, Inc.,

Art & Light Gallery in Greenville, SC, Offers Works by Diane Kilgore Condon

Art & Light Gallery in Greenville, SC, will present Sanctuary: Jump + Adjust, featuring an exhibit of works by Diane Kilgore Condon, on view from Feb. 28 through Apr. 1, 2023. A reception will be held on Mar. 3, from 6-8pm.

Diane Kilgore Condon is inspired by everyday life and its influences on who we are and how we think. As a result, she creates unique, ethereal oil paintings grounded in love, hope, and purpose. She feels these are the characteristics we long to view within each other. In turn, these are the same nuances that draw us to art, whether in the form of a painting, poem, or song.

Kilgore Condon has produced a new body of work entitled Sanctuary on display at Art & Light Gallery in March. Known for creating pieces featuring flora and fauna, her new work explores animals seeking sanctuary in boats. According to Kilgore Condon, "This work represents leaping forward by faith not by sight. The imagery is fantastical, but still accurate. In every watershed moment I have faced, the truth is that fear and worry are a bigger burden than I can bear alone. In these moments, I trust that God is with me. By turning to Him, I can move forward. It is important to love people, stand firm, and look for the rescue; it will come. The birds know where to migrate, and the wildflowers are adorned in majesty, therefore, I serve at the pleasure of the King. We don't hear this enough, but perhaps viewing animals escaping in a

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, SC, Features Works by Hague Williams

The upcoming exhibition of Upstate artist and arts educator Hague Williams at the Artists Collective | Spartanburg, SC, represents a new area of exploration of printmaking. Slice: Scattered, Covered and Smothered, will be on view in Gallery III, through Feb. 25, 2023. A reception will be held during the Spartanburg ArtWalk on Feb. 16, from 5-8pm.

The exhibition, "brings together disparate methods of printmaking by creating unique prints that defy the traditional methods of printmaking while still relying on the pull of ink through a screen," says Williams.

"For more than 25 years, I have been exploring the mediums of screen-printing, multimedia, installation and collage," Williams continues. "Combining computer-generated images from symbols, motifs and signifiers throughout different periods - contemporary and ancient and everything in between - a sort of mining of symbology throughout time. These get mashed up, layered, sliced and recombined in a final result, often revealing and hiding these signifiers and symbols we recognize and identify, if only subconsciously."

Williams wants to illustrate for the viewer that "digital imaging and printmaking methods can be used in unique and exciting ways to create an image without a traditional print edition."

"Transformation and the catalysts that precipitate change over time are primary sources of motivation for my work. The mechanisms of visual persuasion, such as flags, logos and emblems - referencing anthems, rituals and other social-bonding experiences - become the organizing principles for my work," he continues. "As a printmaker and artist, I am predictably interested in such change methods. Process is an integral part of my work. I am searching for the next translation, the following transformation, as seen through the eyes of history, by the ones that make and experience or suffer that history."

With a background in media and design, Williams says he weaves, "complex and multilayered compositions that address formal concerns. At the same time, I infuse meaning by using contemporary symbols of power, branding, advertising and signifiers that blur the distinction between governments, religion and corporations. These source images are recontextualized into motifs and patterns that overlap and interact to present the viewer with something chaotic and intricate yet, at the same time, familiar."

Williams received his MFA from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and taught there for 10 years, including as assistant director for the Prague Studio

Artists Collective I Spartanburg, SC, Offers Group Exhibition

Pushing Pop, a current exhibition by eight artists at the Artists Collective I Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, responds to the changes within popular culture since the original "pop art" movement of the early 1960s. The exhibition is on view in the Solomon Gallery at ACS through Feb. 25, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 16, from 5-8pm.

"The first time the term 'pop art' was officially used was in 1962, when A Symposium on the Pop Art was held by the Museum of Modern Art," says artist Steve Garner. "The art of popular culture, also known then as popular realism, new realism, neo-Dadaism and factualism, placed meaning and value on products of mass culture and contemporary life, creating a dichotomy between high- and low-brow aesthetics. Today, art is certainly more integrated into popular culture through modes of communication, thus the lines between high- and low-brow are considerably more blurred."

Garner continues, "In Pushing Pop, themes of mass production, consumption and values are investigated across multiple media by a group of artists who vary in age, experience and background. The varying degrees of personal experiences of the artists with the original movement present a multifaceted commentary on our present-day culture."

"The work in this exhibit serves to mirror our cultural progression through the changes we've undergone as technology transforms the objects and images we use in our everyday lives," he says. "Pushing Pop revisits this historic art movement, embracing fresh ideas for our time resulting in an inspiring exhibit that will provide a valuable memory for all those that view it."

Artists participating in the exhibition are Adam Burgess, Steve Garner, Andy Adams (who signs his work) A-N-D, Kent Ambler, Peggy Tanner Day, Ryan Roth, Kym Day and Carey Morton.

The impetus for the exhibit came from Adam Burgess, a visual artist who lives in Taylors, SC, and his teaching mentor and fellow artist Garner, who also is participating in the exhibit.

"We put together the idea of a traveling exhibit now titled Pushing Pop," Burgess says. "Joining with several other Upstate artists of different experiences, ages and genders, the group grew legs and went from an idea to reality. Now in its third gallery show, Pushing Pop morphs just as my own work continues to morph."

"I am pushing myself to create work that is 'pop' to show an evolution from the work done by pop artists from the past," continues Burgess, who received a master of art teaching from Lander University and a BFA in studio art with a focus on ceramic sculpture from Clemson University. "I want to express and address current political issues and cultural concerns as well as everyday imagery that we may take for granted, without repeating the works done before me."

"I don't hide my technique," he says. "I emphasize the use of grids in my work. I try to capture a sense of emotion in my subjects, while using colors as value. The brilliance of the colors in my work is very important to me and my style. As I move forward, my techniques continuously evolve as my subject matter and themes change."

For nearly a decade in Greenville County, Burgess has been lead teacher for high school visual arts and coaches boys volleyball, while he continues to paint out of his home studio.

Steve Garner, who was an art educator for over 30 years on both the college and secondary levels, retired to the art studio in 2013 and is an active member of the Pendleton Square Artist COOP, where he is the gallery director. He attended the University of North Dakota, earning a bachelor of art degree, master of arts degree in art education and the MFA in studio arts.

Today, some 40 years later, he says his use of media is often mixed, depending on the project. "I'm always running an experiment, trying something I haven't done before. My philosophy is that art should be fun to do, enjoyable to look at and have a life of its own."

Andy Adams, a native South Carolinian, is a graduate of Anderson University's South Carolina School of the Arts, receiving a bachelor's degree in fine arts. "There I took up all forms of art, but found I had an innate feel for painting and conceptual art. In my work I take a conceptual approach. While I want it to be aesthetic, I believe the concept should be key."

"I have an obsession/fascination with words and their impact on people, life and the world," continues Adams. "I've experimented with breaking down words into letters and explored the way that letters are harmless until people begin moving and placing them to make a word. I use letters in my work, and the viewers have a natural desire to make words out of the letters. By doing this, the work becomes interactive and personal to each viewer. The viewers essentially become a part of the work. Each piece also has a concept specific to the work."

Peggy Tanner Day, a native of Dallas, TX, is a self-taught artist who lives in Greenville, SC. "As a child, I was drawn to classical figurative realism, especially portraiture. I learned by studying the paint colors and brushwork in famous paintings in museums such as the Meadows Museum of Art in Dallas and the Amon G. Carter Museum of Art in Fort Worth, both of which were near my home."

Day began painting as an adult in 1993. While living in Atlanta, GA, she painted numerous large residential murals and ceilings, using her favorite Trompe L'oeil techniques. Over the years, she continued painting portrait and landscape commissions in oil, acrylic and pastel from home while raising her daughters, both of whom are talented artists as well. Now that her children are grown, she works from her home-studio in Greenville, SC.

Ryan Roth says, "As an artist, I am interested in exploring the theme of careerism and its impact on society. Through my flower paintings, I aim to illustrate the ways in which people are often consumed by their careers, sacrificing their personal lives and well-being in pursuit of success and achievement."

"My paintings depict a variety of flowers from Dutch flower paintings to more contemporary floral designs, each with its own unique beauty and fragility," Roth continues. "Overall, I use flowers as a metaphor for the short-lived nature of success and the pursuit of professional advancement. My flower paintings are intended to serve as a reminder of the importance of balance and self-care in our lives and to encourage viewers to consider the ways in which the pursuit of career success can sometimes come at the expense of our well-being and happiness. By incorporating these themes into my paintings, I hope to create a sense of beauty and vitality, while also prompting viewers to reflect on the deeper meaning and significance of their own lives and careers."

Roth, who teaches at the Fine Arts Center in Greenville, SC, earned his BFA from Valdosta State University and his MFA in drawing and painting at the University of Georgia.

Kent Ambler, a printmaker and painter living in Greenville, SC, graduated from Ball State University with a bachelor of fine arts degree in painting. He has been a full time painter since 1997.

"I have various directions with my work," Ambler says. "This particular series of woodcuts began about 15 years ago. I made a couple of pieces for this series each year. Some are based on scare tactic 'news' stories; some on popular culture."

Kym Day is a realist oil painter from McKinney, TX, who was raised in Georgia and the Carolinas. She received a BFA in painting from the Maryland Institute College of Art and an MFA in sculpture from Clemson University. Recently, she has taught at Clemson and Lander universities and has completed artist residencies at 701 CCA in Columbia, SC, and at the Bascom Center for Visual Arts in Highlands, NC. She currently works in her home studio in Greenville, SC, and exhibits her paintings nationally.

"My paintings filter the nostalgia for my Texan roots through the lenses of pop culture, daydream and fantasy," Day says. "I find utter joy in merging beauty with absurdity. My painting techniques and use of realism reflect my interest in art historical symbolism. The cowboys and livestock pictured in the work often find themselves subject to dream logic, navigating diversions like takeout food, wildfires and magic eight balls. These operate as metaphors for the junk we consume and create, and our vain desire to see into the future."

Carey Morton says, "My series explores the interconnectedness of seemingly opposing forces. Crutches, medical equipment and broken machinery are crafted to the likeness of firearms and weaponry. The political undertones of such forms viewed through the lens of our current cultural discourse are unavoidable. On an initial, surface level viewing the pieces speak to issues of violence and gun control, though this is not the final focus. Dissecting the work at a deeper, more nuanced level reveals an interesting dichotomy around cause-and-effect relationships. From the FDA and Big-Pharma, to drugs and regulated systematic education, to the simple binaries of life and death, there exist cycles and systems at play. Some unavoidable, some we ignore, others we choose to rely on; a crunch for society.”

“My work deals with the attributes of human dependence and symbiosis with nature, visceral instinct and how cultural experience influences the mind,” Morton says. “Using found objects as icons for our culturally accepted meaning and inherent attributes they represent. I physically alter, rebuild and reinterpret their form and meaning. These sculptures call into question the viewer’s personal interpretation attached to the objects and materials within the work.”

The 50 pieces of artwork in the Pushing Pop exhibition are offered for purchase.

Mint Museum Uptown in Charlotte, NC, Offers Works by Pablo Picasso

The Mint Museum Uptown, at the Levine Center for the Arts, will present Picasso Landscapes: Out of Bounds, on view from Feb. 11 through May 21, 2023.

Picasso Landscapes: Out of Bounds is the first museum exhibition to explore Pablo Picasso’s deep engagement with landscape subjects and his expansive approach to this traditional genre.

Through a selection of more than 40 works spanning Picasso’s full career, Picasso Landscapes: Out of Bounds, organized by American Federation of the Arts, is the first of only two venues in the United States – and the only venue on the East Coast – to feature this exceptional exhibition filled with works from private collections and international museums together. The dynamic grouping of works in the exhibition offers visitors an unparalleled window into the artist’s creative process, from his earliest days in art school (1896 when the artist was just 15 years old) to months before his passing in 1973.

Assembling some of Picasso’s greatest landscape compositions in one traveling exhibition, is part of The Picasso Celebration 1973-2023, structured around some 50 exhibitions and events that are being held in renowned cultural institutions in Europe and North America to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the artist’s death.

The Mint’s ticketed exhibition is the only museum exhibition that will be on view in the United States April 8, the date of Picasso’s passing that is part of The Picasso Celebration 1973-2023.

Picasso was committed to depicting landscapes throughout his entire life. From his earliest days in art school until the year before his death, landscape remained the prime genre through which he mediated his perception of the world and which shaped his own creative evolution. Landscape served as a catalyst for his formal experimentation, including early Cubism, as a field in which to investigate urban modernity, as an interface between humanity and nature, as a ground for direct sculptural intervention, as a space of personal withdrawal, as an inviting terrain for elegiac scenes, and as a territory of resistance and flight.

Within Picasso’s vast oeuvre, landscapes have received the least scholarly attention. This art-historical dearth notwithstanding, to ignore Picasso’s landscapes is to miss a crucial dimension of his achievement. Landscapes offer the clearest lens for understanding Picasso’s attentiveness to his cultural milieu as well as to his ongoing engagement with art-historical traditions.

This examination of Picasso’s landscapes highlights the artist’s attention to tensions between humanity and nature, and to the changing countryside being reshaped by industrialization. Picasso expressed this touring art exhibitions for presentation in museums around the world, publishing exhibition catalogues featuring important scholarly research, and developing educational programs.

April 8, 2023 will mark the 50th anniversary of the death of the Spanish artist Pablo Picasso and thus the year will represent the celebration of his work and his artistic legacy in France, Spain and internationally. The commemoration, accompanied by official celebrations in France and Spain, will make it possible to take stock of the research and interpretations of the artist’s work, especially during an important international symposium in autumn 2023, which also coincides with the opening of the Center for Picasso Studies in Paris. The Musée national Picasso-Paris and the Spanish National Commission for the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the death of Pablo Picasso are pleased to support this exceptional program.

Clemson University in Clemson, SC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Impact of Harvey Gantt

Clemson University in Clemson, SC, is presenting Legacy: Celebrating the Impact of Harvey Gantt, on view in the Lee Gallery, through Feb. 14, 2023.

Legacy: Celebrating the impact of Harvey Gantt seeks to retell the story of the legacy surrounding Harvey Gantt’s life and the events that changed South Carolina, Clemson, and our community. The exhibit showcases research conducted by current Clemson students and photographs taken by Cecil Williams as a backdrop to work created by individuals affiliated with Clemson University. Specifically, the exhibit makes visible the impact Harvey Gantt has had on decades of Clemson students and celebrates the legacy he has created and inspired.

Yet, different from previous celebrations, the exhibit serves as a counter-narrative bringing to view overlooked and undocmented voices to current histories mostly based on the limited records of institutional archives. Metaphorically, it is an interactive and immersive exhibition like a quilt fusing the work of many eyes and hands.

Visual artists include: Atelier InSite (Olivia “Rhen” Bennett, Katherine “Kate” Cisne, Joey Manson, Kelly C. Smith, Megan MJ Tapley), John Cummings, Alexandra Giannell, Brooks Harris Stevens, Tyrrell Huff, Caroline Owens, Madison Pate, Ann Pegelow Kaplan, Rachel Rinker, Milik Sanders, Rob Silance, Allison Sudlow, Megan “MJ” Tapley, Chris Tedesco, Cecil Williams, Winston Wingo and Leah Wright.

Architecture Studio participants include: Ryan Bing, Marissa Cutry, Jeremy Eaton, Mohamed Fakhry, Josh Guetin, Dan Harding, Bryan Hazel, Audrey Hesson, Henry Lee III, Kelly Umotoni, Chloe Voltaire, Edgar Alatorre, Ufuk Ersoy, Allie Glavey, Sallie Hambricht-Belue, Jalyn Hayes, Clarissa Mendez, Angie Mendoza, Seth Moore, Malik Sanders, Janelle Schmidt, Michael

So you’re the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you’re wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you’re the owner of a commercial art gallery and you’ve never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don’t see your exhibits included. My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, “Why that is the case?” If you’re not included - it’s your fault. Send your info about exhibits to “Carolina Arts” by e-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com). Our deadline is the 24th of the month “prior” to the month your exhibit starts.

Mint Museum Uptown in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Bearden & Picasso

The Mint Museum Uptown in Charlotte, NC, at the Levine Center for the Arts, will present Bearden/Picasso: Rhythms and Reverberations, on view from Feb. 11 through May 21, 2023.

Bearden/Picasso: Rhythms and Reverberations examines the impact of Pablo Picasso’s rich artistic practice on Romare Bearden and his work. The exhibition is divided into four sections: Bulls & Bull-fights; Music & Rhythm; Doors & Windows; and Line & Color. Each section will feature works by Pablo Picasso and Romare Bearden.

While various aspects of Bearden’s engagement with Picasso and Cubism have been occasionally explored, this is the first museum exhibition organized to explore the parallels between the artists. The works in the exhibition are drawn from the Mint’s deep holdings of Bearden’s art, as well as from both private and museum collections.

Bearden was an ardent scholar of art history who saw many examples of Picasso’s work in New York in the 1940s. Bearden wrote about various aspects of Picasso’s work during that time and also met Picasso in Paris in the 1950s. The influence of Cubism, and of Picasso’s work in particular, can be seen across Bearden’s career, from his early oils and watercolors of the 1940s in which his subjects are presented in abstracted planes of color. In the 1950s, Bearden’s experimentations with pure abstraction and Cubism can be seen at play. Bearden’s

Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, Features Works by Dr. Minuette Floyd

The Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, is presenting This Far by Faith: Carolina Camp Meetings, An African-American Tradition, featuring works by Dr. Minuette Floyd, on view in the Bassett Gallery, through Feb. 28, 2023.

This exhibition represents a fourteen-year journey of research, photographs, and video footage by Dr. Minuette Floyd, professor of art education in the School of Visual Art & Design at USC Columbia’s campus. Consisting of 42 large black and white photographs, this exhibit explores both the history and traditions of camp meetings that take place annually in the Carolinas.

“Worship Service” by Dr. Minuette Floyd

Floyd’s interest in camp meetings derived from her own personal experiences of attending camp meetings in North Carolina. Upon returning to this tradition as an adult, she realized that research and publications were extremely limited and decided to capture the tradition for future generations. Since 2001, Floyd has travelled to seven African-American campgrounds and captured the rich tradition through photography, video, and oral interviews.

“We’re so excited to welcome this exhibition to the Arts Center,” says Executive Director Dolly Patton. “The pictures themselves are spectacular, and to have Dr.

Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, Offers Works by 20th-Century Women Artists

The Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, is presenting an exhibition of works by 20th-century women artists with ties to the South, entitled, Our Own Work, Our Own Way: Ascendant Women Artists in the Johnson Collection, on view through May 21, 2023.

Presented by the Johnson Collection, of Spartanburg, SC, the exhibition brings together 42 female artists of the 20th century who had connections to the South - including Emma Amos, Beverly Buchanan, Elaine de Kooning, Zelda Fitzgerald, Gwendolyn Knight, and Columbia's own Laura Spong - while shining a spotlight on several other regional artists.

"This exhibition allows us to consider the artistic innovations of the 20th century - from Cubist-inspired still lifes to fully abstract and conceptual works - through the unique lens of women artists with ties to our region," says CMA Curator Michael Neumeister.

Our Own Work, Our Own Way presents a window onto the artistic developments of the 20th century, shown from the vantage of women artists with ties to the South. These artists routinely encountered resistance in their quest to gain parity, especially when their mode of expression was distinctly modern in style or subject, and many are just beginning to receive critical attention. Furthermore, contemporary female artists of color faced what Lois Mailou Jones, also featured in the exhibition, termed the "double handicap" of racism and sexism. Like their sisters to the north, these Southern women often worked alongside, but in the shadows of, their more celebrated male counterparts, despite the commonalities - dynamic brushwork, bold color, and abstract imagery - of their canvases.

Comprised of artwork from the 1930s to the 1990s, Our Own Work, Our Own Way champions a roster of artists whose aesthetic achievements transcended convention and invigorated the South's modern milieu: Anni Albers, Emma Amos, McDonald Bane, Nell Blaine, Dusti Bongé, Beverly Buchanan, Selma Burke, Margaret Burroughs, Mary Callery, Josephine Couper, Elaine de Kooning, Jeanet Dreskin, Jeanet Dreskin-Haig, Caroline Durieux, Zelda Fitzgerald, Maud Gatewood, Judith Godwin, Anne Goldthwaite, Lee Hall, Fannie Hillsmith, Marie Hull, Valerie Jaudon, Elizabeth Jennerjahn, Lois Mailou Jones, Karen Karnes, Gina Kneel, Gwendolyn Knight, Dorothy Kohlhepp, Adele Lemm, Edith London, Corrie McCallum, Augusta Oelschig, Pat Passlof, Mavis Pusey, Jo Sandman, Gladys Smith, Laura Spong, Anna Heyward Taylor, Grace Taylor, Alma Thomas, Mary Thomas, and Susan Weil. These artists pushed boundaries not only in terms of their gender, but also the artistic styles in which they worked.

Hailed by The Magazine Antiques for having staged a "quiet art historical revolution" and expanding "the meaning of regional" through its "exhibitions, loans, publications, and institutional partnerships," the Johnson Collection seeks to illuminate the rich history and diverse cultures of the American South. With holdings that offer an extensive survey of artistic activity from the late 18th century to the present day, the collection works to advance interest in the dynamic role that the art of the South plays in the larger context of American art and to contribute to the canon of art historical literature. Founded in 2002 as a private collection for public good, the Johnson Collection is located in Spartanburg, South.

"It's an honor to have Our Own Work, Our Own Way so beautifully installed at the Columbia Museum of Art," says Carter Johnson, co-curator of the exhibition and daughter-in-law of the collection's owners. "The artists in this exhibition, both familiar and new, provide an important reminder of the essential, but often overlooked, role of women artists in the tapestry of American Art."

The Columbia Museum of Art is a charitable nonprofit organization dedicated to lifelong learning and community enrichment for all. Located in the heart of downtown Columbia, SC, the CMA ranks among the leading art institutions in the country and is distinguished by its innovative exhibitions and creative educational programs. At the heart of the CMA and its programs is its collection, which encompasses 7,000 works and spans 5,000 years of art history. Established in 1950, the CMA now welcomes more than 150,000 visitors annually and is a catalyst for community creativity and education, engaging people of all ages and backgrounds. It is the recipient of a National Medal from the Institute of Museum and Library Services, a National Art Education Association award for its contributions to arts education, a National Park Foundation Award, and two Governor's Awards for the Arts for outstanding contributions to the arts in South Carolina. In order to serve even more audiences, the CMA underwent a transformation. Funded by a successful capital campaign, the two-year renovation project garnered new collection galleries with a progressive thematic layout, new studios for artmaking, cutting-edge program and event spaces, and an entrance on Main Street. Overall, more than 15,000 square feet of functional space were added to the building's existing footprint.

Work by Michelle Rozic

On view in Gallery A through May 6, 2023, is the exhibition, Thin Places: Kiliii Yuyan.

Yuyan states, "I will always remember those nights with the burning, glowing embrace of the fireflies. In the space around my body, they floated like a thousand miniature green-yellow lanterns, blazing long enough to be seen, but gone quickly enough to escape my cupped hands. It's embedded in me to see the fireflies as spirit beings here. I've never met a person who hasn't felt their otherworldly nature. Indeed, my Indigenous ancestors referred to wild creatures as 'men in other shirts'. For animistic peoples, our world is inhabited by spirits, which only reveal themselves in particular circumstances or places. But somehow, I think, we all feel this regardless of where we come from."

"And that spot by the pond out in the summer darkness with the fireflies? That's my quintessential thin place," says Yuyan.

"I suppose that's why, even as I walk through a world largely shaped by religion or science, I pause when I come across a thin place," adds Yuyan. "I can't help but feel it, to be confused by it, to be transformed – ever so subtly – by it. Thin Places are sometimes full of grandeur and other times mundane. Encountering a thin place can be unpredictable, as when I'm walking across the tundra and the aurora borealis flares overhead. Many northern communities speak of communing with their ancestors in the northern lights.

"The thin places are waypoints in my personal songline. I seek them out because they guide my way home, help me understand where I come from. I may be separated from my ancestral borders by history and hostile borders, but sometimes my ancestors are right there in front of me, blazing in the night," says Yuyan.

On view in Mayer Gallery, through May 6, 2023, is the exhibit, Transformations: App DigiFab, featuring works by Adam Adcock, Andrew Bailey Arend, Travis Donovan, Derek Eggers, Richard Elaver, Frankie Flood, Chelsea Helms, Mark Nystrom, Andres Tellez, and Nicole Villarreal.

An exhibition of new design and art works showcasing experimental applications of computer-aided design and fabrication technologies.

Work by Kiliiii Yuyan

Digital design and fabrication technologies have radically transformed the way artists and designers conceive and produce work. This exhibition explores how digital tools for design and fabrication are being utilized and taught by contemporary artists, designers, and architects, and how those tools influence the work being produced in various fields. A group of faculty and staff from Appalachian State University have come together to exhibit their new work using these digital tools in unique ways.

App DigiFab – the Digital Design and Fabrication Learning Community is a group of faculty and staff exploring the professional and educational use of computer aided design (CAD) and digital fabrication hardware used for three-dimensional design, visualization, and fabrication. The connecting link between all of them is the use of digital tools for creative work and problem solving.

While the tools used are similar (including 3D modeling software, 3D printing, and CNC machines) the application of those tools varies greatly among disciplines. This exhibition highlights that diversity in both subject and output, including two-dimensional images, sculptural objects, and architectural projects.

The group includes members from the departments of Fine Arts, Applied Design, and Sustainable Technology & the Built Environment, and explores multiple applications related to digital design, fabrication, and representation.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Pattern and Decoration

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, will present Too Much Is Just Right: The Legacy of Pattern and Decoration, on view in the Explore Asheville Exhibition Hall, from Feb. 2 – May 29, 2023.

In the past 50 years in the United States and beyond, artists have sought to break down social and political hierarchies that include issues of identity, gender, power, race, authority, and authenticity. Unsurprisingly, these decades generated a reconsideration of the idea of pattern and decoration as a third option to figuration and abstraction in art. From 1972 to 1985, artists in the Pattern and Decoration movement worked to expand the visual vocabulary of contemporary art to include ethnically and culturally diverse options that eradicated the barriers between fine art and craft and questioned the dominant minimalist aesthetic. These artists did so by incorporating opulence and bold intricacies garnered from such wide-ranging inspirations as United States quilt-making and Islamic architecture.

Too Much Is Just Right: The Legacy of Pattern and Decoration features more than 70 artworks in an array of media from both the original time frame of the Pattern and Decoration movement, as well as contemporary artworks created between 1985 and the present. The artworks in this exhibition demonstrate the vibrant and varied approaches to pattern and decoration in art. Sections will explore the history of pattern and decoration's use in American art during and after the now formally recognized movement was established. Artworks from the 21st century elucidate contemporary perspectives on the employment of pattern to inform visual vocabularies and investigations of diverse themes in the present day.

Artworks drawn from the Asheville Art Museum's Collection join select major loans and feature Pattern and Decoration artists Valerie Jaudon, Joyce Kozloff, Robert Kushner, and Miriam Schapiro, as well as Anni Albers, Elizabeth Alexander,

North Carolina Arboretum in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Andrea Rich

The North Carolina Arboretum in Asheville, NC, is presenting An Abundance of Riches: Woodcuts of Andrea Rich, on view in the Baker Visitor Center, through May 14, 2023.

Rich's intricately designed, carved, and printed woodcuts draw viewers in for an up-close look. Some of the artist's earliest memories are of drawing animals. Childhood encounters with pets, livestock, and wildlife, including birds, deer, and toads, created a lasting connection to the natural world. Through encounters with creatures both tame and wild, Rich developed a fascination and a compassion for animals integral to her art.

Work by Andrea Rich

"My prints are a visual record of the intriguing creatures that have enriched my life," says Rich. "The woodcut process challenges me to focus on the essence of my subjects. At the same time, I am drawn to the smell of the wood, its texture and grain, and the pleasure I experience while carving. I begin working on a block of wood and realize later that hours have passed without notice."

Rich uses a centuries-old medium that requires one carved wood panel for each color – varying from one to sixteen – necessary to develop the composition. These panels are painstakingly aligned one atop another sequentially and pulled through a printing press to create the final woodcut.

The subjects of Rich's woodcuts range from the wilderness of the Australian outback and the lush tropical Amazon forests to the roaring rivers of Yellowstone Park. Rich has traveled worldwide to study wildlife habitats and these varied firsthand experiences are reflected in her work.

Among Rich's many achievements are international recognition for her woodcut prints, including a 2009 Award of Excellence from the Society of Animal Artists and a 2009 Medal of Excellence from the Artists for Conservation Foundation. She was named Master Artist by the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum in 2006. In 2010 her work was featured in a solo exhibition at the Mass Audubon Visual Arts Center, Canton, MA. Rich is a member of the California Society of Printmakers, Artists for Nature Foundation, the Society of Animal Artists, and Society of Wildlife Artists.

In 2000 Rich designated the Woodson Art Museum as the repository for her artistic oeuvre. An Abundance of Riches is drawn from these holdings, which include an example of each of her woodcuts created since the mid-1980s.

Bullets and Band-aids Traveling Exhibition Comes To Both North and South Carolina

Bullets and Band-aids – Volume 4: The Next Step, is a continuation of our living anthology, this time with 115 participants, stories ranging from WWII to the civilian experience of having veterans in their lives, and a massive swath of different artforms, from oils and acrylics to sculptures and knives. We have participants from Afghanistan, Russia, Ukraine, and more.

We haven't just done this to convince everyone that we're sharing a common human journey, and with that understanding, a sense of support and responsibility for those around you. We do this simply to remind everyone, as we've done three times before, each time adding and changing aspects in order to fully highlight the stories our veteran participants have had the bravery to tell.

Some people have said what we do is impossible. Our organization not only shows it's possible, we show it is necessary. Our mission is to bring about social cohesion between veterans and civilians through a collaborative art project. By blurring the line between these participants, we can underscore that we are all in this together, sharing our lives and humanity, regardless of our past experiences.

Featured artists include: Jason Henry Anderson, Haley Beann, Kara Bender, Gina Langston Brewer, Jessica "JB" Burke, G. David Burnell, Catherine E. Case, Barb Cherry, Keef Cross, Heather and Mark Davern, Jeff Elmore, Dawn Faber, Vanessa Grebe, Charity Hamidullah, Spencer Herr, Marjorie M. American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, Annual Small Works Exhibition

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, will present its 19th Annual Miniatures Show, on view from Feb. 3 - 22, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm.

In the depths of winter, American Folk will warm your soul with their 19th Annual Miniatures Show! Just in time for Valentine's Day, these small but mighty works make the perfect gift for that special someone in your life who loves art or has long admired the artists American Folk represents.

Work by Vicki Miller

There is much to love about a small work of art: often the smaller size requires more attention to detail and delicacy than larger pieces & as a result a palpable intimacy can be felt in the imagery and execution. A miniature painting tends to be quite affordable, so new collectors can purchase original art, and experienced collectors can find an exceptional piece to tuck into an established scoop of clay remains, it can spark an idea and find its way to this event.

To celebrate the opening of the 19th Annual Miniatures Show, American Folk will hold a reception on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm. Guests to this free event can purchase locally created bouquets of flowers and commission an on-demand poem from Asheville's own typewriter poet, Eddie

Pink Dog Gallery in Asheville, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on the Nude

Pink Dog Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present The Nude: Beauty, Grace and Form. Celebrating the Human Figure, featuring works by Bonnie Currie, Cyrus Glance, Joseph Pearson, Skip Rohde, Josh Tripoli, and Leafin Winecoff, on view from Feb. 4 through Apr. 1, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 5-8pm.

The human figure is the most complex form in nature. Understanding how the body works and practicing drawing it helps us understand other forms in nature as well. It trains an artist to see almost every form of curve, line, and subtle undulation found in nature. Whether an artist is primarily a figurative painter or not, life drawing benefits the artist to see motion, form and subtlety in a new way.

Work by Skip Rohde

The six artists in the exhibition represent an eclectic group of artistic approaches that includes painting, collage, ink wash drawing and mixed media. Winecoff draws her figures on old textbook pages. Tripoli builds figure compositions by gradually adding multiple figures into one sketch/piece. Pearson uses ink washes. The works in the exhibit are designed to offer the many and varied interpretations of the human figure.

The artists all live in the Asheville area

Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Vitus Shell

The Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem, NC, will present Vitus Shell: 'Bout It 'Bout It, The Political Power of Just Being, an exhibition of portraits by mixed-media collage by Louisiana-based artist, Vitus Shell, on view in the Center's Main Gallery, from Feb. 2 through June 18, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 2, from 5-8pm.

This exhibition was organized by the Hilliard Art Museum, Lafayette, Louisiana and curated by Benjamin M. Hickey, Curator of Exhibitions, Hilliard Art Museum, University of Louisiana at Lafayette. The exhibition is co-sponsored by Blanco Tackabery Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

Portraiture as a genre holds a grand position within the history of art and has for centuries been employed to glorify White monarchs, leaders, icons, and religious figures. Shell creates portraits that challenge this tradition, while also sharing a concern for the historical representation of Black bodies. For example, the composition of his portraits includes faux gold gilding and oval or circular picture windows—stylistic trends often found in Byzantine and Renaissance portraiture to indicate power, status, and the eternal. Shell also rejects the convention of framing his works. Instead, his canvases hang in an ad-hoc manner with grommets, boasting waves and slightly curled edges. The presentation implies a quickly wheat-pasted handbill for a trendy nightclub or a banner at a protest rally.

Perhaps more importantly, Shell's sitters are familiar and members of his community.

Cabbage! "What more perfect way to celebrate the opening of such a spirited show and Valentine's Day than with poetry, flowers and beautiful art!" says American Folk owner Julia L. Mills.

ers his sitters, and by association the Black American community, to reject limited two-dimensional depictions of themselves for ones in which they are interlocutors with their past and present struggles, while being in dialogue with the American Dream on their terms.

"My goal with my work in this exhibition is to make black folks feel comfortable when visiting art spaces by seeing themselves or people they know in the portraits that I paint," said Shell. "By doing this, I'm hoping to encourage the next black creative to see themselves as an agent of change and fight by using their talent to create safe spaces for their communities."

Shell is a mixed-media collage painter born in Monroe, LA, where he lives and works. His work is geared toward the black experience, giving agency to people from this community through powerful images deconstructing, sampling, and remixing identity, civil rights, and contemporary black culture.

Shell received a BFA from Memphis College of Art in Tennessee, 2000 and an MFA from University of Mississippi, 2008. As of 2020, Shell is currently a Visiting Assistant Professor at Louisiana Tech University. To date, Shell has accumulated an impressive list of achievements. He was an artist-in-residence at Crosstown Arts, Hermitage Artist Retreat, BemisCenter for the Contemporary Arts, Mass MoCA, Joan Mitchell Center, Skowhegan School of Art, Tougaloo Art Colony, and Masur Museum of Art. Exhibitors of his work include The McKenna Museum of African American Art, New Orleans, LA, Gallery Aferro, Newark, NJ, New Orleans Museum of Art, University of Louisiana at Monroe, LA, Philander Smith College, Little Rock, AR, Cue Art Foundation, NYC, Stephen F. Austin University, Nacogdoches, TX, University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, Tennessee Art Commission Gallery, Nashville, TN, Miami University, Oxford, OH, and University of Alabama at Huntsville. Shell's mural project collaborators include the National Civil Rights Museum's NBA Pioneers exhibit, Indianola City Pool in Vitus Shell, "Not New to This, Tru to This", 2019. Indianola, MS, Union Parish Elementary School in Farmerville, LA; and the Memphis Urban Art Commission. Shell has received numerous grant awards including the Joan Mitchell MFA Award and Camille Hanks-Cosby Scholarship.

The Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA), an affiliate of the North Carolina Museum of Art and division of the NC Department of Natural & Cultural Resources, offers a front row seat to the art of our time through exhibitions, experiences, and education programs with a focus on regional working artists. Founded in 1956 and located on the scenic James G. Hanes estate in Winston-Salem, SECCA offers unique large-scale indoor and outdoor settings for exploring the intersections of contemporary art and culture.

SECCA is located on Marguerite Drive in Winston-Salem. Recent exhibiting artists include Will Wilson, Kara Walker, Lonnie Holley, Elizabeth Alexander, Esteban Cabeza de Baca, Freeman Vines, Jillian Mayer, and Antoine Williams. An ongoing Southern Idiom exhibition series highlights the work of Winston-Salem artists.

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Offers Restored Work by Thomas Hart Benton

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Prohibition Days: The Conservation of Thomas Hart Benton's "Bootleggers", on view in the Museum's Northeast Bedroom Gallery, through May 28, 2023.

Like any organism or machine, works of art need to be maintained, protected from adverse conditions, and occasionally treated or repaired. The canvases of Thomas Hart Benton pose unique conservation challenges, because the artist often combined incompatible media, including egg tempera (in which pigment is mixed with egg yolks and water) and acrylic paint. With funding provided by the Bank of America's Art Conservation Project, Bootleggers was recently restored to the sharply faceted, glowing, gem-like glory of its original appearance when it was completed in 1927.

Benton's painting remains an embodiment of the roaring twenties in all their restless energy, excess, and opposing forces. In this large-scale painting, we observe the life cycle of a bottle of hooch—the era of Prohibition distilled into a single scene. This was Benton's first canvas to address contemporary social problems and dramatic changes in American life. New technologies, new class struggles, and new forms of entertainment would become his primary subjects.

He wrote that, "The new airplanes, the blimps, the dredges, because they were so interesting in themselves, tore me away from all my grooved habits, from my play with colored cubes and classic attenuations, from my aesthetic drivelings and morbid self-concerns."

With Bootleggers, Benton began a series of indictments of the corrupting influence of power and capitalistic exploitation in 1920s America. The economy of Benton's storytelling and the expressiveness of his bristling, rippled, and elongated figures have given the work its enduring appeal, long after the folly of Prohibition ended.

This exhibition is curated by Phil Archer, Betsy Main Babcock Deputy Director of Reynolda House.

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Stephen Towns

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, will present Stephen Towns: Declaration & Resistance, on view in the Mary and Charlie Babcock Wing Gallery, from Feb. 18 through May 14, 2023.

Stephen Towns: Declaration & Resistance examines the American dream through the lives of Black Americans from the late eighteenth century to the present time. Using labor as a backdrop, Towns highlights the role African Americans have played in building the economy, and explores how their resilience, resistance, and perseverance have challenged the United States to truly embrace the tenets of its Declaration of Independence.

Towns has created paintings and story quilts that expand the historical narratives of enslaved and free people who toiled under the most extreme hardships, yet persevered through acts of rebellion, skillful guile, and self-willed determination. Within this arresting body of work, Towns also shows the beauty and love that Black people possess beyond the grips of white supremacy.

Stephen Towns: Declaration & Resistance is organized and toured by The Westmoreland Museum of American Art, Greensburg, PA, and was curated by Kило beadwork have been showcased on notable icons such as Stevie Wonder, Nina Simone, Cicely Tyson, Beah Richards and Abbie Lincoln to name a few.

The exhibition features more than one hundred photographs including three dimensional objects and artifacts that represent a fraction of Malikia's rich historical archive. These photographs highlight the elegant and elaborate braided hairstyles and techniques spanning the 1970s through the early 2000s that began in Los Angeles, California. The artistic influence of her sculpted hair styles set a trend for American society as we know it, and layer the foundation of a culturally rich legacy for African American women and men across the diaspora.

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Alix Hitchcock and Lea Lackey-Zachmann

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Feathers, Leaves, & Trees, featuring works by Alix Hitchcock and Lea Lackey-Zachmann, on view through Feb. 25, 2023. Receptions will be held on Feb. 12, from 7-9pm and Feb. 12, from 2-4pm.

Alix Hitchcock is exhibiting new hand colored and hand pulled dry-point prints. These one of a kind monoprints are based on initial drawings from shadows of trees and foliage.

Working instinctively, Hitchcock considers the art process an unpredictable visual journey that starts with a structural set up but with much left for accidental results and evolving responses. Her work communicates a sense of awe in the presence of Nature, and brings the viewer into each art work's world of mystery, as well as portraying a type of "emotional abstraction", as the artist Arthur Dove said of his art.

Work by Alix Hitchcock

Work by Lea Lackey-Zachmann

Hitchcock received her MA in painting from NYU, and her BFA in printmaking and painting from UNC-G. She is a retired Instructor in Drawing at WFU. She was the W-S Artist of the Year in 1998, and is a founding board member of Artworks Gallery. She has exhibited widely in N.C., and in shows in Kentucky, Virginia, South Carolina, New York City, and Wyoming.

A large ink drawing of banana leaves by Lea Lackey-Zachmann is one of four graphite, ink and acrylic works in this exhibition. Three dimensional paintings and large colored pencil drawings complete her showing.

The similar shapes and forms in trees, leaves and feathers common in our natural environment are subjects in this exhibition. An appreciation for the complexity and similarities in these natural forms provides an avenue for understanding and appreciating the commonalities with all living beings and the natural world.

Lea Lackey-Zachmann holds an MFA in painting and graduate teaching certification from UNC-G and a BA from Winthrop University. She is retired from teaching art at High Point University and prior regional colleges. She has shown her works throughout the southeast and is a founding member of Artworks Gallery. Gardening is her passion along with her husband, two dogs and their cat, Be.

Footnote Coffee and Cocktails in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Elliot Strunk

Footnote Coffee and Cocktails in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Mixed Results, featuring works by Elliot Strunk, through Mar. 9, 2023.

New to the fine art world, Strunk is a graphic designer who has had a fascination with collage for years. He lives and works in Winston-Salem.

Centered around the idea of consumption, Strunk's art is made using found objects and ephemera: cardboard from a case of cat food or beer; trash discovered in a parking lot; preselected colors from completed paint-by-numbers kits. There is no master plan. What gets used is left to chance.

Framed and unframed pieces, different styles of note cards and some jumbo collage stickers are all available for sale.

As you browse through the collection, you will appreciate his artistic choices and stylistic approaches to tease meaning from seemingly random combinations of visual elements. Purchase an original for a friend, leave with a beautiful piece of art for your own collection or share Strunk's art by mailing a note card to a friend.

Please visit Footnote Coffee and Cocktails for this unique opportunity to experience Elliot's collage work in person.

Yadkin Arts Council in Yadkinville, NC, Offers Works by Houck Medford

The Yadkin Arts Council in Yadkinville, NC, is presenting What Happened - Houck Medford's Photographic Witness for Floyd County, Virginia, on view in the Welborn Gallery, through Feb. 24, 2023.

This collection of platinum prints (platinum prints) is presented in partnership with Special Collections & Archives, Z. Smith Reynolds Library, Wake Forest University, curated by Tsing Liu ('23), Wake Forest University.

Situated on a high plateau adjacent to the Blue Ridge escarpment of Southwest Virginia, Floyd County was officially established in 1831. From the beginning, its economy has been dominated by agriculture. Newcomers and settlers built homes, raised families, attended provincial schools and churches, grew crops, and grazed cattle. But into the 20th century, substantial homes were abandoned leaving the rolling landscape dotted with residences which now no longer have occupants. What happened?

University of North Carolina in Greensboro, NC, Features Two New Exhibitions

The University of North Carolina in Greensboro, NC, is presenting two new exhibits on view at the Weatherspoon Art Museum, including: Endia Beal - Corporate Disclosure, on view in Gallery 6, through May 13, 2023, and To Serve the People: Prints from Mexico's Taller de Gráfica Popular, on view in The Gregory D. Ivy and Weatherspoon Guild Galleries, through May 13, 2023.

Working from her own and others' personal stories, artist Endia Beal highlights the realities and challenges faced by Black women in corporate workplaces. With equal parts empathy and biting critique, she explores how gender, race, and conventional notions of professionalism are often used - intentionally or not - against women of color. In the videos that comprise this exhibition, Beal deploys a variety of artistic strategies blending documentation and performance.

Organized by Dr. Emily Stamey, curator and head of exhibitions, and presented in collaboration with the UNGC School of Art as part of its Falk Visiting Artist program.

To Serve the People: Prints from Mexico's Taller de Gráfica Popular, is on view on the Museum's 2nd Floor.

"In order to serve the people, art must reflect the social reality of the times."

In 1937, this belief inspired the foundation of the Taller de Gráfica Popular (the People's Print Workshop), commonly known as the TGP, in Mexico City. Committed to the progressive idealism of the Mexican Revolution, the artists of the TGP worked together to create prints, posters, flyers, and other works on paper aimed at educating the widest possible audience about the social issues of their day. Fundamental to their artistic production was a democratic group process of collective critiques and negotiated decision making.

That commitment to shared learning and leadership has likewise fueled the production of this exhibition. In fall 2022, students in two UNGC art history courses came together to study the history and output of the TGP, as well as collaboratively curate this installation. The layout of artworks in the galleries, the texts presented alongside them, and a supporting timeline of Mexican history were all generated by the students through a process of individual readings and presentations, group discussions and critiques, multiple small-group working sessions, and many rounds of peer editing.

At the heart of the students' work was an incredible collection of over one hundred TGP prints brought together by Dr. Robert Healy, Professor Emeritus of Environmental Policy at Duke University, and recently promised to the Weatherspoon. This transformative gift to the museum's collection provides rich material for teaching not only in art history but also across such disciplines as economics, geography, history, and sociology, to name just a few.

Organized by the students of ARH490 and Dr. Emily Stamey, curator and head of exhibitions, with the students of ARH219 and Dr. Nicole Scalissi, assistant professor of art history.

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, Features South Arts Exhibition

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, is presenting South Arts Southern Prize & State Fellows 2021, on view in the Steven F. Gately Gallery, located in downtown Florence, SC, through Feb. 24, 2023.

An exhibition series that in 2019 originated at 701 Center for Contemporary Art in Columbia, SC, and is rapidly becoming the most important annual show of contemporary art made in the US.

The show will include work by Charleston, SC, artist Fletcher Williams III, who was the 2021 Southern Prize Finalist, or runner-up, Huntersville, NC, artist Jewel Ham, and Florida's Marielle Plaisir, the 2021 Southern Prize Winner.

701 CCA initiated the first Southern Prize exhibition in 2019 in partnership with South Arts, the umbrella organization for state arts agencies in nine Southern states. South Arts launched the Southern Prize & State Fellows awards project in 2017, the first two years without an exhibition component. The inaugural 2019 exhibition traveled from 701 CCA to the Bo Bartlett Center in Columbus, GA, which since also has hosted the 2020 and 2021 exhibitions.

"Each year that South Arts makes these awards, we are awed by the depth and artistry in our region," South Arts president and CEO Suzette M. Surkamer, a former head of the South Carolina Arts Commission, wrote in the exhibition catalogue. When South Arts in 2017 launched the first cycle of Southern Prize and State Fellowships recipients, Surkamer wrote, "we did not know what to expect and were positively blown away by the response." The current cohort, Surkamer wrote, reminds us "what it means to be resilient." The emotionally taxing times of COVID-19, political upheaval and urgent calls "for long overdue justice and equity" did not stop the 2021 South Arts fellows, Surkamer added. "Each artist took what 2020 gave them and declared that 2021 will be brighter and stronger."

For the Southern Prize, artists from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Tennessee can submit a portfolio of their work. An independent jury selects one fellow from each state, from which a second jury panel selects two finalists for the Southern Prize. Each state fellow receives $5,000, the Southern Prize runner-up receives an additional $10,000, and the winner, an additional $25,000. Both finalists also receive a residency at the Hambridge Center for Creative Arts and Sciences in Rabun Gap, GA. South Arts has so far awarded $400,000 through the project to contemporary artists living and working in the South.

In addition to Williams, Ham and Plaisir, the artists in the current exhibition are Tameca Cole of Alabama, Raheleh Filsoofi of Tennessee, Joyce Garner of Kentucky, Myra Greene of Georgia, Ming Ying Hong of Mississippi and artists duo

Keith Calhoun and Chandra McCormick of Louisiana. The 2021 cohort of South Arts fellows is the most diverse group to date. Of the six American-born artists, all but Garner are African American. Filsoofi is from Iran, Plaisir was born in France but has roots in Guadeloupe and Hong was born in China but raised in Los Angeles.

The Steven F. Gately Gallery is located on North Dargan Street in downtown Florence.

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, Offers Works by Wolly V. McNair

Francis Marion University in Florence, SC, is presenting oneEmperors: Legends of the Ebony Empire, featuring works by Wolly V. McNair, on view in FMU's Kassab Gallery, through Feb. 23, 2023.

"My name is Wolly McNair. I am a dad, husband, freelance illustrator, designer, and dreamer born in Lumberton, NC, raised in Charlotte, NC. I have always pushed for ownership in the things that I do. As a kid, I had the same dreams most have, become successful and take care of those I love. But the options to do so seemed limited. I was fortunate to be able to draw a little, and even more fortunate to have people around me that encouraged me to keep doing so. No one around me knew how to turn it into something that would pay the bills, but they knew I enjoyed it, and never knocked me for it."

Some of Rodin's best-known sculptures are represented such as Balzac, figures from The Burghers of Calais, and maquettes from The Gates of Hell. The title of this exhibition comes from Rodin himself, who said that artwork, "...opens before us an enchanted land of contemplation and dreams."

"Head of Shade with Two Hands" by Auguste Rodin

Auguste Rodin (1840-1917) was a pivotal figure and is to this day celebrated as the greatest sculptor of the 19th century. His work influenced many sculptors in Europe and America and his students carried forward his beliefs in sculpture into the 20th century. Most well-known for his sculpture The Thinker, housed in the Rodin Museum in Paris, Rodin created many iconic works that altered the way traditional sculpture was perceived and set the stage for many modern sculptors to come.

This exhibition has been organized and made possible by the Iris and B. Gerald

Art in Bloom in Wilmington, NC, Features Works by Mark Gansor and Gale Smith

Art in Bloom in Wilmington, NC, is presenting Bold and Bright: New Work by Mark Gansor & Gale Smith, on view through Feb. 26, 2023.

Gansor is a landscape painter using impasto surfaces to capture fleeting moments caught in the light. His works are playful and full of color! Complimenting his paintings are the sculptural metal works by mixed media artist Gale Smith. His work in this exhibit is about the transformation of sheets of copper into complex assemblages that create a distinctive visual impact while allowing the intrinsic beauty of the metal to shine through. Vibrant colors dance across the copper pieces and create abstract geometrical shapes. These intricate works contain rich textures and reveal extraordinary manifestations of color and formations.

Mark Gansor is a native of Pittsburgh, PA. Out of several decades of work as a decorative finisher and classical musician, Gansor's career as a painter was born. Entirely self-taught he is now secure enough to tell people that he is an artist. He works in acrylics thickly applied to the canvas with knives, fingers, and occasionally brushes.

Since moving to Wilmington five years ago he has been caught up in the artistic vibe of the city, and the historical structures, nature, and the downtown all figure in his work. He has painted or restored original work in several structures on the National Registry which have added to his love of all things old or unusual. The beautiful old churches speak to him, bringing his love of sacred music and the pipe organ back time and time again.

For several years Gansor has been painting works on canvas and hopes that this can be his career in retirement. His work is available at Art in Bloom Gallery. He has also recently become Director of Music Ministries at St Andrews Covenant Presbyterian Church in downtown Wilmington.

Work by Gale Smith

Having studied at UNC Chapel Hill, Gale Smith considers painting as an ongoing study. She has found a new interest in working with copper. As a plein air painter, she began using copper panels as her canvas and loved how the copper made her colors warm and vibrant. She experimented with different gauges of copper and mediums and discovered that inks and oils on copper made colors radiate vibrantly.

Never quite sure where the colors and copper will take her, Smith paints, cuts and weaves two abstract paintings together to create a dimensional piece of art. The soft gentle curves that she cuts into the copper, allows her to form the piece into soothing and thought provoking structural designs. It is her desire that the viewer will experience a personal interaction with her art. Often, she writes small quotes, prayers or poems that relate to the piece of work on the back of the copper strips and weaves them into the design.

Smith donates a portion of the proceeds from her sales to various organizations and charities. She is an award winning artist with her works exhibited in galleries, private collections and corporate installations.

Art in Bloom Gallery in Wilmington, NC, Features Works by Tim Smith

Art in Bloom Gallery in Wilmington, NC, is presenting Monochrome Moments: A Photographic Glimpse into Nature, featuring works by Tim Smith, on view through Feb. 26, 2023.

"Tim's images, shown here in black/white, illustrate a keen interest in light and composition. His visual voice is often one of quiet reflection and introspection. He is skilled enough to give the viewer those same emotions. His talents have convinced local and regional photo editors as well as the movie industry to use his photographs on their magazine covers, TV shows and movies, often as light-hearted and beautiful scenes," said Jerry Blow, AIAP, Raleigh, NC.

Tim Smith, a native North Carolinian, is one of those rare people who has known his direction in life from childhood. As the provocative writer, Henry Miller, said, "The moment one gives close attention to anything, even a blade of grass, it becomes a mysterious, awesome, indescribably magnificent world in itself." Smith's personal photographic direction in life has been to give close attention to and to photograph his world. His interest began around the age of 8 after becoming fascinated with his uncle's Polaroid camera.

Smith completed his first formal photography course during high school in Asheboro, NC, where he contributed many photographs for his yearbook. After that came a photography degree from Randolph Community College and then six years with the NC National Guard as a photographer. He has continued his photographic journey as a fine art photographer while living in the Wilmington area over the past four decades. Meredith College in Raleigh, NC, Offers Works by Megumi Naganoma

Meredith College in Raleigh, NC, is presenting In-Rage, featuring works by Megumi Naganoma, on view in the Frankie G. Weems Gallery in Gaddy-Hamrick Art Center, through Mar. 12, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 9, from 5-7pm, with a Gallery Talk, from 5:30-6:30pm, in room 137 at the Center.

Born and raised in South Florida, Naganoma is an interdisciplinary artist whose experiences and research inspire her work on bring awareness to sexual violence and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). Naganoma dominantly works in fabric, drawing and video. Her practice responds to current events, stigmas, and societal norms revolving around rape culture. Using these methods, she advocates for rape survivors while keeping various audiences in mind by starting conversations that continue to shed light on something that is often still seen as taboo.

Naganoma graduated from Florida State University in December of 2016 with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Studio Art and a minor in Art History. During the summer of 2016, Naganoma interned for Judy Pfaff in Tivoli, New York. In May of 2019 Naganoma graduated with her Master of Fine Arts degree in Sculpture from the State University of New York at New Paltz. Currently, Naganoma is an instructor in higher education within the arts.

Diamante Arts & Cultural Center in Raleigh, NC, Features Works by Adriana Ameigh

The Diamante Arts & Cultural Center in Raleigh, NC, is presenting ALCHEMY: Visions In Color, an exhibition by Puerto Rican artist Adriana Ameigh, on view through Mar. 12, 2023.

This exhibition explores the significance of materials and their seemingly magical transformation through the artistic process. Much like alchemy, materials and ideas can be combined, reinvented, and translated to create something new. Wet pigments become finished paintings, and soft clay solidifies into sculptural vessels - their emerging shapes, colors and textures convey the stories embedded in the work. Over 30 paintings on canvas, paper and wood panel, plus several ceramic sculptures will be on display.

ALQUIMIA: Visiones En Color - una exposición de la artista puertorriqueña Adriana Ameigh. Esta exposición explora el significado de los materiales y su transformación aparentemente mágica a través del proceso artístico. Al igual que la alquimia, los materiales y las ideas se pueden combinar, reinventar y traducir para crear algo nuevo. Los pigmentos húmedos se convierten en pinturas terminadas y la arcilla blanda se solidifica en vasijas escultóricas: sus formas, colores y texturas emergentes transmiten las historias incrustadas en el trabajo. Más de 30 pinturas sobre lienzo, papel y panel de madera, además de varias esculturas de cerámica en exhibición en el Centro de Arte y Cultura Diamante.

Adriana Ameigh is a Puerto Rican abstract artist based in Raleigh, NC. After more than a decade in the investment services industry, she transitioned to working as a full-time artist. To push the boundaries of her creativity, strengthen visual thinking and technical skills, Ameigh takes several interdisciplinary classes and workshops throughout the year. She also enjoys teaching and collaborating with artist groups that serve underrepresented members of the community. In her work, she uses acrylics and oils with cold wax to create paintings full of texture, raw energy and intuitive marks.

Throughout Ameigh's childhood and years at school she had an interest in art, but decided to pursue another path when choosing a college major. She graduated with a degree in Business Administration and Marketing, then moved to North Carolina in 2007 and began working for a financial institution.

After more than 10 years working in finance, Ameigh decided to pursue her art full time. The circumstances surrounding this change, she would come to find out, were less than ideal. "I quit in December 2019 and of course COVID-19 hit a few months after that." Despite the setback of a global pandemic, Ameigh pushed on and opened an art studio on the second floor of ArtSpace (Studio 203) in Downtown Raleigh.

Duke University in Durham, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Ecological Concerns

Duke University in Durham, NC, will present Spirit in the Land, a group exhibition focused on ecological concerns, on view at the Nasher Museum of Art, from Feb. 16 through July 09, 2023.

Spirit in the Land is a contemporary art exhibition that examines today's urgent ecological concerns from a cultural perspective, demonstrating how intricately our identities and natural environments are intertwined. Through their artwork, thirty artists show us how rooted in the earth our most cherished cultural traditions are, and how our relationship to land and water shapes us as individuals and communities. The works reflect the restorative potential of our connection to nature and exemplify how essential both biodiversity and cultural diversity are to our survival.

Artists with works in the exhibit include: Terry Adkins, Firelei Báez, Radcliffe Bailey, Rina Banerjee, Christi Belcourt, María Clark, Maia Cruz Palileo, Annalee Davis, Tamika Galanis, Allison Janae Hamilton, Barkley L. Hendricks, Alexa Kleinbard, Hung Liu, Hew Locke, Meryl McMaster, Wangechi Mutu, Dario Robledo, Jim Roche, Kathleen Ryan, Sheldon Scott, Renée Stout, Monique Verdin, Stacy Lynn Waddell, Charmaine Watkins, Marie Watt, Carrie Mae Weems, and Peter Williams.

These artists explore the ways in which our inner spaces mirror our outer ones in works that both celebrate the profound beauty of our world and mourn its loss, and with it, vanishing histories of people and place.

As the battles against climate change are often most critical for marginalized communities - environmental justice is social and racial justice - the exhibition and catalogue center the voices of artists who approach ecological awareness through a close attention to the communities most negatively affected. Acting as environmental stewards, the artists reclaim and revitalize our understanding of nature as a repository of cultural memory, a place of sanctuary, a site of resistance, and a source of spiritual nourishment and healing. As land and water provide a sense of belonging and community, the exhibition illustrates our interdependence with all life on Earth.

Spirit in the Land has its roots in North America, with shoots reaching into the Caribbean. While these artists investigate natural environments under stress, the exhibition presents a belief in the possibility of transformation and regeneration. Our desire to live in harmony with nature is ultimately what will determine our future.

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, Features Works Focused on Poems of Jaki Shelton Green

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present their 9th annual featured show, It's All About the Story, featuring works by gallery members, inspired by the poetry collection by Jaki Shelton Green's Breath of the Song, on view from Feb. 14 through Mar. 26, 2023. A reception will be held on Feb. 24, from 6-9pm.

Previous writers include Michael Malone, Jill McCorkle, Lee Smith, Allan Gurganus, John Bemis, Nancy Peacock, Elizabeth Keckly and Billy Strayhorn. This year the artists have selected a work by North Carolina Poet Laureate Jaki Shelton Green as their source of inspiration. Each piece in the group show, It's All About the Story, is inspired by one or more poems in Breath of the Song.

Jaki Shelton Green is the ninth Poet Laureate of North Carolina, the first African American and third woman to be appointed as the North Carolina Poet Laureate. She is a North Carolina Literary Hall of Fame Inductee, and a 2003 recipient of the North Carolina Award for Literature. Jaki Shelton Green teaches Documentary Poetry at Duke University Center for Documentary Studies.

Photographer Eric Saunders was struck by her poem "Rumors" the opening lines of which read: "what could the clouds be whispering about me? They don't even know my name - and later in the poem - girl, cloud know your name moon too stars told 'em". Two of Saunders' photographs were inspired by this poem.

In the poem "I know the grandmother one had hands", the poet speaks about her grandmother's life, using hands to symbolize the whole person. The poem ends with those hands poking holes in the clouds so the rain could fall. Chris Graebner took the image one step further and imagined the grandmother's hands catching that rain, in her painting I Know the Grandmother One Had Hands to Catch the Rain.

Artist Nancy Smith's painting "I know the grandmother one had hands" was inspired by the same poem. "On reading it, I was flooded with memories of my grandmother. Her hands embraced the hard life as a farmer's wife - tilling the soil, milking cows, rendering pork and burying two of her seven children. Long deceased, she continues to hold me gently within her hands as I wrap myself in the quilt she stitched from clothes I wore as a child."

Sculptor Lynn Wartski took imagery in the poem "eva" to create a piece called Rabbit Games and Midnight Rainbows from the lines "tongues spoken from the ears are seen at night and only precede midnight rainbows we played the games of rabbits".

The poem "praise song" resonated with Jude Lobe, speaking to her about connecting with nature and respecting what it has to teach us. "My artwork is a young girl dancing with a tree and within that tree the girl sees a soul."

For Catharine Carter the poetry in Breath of the Song is, like her own work, all about relationships and family. "I think of my images as visual poetry and similar to the poetry of Jaki Shelton Green. Like her, I am interested in human relationships and interactions."

Eduardo Lapetina took the title of a collection of poems "Singing a Tree into Dance" as inspiration for an abstract painting. "I think that I was able to translate this idea from Jaki Green into a happy painting and that my image will provoke everyone to dance!"

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts is owned and operated by 21 local artists and represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. The Gallery's offerings include paintings,

Work by Beverly McIver

Craven Allen Gallery in Durham, NC, is presenting Beverly McIver Passage: Paintings 1983-2022, on view through Mar. 4, 2023. Passage features a comprehensive selection of paintings spanning more than thirty years of Beverly McIver's career. Following McIver through the most pivotal moments in her life, the exhibition reflects the passage of time and its effects on Beverly as an artist, a sister, a daughter, and a friend. Passage surveys McIver's most recent paintings, and archival works complementing the museum retrospective of McIver's career, Full Circle. That exhibition, curated by Kim Boganey, opened early this year at the Scottsdale Museum of Contemporary Art. She has accumulated more awards and honors than many artists receive in a lifetime, which she pays forward by teaching younger generations about the power of art and the hard work it takes to make it a career. There are numerous artists today who credit McIver for their professional achievements. For further informa-

Work by Vivian Liddell

The Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, is presenting several new exhibits including: Night Watch, featuring works by Vivian Liddell and Jeremy Phillips, on view through Mar. 10, 2023. A closing reception will be held on Mar. 10, from 4-6pm. Vivian Liddell and Jeremy Phillips riff on the nocturne in a show of recent work in a variety of media. There are paintings in egg tempera, flashe, acrylic and oil, collages made with scrap LP record album material, a claymation short film, and figures cast in plaster. Both artists utilize the light and color of our contemporary night to convey mystery and explore intent. For further information call the gallery at 828/859-2828 or visit (upstairsartspace.org).

The Blowing Rock Art & History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, is presenting Geometry with Feeling: Ida Kohlmeyer in Two & Three Dimensions, on view in the Cannon Gallery, through May 7, 2023. Geometry with Feeling features the work of Ida Kohlmeyer (1912-1997), most practice and serves as the impetus for this exhibition. Under the tutelage of Hans Hoffman and with significant influences from Mark Rothko and Arshile Gorky, this painting is a rare example of Kohlmeier in her artistic adolescence. Geometry with Feeling will exhibit Transitive alongside more mature examples from the artist's painting and sculptural practices to encourage audiences to think critically about the evolution of the artist's recurring motifs and the refinement of her increasingly postmodern abstraction. Levine Center for the Arts, in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Fashion Reimagined: Themes & Variations 1760 – Now, on view through July 2, 2023. In celebration of the 50th anniversary of the fashion collection's founding in 1972 by the Mint Museum Auxiliary. Fashion Reimagined features 50 outstanding examples of fashionable dress drawn entirely from the permanent collection of The Mint Museum. Encompassing a wide range of attire, the exhibition includes men's and women's fashions from 1760 to 2022 and is divided into three thematic sections: minimalism, pattern and decoration, and the body reimagined. For further information call the Museum at 704/337-2000 or visit (www.mintmuseum.org).

Work by Kirkland Smith

The Morris Center for Lowcountry Heritage in Ridgeland, SC, is presenting The (In)disposable Art of Kirkland Smith, on view through July 15, 2023. The art installation is a playful collection of assemblages. Drawing on her love of realism and portraiture, Smith creates 3-dimensional works that speak to environmental responsibility in a fresh, evocative way. For example, to portray the problem of overconsumption and its effects on society, she uses everyday disposable objects as her medium rather than the subject of her work. The artist hopes to spark an awareness of consumer habits and attitudes, driving home the message that while what we throw away says much about who we are, what we choose to cherish and protect says more in the end. Work by Ryan Kirby

Throughout the greater Charleston area, Feb. 17 - 19, 2023 - "2023 Southeast Wildlife Exposition (SEWE)". Experience the nation's premier celebration of wildlife art and the great outdoors at the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition. Hunt for your next piece of fine art, collect handcrafted goods, witness live demonstrations and get a taste of the Lowcountry. Elevate your SEWE experience by becoming a VIP or adding special events to your schedule. SEWE curates a collection of fine art from the nation's most talented wildlife painters and sculptors. Explore our art offerings on our website (sewe.org) to learn more about the artists, our exhibits, and discover the inspiration behind their work. The Featured Artist for the 2023 Expo is Ryan Kirby, who has been drawing and painting wildlife since 1989, though his interest in art began when he was a young boy growing up on his family farm. As an artist, Kirby's goal is to enhance the atmosphere of the home, office or hunt camp and broaden the horizons of hunters and anglers all over the world. For complete information visit (sewe.com).

Avery Research Center for African History and Culture, at the College of Charleston, 125 Bull St., Charleston. Ongoing - Exhibits on view include: "Since 1920: Zeta Phi Beta Centennial".

The Gamma Zeta chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority Incorporated presents a centennial exhibit filled with the rich history of the sorority in print and paraphernalia. Visitors can see in-depth the programming, philanthropy and reach of Zeta Phi Beta during their 100 years. "The Water Keeps Rising" Hip-hop artist and activist Benny Starr has created an interactive exhibit based on data from the Avery's State of Racial Disparities Report in Charleston County. This exhibit will create an immersive experience for visitors. In the areas of civic engagement, racial disparities, the environment and performance art/music, this exhibit will aim to connect the dots from historical data and archival information up to the present conditions of the Lowcountry. "Resilient". Local artist Chris "Kolpeace" Johnson will highlight the power of being resilient with this work that recognizes African Americans who have shown strength through adversity including the late local activist Muhiyidin D'baha and Cyntoia Brown, who faced life in prison after being convicted of homicide as a juvenile. These pieces are tributes to memorialize the impactful strength of an unsung hero in the community, engaging the soul and spirit. "The African Origins of Mathematics". Charleston resident and artist Robert "King David" Ross highlights the direct impact Africa has had on modern mathematics in this exhibit. Showcasing the first math instrument, the Ishango bone, the exhibit allows visitors to see the influence Africa has had on every aspect of life. Admission: Free. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-5pm, with guided tours at 10:30am, 11:30am, 1:30pm, 2:30pm, and 3:30pm. Contact: 843/805-5507 or visit (www.cofc.edu/avery).

Gibbes Museum of Art, 135 Meeting Street, Charleston. Galleries 8 & 9, Feb. 3 - Apr. 16 - "Un/Natural Selections: Wildlife in Contemporary Art". Wildlife images from the last two decades dynamically confront categorizations and speak to the significance of wildlife in art in unconventional ways. Organized by the National Museum of Wildlife Art, Un/Natural Selections: Wildlife in Contemporary Art considers the diverse ways contemporary artists use animal imagery to address humanity's interconnectedness with the natural world, exploring themes of tradition, politics, science and aesthetics to investigate the ways we use this imagery to tackle human concerns. Gallery 2 & 3, Through Mar. 5 - "Chaos to Order: Greek Geometric Art from the Sol Rabin Collection". This is the first major museum exhibition in the United States to focus on Greek art during the Geometric period (c. 900-700 B.C.)

in more than 25 years. It is the first exhibition of its kind to focus on the aesthetics of Greek Geometric art and to demonstrate that stylistic principles in visual art during the Geometric period reflect a characteristically Greek idea of "the beautiful" (kallos). A new visual vocabulary developed during this period – one that stressed clarity, balance and symmetry. These design principles may appear contemporary, yet they provided the foundation for all subsequent Greek art. The collection presents new evidence that re-examines the contributions and innovations of Geometric art and its enduring legacy throughout classical antiquity. The show features 57 objects drawn from The Sol Rabin Collection, considered the most important Geometric Greek collection in private hands. This exhibition is organized by the Museum of Fine Arts, St. Petersburg. Galleries 1, 4, and 5, Permanent Exhibition - "18th and 19th Century American Paintings and Sculpture". American paintings, from colonial portraits to Civil War-era landscapes, occupy the Gibbes Main Gallery. Portraits of leading political, social, and military figures include works by Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Benjamin West, Gilbert Stuart, Thomas Sully and Samuel F.B. Morse. The gallery also features landscape and genre scenes by Angelica Kaufmann, Louis Mignot, Eastman Johnson, Conrad Wise Chapman, and William Aiken Walker. The paintings collection is complemented by examples of neoclassical sculpture on view in the Campbell Rotunda, and decorative art objects on loan from the Rivers Collection. Gallery 5, Permanent Exhibition - "Miniature Portraits". The first American miniature portraits were painted in Charleston, and today the Gibbes is home to one of the most prestigious portrait miniature collections in the United States. Containing more than six hundred objects, the collection spans nearly two hundred years and represents the work of over a hundred artists. Small enough to fit in the palm of the hand, these tiny portraits were treasured remembrances of loved ones in the age before photography. Presented in state-of-the-art display cases, and in viewable storage drawers featured miniatures include works by Mary Roberts, Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Charles Wilson Peale, Pierre Henri, Edward Greene Malbone, George Engleheart, and Charles Fraser. Gallery 6, Permanent Exhibition - "20th Century American Regionalism and the Charleston Renaissance". At the turn of the twentieth century, American artists looked to their European counterparts and beyond as they developed identifiably American artistic movements. Two particularly strong influences during this time period were French Impressionism and Japanese woodblock prints. Another prevailing theme during this period was the growing interest in American subject matter. American regionalism and social realism played important roles in the development of art in Charleston, which flourished as a destination for artists, particularly during the years of 1915 to 1945 a period now known as the Charleston Renaissance. Gallery 7, Permanent Exhibition - "Modern and Contemporary". Modern and contemporary art in America encompasses a wide range of styles, subject matter, and media. As a whole, the diversity of modern and contemporary art reflects the rich and varied heritage of our nation and the lowcountry region. Works in this gallery were created over the past forty years by artists who are native to the area, who have worked here, or who have created objects that reflect the complex story of the region. The works are grouped to reflect several themes including the southern landscape, the human figure, abstraction, and the legacy of slavery in America. Visiting Artist Series, Session I: Feb. 20 - Apr. 2 - "Austin Norvell and Reuben Bloom". Austin Norvell refers to himself as a custodian of stuff. Wandering flea markets, thrift stores and storage units, he finds seemingly unimportant stuff and preserves its heritage and safeguards its legacy. Currently, Norvell is developing several series of glass sculptures and installations dealing with the concept of nostalgia in objects. Reuben Bloom has been exploring fine art photography for more than 12 years. Following a residency program, Reuben's longtime practice of street photography led him to a sculpture and found-object-based studio practice that explores themes, materials and motifs generated by his images. Museum Shop - Now offering the inventory of the Tradd Street Press, reproductions of works by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner among other exhibit related art objects. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Admission: Yes. Contact: 843/722-2706 or at (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, The Marion and Wayland H. Cato Jr. Center for the Arts, College of Charleston School of the Arts, 161 Calhoun St., Charleston. Through Feb. 25 - "Elizabeth Bick: Contrapposto", and "Jovencio de la Paz: The Ends of Rainbows". Elizabeth Bick is a photographer influenced by her training in classical and modern dance. As of fall 2021, Bick is the new Area Head of Photography at the College of Charleston School of the Arts. The Halsey Institute will present four bodies of work by Bick, including both new and ongoing series. Work made in New York City and Rome reflects on the rhythms, performances, and nuances that unfold in public space. Jovencio de la Paz is an artist and weaver based out of Eugene, OR. Their work explores the intersecting histories of weaving and modern computers, balancing the traditional processes of weaving, dye, and stitch-work with the complexities and contradictions of our present-day digital culture. At the Halsey Institute, de la Paz will present three new bodies of woven and stitched works. de la Paz's work ranges from textiles designed using an algorithmic software based on a 1950s code that visualized Darwin's theory of evolution to weavings made together with their mother and grandmother in a reversal of generations in the exchange of traditional knowledge. Together, these works will contemplate issues of ancestry, genealogy, mortality, and memorial through the construction of cloth. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 11am-4pm; until 7pm on Thur. and by appt. Contact: 843/953-4422 or at (<http://halsey.cofc.edu/exhibitions/>).

Work by Kristine Hanson

Redux Contemporary Art Center, featuring Redux Studios, 1056 King Street, Charleston. Main Gallery, Feb. 3 - Mar. 18 - "ONLY ONCE IN THE LIGHT: Leigh Sabisch & Allison Koch as Sardine Press". A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm. This new exhibition showcases the ongoing creative endeavors of the artists in their personal practices and as a pair, who merge their energetic & multidisciplinary approach by combining oil painting and printmaking techniques that evolve into truly collaborative work. The artists state "As a team, we have found a way to incorporate the practices and themes of our individual work into a larger scope of collaborative making. As printmakers, we want to push our understanding of such a traditional medium as well as investigate how we can adapt to challenges we face through creating experimental pieces." Gallery 1056, Feb. 3 - Mar. 18 - "Evidence of Things Unseen," featuring works by Kristine Hanson, curated by Shelby Corso. A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm. "Evidence of Things Unseen," merges both black and white silver gelatin images with two- and three- dimensional mediums to expand the dialogue of the work. The convergence of dispirit elements; fiber arts, sculpture and black and white photography seen here is the origin of who Hanson is as an artist. To express her unique point of view, she has incorporated found objects and ephemera, as well as black and white photography into three-dimensional objects. The collected items are deconstructed to show the remnants of what remains, giving the viewer a range of tactile and two- dimensional objects to explore their own journey of memory and the human spirit. Ongoing - In May, 2017, Redux relocated to 1056 King Street with 38 studios, three galleries, a large print shop, classroom, dark room, and photo studio. Hours: Tue.-Fri., 11am-4pm, or by appt. Contact: 843/722-0697 or at (www.reduxstudios.org).

The Charleston Museum, 360 Meeting Street, Charleston. Founded in 1773, is America's first museum. Textile Gallery, Through June 4 - "America's First Museum - 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating: Part 1". The Museum's collection celebrates the national and cultural history of the South Carolina Lowcountry. Today, the Museum's collections, which include over 2.4 million objects, are unmatched in their interpretive value to South Carolina history and the nation. Part one of America's First

Thomson Auditorium built in 1899, as a convention space for the United Confederate Veterans reunion, later became the home of The Charleston Museum in 1907, which was located at 121 Rutledge Avenue. (Source: The Buildings of Charleston by Jonathan Poston.) The featured color photographic postcard was published by Colourpicture Publishers, ca. 1965.

Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating began on Dec. 17, 2022, and displays objects that span its impressive history. As a key seaport in the American South, the Museum's collections came in from every corner of the globe before they took on a more Lowcountry South Carolina focus in the 20th century. Opening mid-2023, part two of the exhibit will showcase a church pew made by enslaved hands measuring 20 feet in length, centuries-old Archaic carved bone pins, a skull from the largest known flying bird, and a couture Fortuny gown. Ongoing - "Becoming Americans: Charleston in the Revolutionary War". Charleston played a critical role in the Revolutionary War. South Carolina was the wealthiest of the thirteen rebellious colonies and Charleston was its key port to maintain its trade with the outside world. The British would make three attempts against the city during the Revolutionary War. Their defeat at the Battle of Sullivan's Island on June 28, 1776 was a crucial patriot victory, which convinced many that independence could be achieved. The Siege of Charleston, meanwhile, was the longest siege of the Revolutionary War and the largest battle in South Carolina. These events and others are chronicled in the new exhibit, which will also feature artifacts and period images that have not been exhibited at the Museum before. Ongoing - Featuring the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific collections in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm & through the Summer months, Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 843/722-2996 or at (www.charleston-museum.org).

Clemson Area

Work by Graduate Architecture student Gregg Ussery

Lee Gallery, 1-101 Lee Hall, Clemson University, 323 Fernow Street, Clemson. Through Feb. 14 - "Legacy: Celebrating the Impact of Harvey Gantt," seeks to re-tell the story of the surrounding Harvey Gantt's life and the events that changed South Carolina, Clemson, and our community. The exhibit showcases research conducted by current Clemson students and photographs taken by Cecil Williams as a backdrop to work created by individuals affiliated with Clemson University. Specifically, the exhibit makes visible the impact Harvey Gantt has had on decades of Clemson students and celebrates the Legacy he has created and inspired. Yet, different from previous celebrations, the exhibit serves as a counter-narrative bringing to view overlooked and undocumented voices to current histories mostly based on the limited records of institutional archives. Metaphorically, it is an interactive and immersive exhibition like a quilt fusing the work of many eyes and hands. Feb. 24 - Mar. 10 - "La Villa-Le Stora: The First Five Decades". A reception will be held on Feb. 24, from 6-8pm. The art of architecture is a process. One that takes time, focus and, ideally, a great space to work from concept to sketch and beyond. Since 1973, Clemson University's School of Architecture has provided its students with such a space in the Charles E. Daniel Center for Building Research and Urban Studies in Genoa, Italy. Known affectionately as the Villa, this "so-much-more-than-a-space" facility is celebrating its 50th anniversary with an exhibition of drawings, photographs and stories capturing the experiences and beauty of its surrounding historic environment. "La Villa-Le Stora: The First Five Decades" celebrates the creative work of Genoa alumni, their stories, and their memories. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am- Noon, then 1-4:30pm. Contact: Denise Woodward-Detrich, Lee Gallery Director by calling 864-656-3883 or at (<http://www.clemson.edu/centers-institutes/cva/>).

Sikes Hall, Clemson University, Ground Floor Sikes Hall, 101 Calhoun Drive, Clemson. Through Apr. 20 - "NextUp Invitational V," is an exhibition of work selected by the Clemson Curates Creative Inquiry team showcasing twenty-three "up and coming" undergraduate art students enrolled in the Department of Art Bachelor of Fine Arts program. On view are works selected from over 230 submissions to the Foundations Review, which took place during the spring semester including drawings, painting, digital design and sculpture. Participating artists include: Asheville Barksdale, Liz Brooks, Christopher Burnette, Sarah-Paige Chapman, Stephanie DeMaio, Lizetta Halter-MacInnes, Laura Huggins, Alyssa King, Andrew Malek, Hannah Nicole Mathis, Laura McLeod, Chloe Owens, Aimee-Leigh Poulter, Brianna Rau, Olivia Tawa, and Caroline Thierfelder. Clover

Gallery 120, 120 Bethel Street, Clover. Ongoing - Established in January 2015, Gallery 120 was created as a community art gallery with a mission to build a strong vibrant Arts community and encourage growth and exposure of professional and emerging artists while educating our community in the Fine Arts. Gallery 120 is a center where partnerships with other art groups serve as an opportunity for community involvement and showcase a variety of artwork, with a special focus on student art. Gallery 120 exhibits change monthly with professional and student artists. The gallery also offers a First Friday public art reception, held on the first Friday of every month from 6-8pm. We exhibit artwork created by artists who are professional and whose works are exceptional in skill and presentation. We showcase student artwork crafted by students in our schools, from the elementary level through high school level. The gallery also showcases works of emerging artists, whether they are hobbyists in drawing or painting or some other fine art medium. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-5pm. Contact: 803/222-9493 or at (www.Clovergallery120.org).

Columbia Area

Alma Thomas (1891-1978), "Blue Ground Stripe", 1971. Acrylic and watercolor on paper, 22 1/2 x 29 7/8 inches. The Johnson Collection, Spartanburg, SC.

Columbia Museum of Art, Main & Hampton Streets, Columbia. Feb. 18 - May 14 - "Reverent Ornament: Art from the Islamic World". The Near Eastern world - roughly, the region including India and the Asian countries to its west - is a vivid patchwork of many different peoples, languages, and traditions, with a history stretching back to Neolithic times. Comprising works of fine glassware, ceramics, metalwork, painting, weaponry, weaving, and much more, "Reverent Ornament" shares timeless Islamic art that celebrates everyday life, history, and culture in Iran, Egypt, India, Syria, and Turkey. The works, some of which are centuries old, include objects meant for palaces as well as ordinary homes, evoking a rich and comprehensive vision of daily life from the 17th to the 19th centuries. Organized by the Huntington Museum of Art and toured by International Arts & Artists, Washington, DC. Through Apr. 2 - "Forward Together: African American Art from the Judy and Patrick Diamond Collection". This exhibition highlights a selection of works by African American artists, drawn from the esteemed collection of Judy and Patrick Diamond. Patrick was born in the community of Frogtown, a historically segregated neighborhood in Columbia, SC. He attended Saint Martin de Porres Elementary School before moving north with his family. While a student at Boston University, he met his future wife, Judy, and their mutual interest in art blossomed. For more than 40 years, the Diamonds have shared a passion for collecting some of the most significant African American artists of the 20th century. The works on view here - by artists such as Benny Andrews, Romare Bearden, and Jacob Lawrence - touch on a variety of themes relating to African American life, history, and humanity. Through May 21 - "Our Own Work, Our Own Way: Ascendant Women Artists in the Johnson Collection". This exhibition brings together 41 female artists of the 20th century who had connections to the South - including Emma Amos, Beverly Buchanan, Elaine de Kooning, Zelda Fitzgerald, Gwendolyn Knight, and Columbia's own Laura Spong - while shining a spotlight on several other regional artists. Having faced resistance from the art world for decades, many of these artists are just beginning to come out of the shadows of art history. Women artists in the South particularly encountered resistance in their quest to gain parity, especially when their mode of expression was modern in style or subject. Furthermore, contemporary female artists of color faced what Lois Mailou Jones, also featured in the exhibition, termed the "double handicap" of racism and sexism. Like their sisters to the north, these Southern women often worked alongside, but in the shadows of, their more celebrated male counterparts. Comprised of artwork from the 1930s to the 1990s, "Our Own Work, Our Own Way" champions a roster of artists whose aesthetic achievements transcended convention and invigorated the South's modern milieu. Through Jan. 1, 2025 - "The Collection". Come see the newly organized collection. We've gathered ancient and modern works of art, together in one space, that explore our shared archetypes, myths, and ideals. Galleries 5 & 6, Ongoing - "Modern & Contemporary Art from the Collection". Celebrating some of the CMA's greatest hits, this exhibition features over 30 paintings, drawings, photographs and sculptures from the Museum's collection that have not been on view recently. It offers the visitor experiences both serious and sensual and is designed to both entertain and enlighten. Notable works included are by Jasper Johns, Howard Thomas, Sally Mann and Edward Ruscha, whose famous image of the Hollywood Hills (on view) has become a staple of the art world. Ray Taylor Fair Gallery, Ongoing - Featuring a new and permanent installation of its ancient art collection. The installation includes approximately 50 objects that introduce the major ancient civilizations from the Mediterranean and Near East. Examples of the earliest form of writing from 12th century B.C. Mesopotamia, are shown next to Egyptian scarabs and Greek painted vessels. The world of the ancient Romans is represented by 2nd century glass and bronze items and portrait sculpture. Many of these works have not been seen since the Museum moved to its location on Main Street in 1998. The collection has grown over the last several years with the donation of 12 fine Roman sculptures in 2002 from Pennsylvania collector Dr. Robert Y. Turner. Admission: Yes, but there is no admission charge on Sun. Hours: Tue.-Sun., from 10am-5pm. Contact: 803/799-2810 or at (www.columbiamuseum.org).

McMaster Gallery, room 119, basement level, McMaster Building, 1615 Senate Street, Columbia. Through Feb. 16 - "Call / Response", is a collaborative exhibition by Hannah Barnes and Susan Klein, two artists with a history of working in dialogue with each other. Barnes and Klein share a lifelong engagement with abstraction and a regard for process-based making. For both artists, making is a responsive act, guided by attentive engagement with the observed world and an embrace of their mediums' unpredictabilities. In their collaborative projects Barnes and Klein mine the fruitful depths of friendship and exchange through sustained dialogue, playful improvisation, and intentional collaboration. This exhibition presents paintings, sculptures, and drawings resulting from two years of conversational and collaborative making. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-4:30pm. Contact: Olga Dickey, Gallery Director, at 803/422-4289 or e-mail to (yukhno@mailbox.sc.edu).

Mill District Public Art Trail (MDPAT), throughout the Whaley, Olympia and Granby neighborhoods, known as Columbia, SC's Mill District, Columbia. Ongoing - The MDPAT was conceived as a project in 2017 by 701 Center for Contemporary Art board and staff to connect the three neighborhoods through a creative endeavor. The inaugural works on the trail were created by 11 South Carolina artists - collaborators David Cianni (Aiken) and Anna Redwine (Columbia), Diana Farfan (Greenville), Susan Lenz (Columbia), Robert Lyon (Columbia), Doug McAbee (Greenwood), Philip Moody (Rock Hill), Carey Morton (Charleston), Jordan Sheridan (Columbia), Brittany Watkins (Columbia), and Fletcher Williams III (Charleston). Florence

Florence County Museum, 111 West Cheves Street, across the street from the Francis Marion University Performing Arts Center, Florence.

Ongoing - "Kindred Spirit: The Personal Worlds of William H. Johnson". William H. Johnson (1901 - 1970) was a man between worlds: raised in the rural South, but educated in New York; black, but his unknown father was white; American-born, but lived much of his adult life in Europe. This diverse heritage gave Johnson a unique perspective and insight, but at times it was also a difficult shadow which followed him as he traveled the world in search of his true artistic voice. Eventually, after many years away from his hometown of Florence, SC, Johnson returned to the United States. Although living in New York, his art began to focus almost entirely on the lives and experiences of African Americans in the rural South. "My travels taught me that an artist must live and paint in his own environment... This development shall continue for the rest of my life, and it is the painting of my people," said Johnson in 1941. Community Gallery, Ongoing - This exhibit introduces visitors to the history of the museum and its formative collections. This gallery also exhibits the histories and diversity of the City of Florence, and the incorporated municipalities of Florence County. Additionally, the Community Gallery communicates the lives, stories and accomplishments of significant past and present citizens of Florence County and

A reception will be held on Mar. 31, from 6:30-7:30pm. "My work is about the creation of intimate spaces and how to find them. Growing up queer in the American South, my time was spent inventing places to escape. I relay that same task into my studio practice where I find overlap between mediums and use them as passageways to direct visual and poetic narrative. Hours: M-F, 9am-5pm. Contact: 864-294-2950.

Tiger Strikes Asteroid Greenville, Hampton Station Bay 6, Unit 601, Hampton Station, 1320 Hampton Avenue Extension, Greenville. Through Feb. 11 - "There Just Isn't," featuring Dan Bare, Colleen Toutant Merrill, Kate Narkter, Amy Sacksteder, and A. Sherwood. "There Just Isn't" addresses the reality that parenting is a complex endeavor to say the least in which one parent inevitably compromises more than the other. Statistically, mothers have borne the brunt of this shift in autonomy, but as society evolves, so do the dynamics of parent/caregiver stereotypes thus leading to a shift in who faces compromise. As artist-parents, how does that compromise extend to our studio practices? "There Just Isn't" answers this question through compelling and diverse works of textiles, video, ceramics, sculpture, and written word. Hours: Fri., 4-8pm; Sat., noon-6pm or by appt. Contact: e-mail to (greenville@tigerstrike-asteroid.com).

Work by Alice Ratterree

Visual Arts Institute, on the Greer Campus of Greenville Technical College about 4 miles north of Greer on Highway 290, Locust Hill Road, Taylors. Benson Campus Galleries, Through Feb. 10 - "Sam Wang: Centripetal Summary". Wang's photography consistently searches for a visual core through his experimentation with handmade equipment, photographic processes and digital technologies. His discoveries elevate everyday sights to imaginative visions. Always the educator, as well as the photographer, Sam's photographs teach us how to look and not overlook, how to comprehend through visual appreciation. In the monograph, Sam Wang, Four Decades of Photographic Explorations, Sam writes "I have been most interested in the discoveries we make in the production of art. To me the images and the prints are merely evidences of our experiences, or byproducts of our investigations, and not ends in themselves." Feb. 16 - Mar. 10 - "Alice Ratterree: Behind the Pictures". We all have cherished children's books. They may be the books we tattered with love as a child or they might be books we recently purchased to share with a cherished child. Cherished books are directly kin to the warmth and safety of companion fuzzy bears or imaginary friends. They were the wellspring of our childhood imagination and often channeled our childhood emotions and even now continue to elicit those memories for us. We have been imprinted with the images found in our beloved children's book and we have also probably never given much thought to the maker of those images. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-7pm & Fri., 9am-2pm. Contact: Laraine Wells, Administrative Assistant at 864/848-2023 or e-mail at (laraine.wells@gvltec.edu).

ALTERNATE ART SPACES - Greenville

Work by Tom Stanley

Lander University Fine Art Gallery, Cultural Center Building, 320 Stanley Ave., Greenwood. Through Feb. 8 - "New Space / New Work," featuring works by Tom Stanley. Stanley said, "After living, working and making art in South Carolina for 31 years, I moved to a location that might offer a different set of challenges and I set up a studio. I was determined to make paintings that would reflect a restored sense of place and that would sustain my spirit. At this stage in my career, I was less concerned about making bold statements as finding a renewed life in my art. This process hasn't been as easy as anticipated." Ongoing - The Lander University Fine Art Gallery features a variety of exhibits throughout the year. The gallery features national and regional artist, as well as student and faculty work showcasing painting, sculpture, ceramics, graphic design, and photography. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-4pm. Myrtle Beach / Grand Strand

Work by Randi Reiss-McCormack

Franklin G. Burroughs - Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Through Feb. 25 - "A Quarter Past: Highlights From Our Collection". A quarter of a century has passed since first opening our doors in June of 1997, and oh, the heights to which we have soared! Our first 25 years are surely something to look back on with joy, pride and gratitude – gratitude for our supportive patrons and visitors; for our beautiful, historic and homey building with our oceanside setting; for the amazing artists with whom we've been able to work and exhibit, and for the five extraordinary art collections we've amassed. Through Apr. 16 - "Randi Reiss-McCormack - Wonderlust". Originally from Boston, MA, Randi Reiss-McCormack currently lives and works as an artist, adjunct professor at Maryland Institute College of Art (Baltimore, MD) and as the Associate Director of Sol Print Studio, a small artist's press. For the last eight years, she has been the Artist-in-Residence at the St. Francis Neighborhood Center. She obtained her undergraduate degree in painting and printmaking at Cornell University (Ithaca, NY), spent a year working in various printmaking and painting studios in Paris and earned her graduate degree at The Maryland Institute College of Art. Through Apr. 16 - "Jennifer York - Estuary Blues." York is a lifelong artist and explorer. She grew up in rural Indiana, earned a BFA in Sculpture with an Art History minor from Pratt Institute and a MFA in Fibers from Savannah College of Art and Design. In 2003, she founded Jennythreads Studio in Asheville, NC, producing fine handmade apparel for stylish women, crafting an independent, creative living for 19 years. In 2018-19, York traveled to a dozen countries for four monthlong international art residencies, where she filled sketchbooks with observational drawings and created a series of collapsible carousel pop-up book sculptures that fit in her carry-on suitcase. Through Apr. 16 - "The Supper Table," is a homage to the 40th anniversary of Judy Chicago's 1979 epic feminist art exhibition, is a multidisciplinary arts project celebrating the history and contributions of 12 extraordinary South Carolina women. The brainchild of writer, editor and Jasper Project executive director Cindi Boiter, The Supper Table features the work of almost 60 of South Carolina's most outstanding women artists in the visual, literary, theatrical, and film arts. Pawleys Island, Litchfield & Murrells Inlet

"Study of Torso of the Walking Man" by Auguste Rodin

Brookgreen Gardens, 1931 Brookgreen Garden Drive, US 17, south of Murrells Inlet. Wall Lowcountry Center Auditorium, Through Mar. 31 - "Collectively Disconnected," an exhibition by South Carolina native and folk artist Arun Drummond. Drummond's multimedia work, depicting Gullah Geechee people and 3-D sweetgrass baskets, celebrates the Gullah Geechee culture of the South Carolina Lowcountry. Drummond is a South Carolina native residing in the Lowcountry. As the former manager of the Chuma Gullah Gallery, he has spent nearly 20 years educating guests about the rich and unique culture of the coastal south. Her art premiered at the Chuma Gullah Gallery in 2018 and can now be found in the outdoor section of the historic Charleston City Market and at the Lybenson's Art Gallery at the Gullah Geechee Visitors Center on St. Helena Island. Rosen Galleries, Through Apr. 23 - "Rodin: Contemplation and Dreams – Selections from the Iris and B. Gerald Cantor Collections". Featuring 45 works by French sculptor Auguste Rodin, celebrated as the greatest sculptor of the 19th century, this exhibition brings world renowned sculptures to America's first sculpture garden. "We are thrilled to display works from such a celebrated and talented sculptor," says Page Kinary, president of Brookgreen Gardens. "Bringing the works of one of art history's most influential great masters to South Carolina's coast furthers our mission to display the finest sculptures and will offer visitors an exclusive chance to experience Rodin's bronzes in an esteemed sculpture garden." The exhibition is made up of 45 works from the prestigious Cantor Collections, including nine life-size statues, portraits, full figures, torsos, fragments, and reliefs. The Stanley and Naomi Bleifeld Gallery, Ongoing - All the works on view in the Bleifeld Gallery are from the collection of Brookgreen Gardens. The gallery showcases the work of historic and contemporary sculptures whose subjects are taken from the natural world. It includes work by Anna Hyatt Huntington, Gertrude Lathrop, Stanley Bleifeld, Grainger McKay, Sandy Scott, Kent Uilberg, and numerous other prominent sculptors, past and present. The gallery officially opened in February 2017. Ongoing - "Lowcountry: Change and Continuity," a major new exhibit, tells the story of human interaction with this land over the centuries. It features wall size photomurals by SC naturalist photographer Tom Blagden, along with a range of artifacts tracing the history of man's occupation of this extraordinary landscape. General Gardens, Ongoing - One of the largest collections of outdoor sculpture in America. This preeminent collection of American representational sculpture includes - 560 works by 240 artists - representing such well-known artists as Charles Parks, Daniel Chester French, Carl Milles, August Saint-Gaudens and Anna Hyatt Huntington. Ridgeland

Work by Kirkland Smith

Morris Center for Lowcountry Heritage, 10782 Jacob Smart Blvd. S., on US 17, in a 1937 historic Sinclair Service Station, Ridgeland. Through July 15 - "The (In)disposable Art of Kirkland Smith". The art installation is a playful collection of assemblages. Drawing on her love of realism and portraiture, Smith creates 3-dimensional works that speak to environmental responsibility in a fresh, evocative way. For example, to portray the problem of overconsumption and its effects on society, she uses everyday disposable objects as her medium rather than the subject of her work. The artist hopes to spark an awareness of consumer habits and attitudes, driving home the message that while what we throw away says much about who we are, what we choose to cherish and protect says more in the end. Ongoing - Morris Center for Lowcountry Heritage hosts exhibitions on local history, art, and culture. We also provide hands-on art workshops throughout the year. Admission: FREE. Hours: Tue.-Fri., 10am-4pm and Sat., 10am-2pm. Contact: 843/284-9227 or at (www.MorrisHeritageCenter.org).

Spartanburg

Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. The downtown cultural district area is often bustling with events and pedestrians, and the pedestrians rely heavily on a multitude of crosswalks to safely traverse the downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. For more info visit (<https://www.chapmanculturalcenter.org/pages/blog/detail/article/c0a1555/>).

Work by Adam Burgess

Artists Collective I Spartanburg (formerly West Main Artists Cooperative), 578 West Main St., Spartanburg. Gallery II and Gallery III, Through Feb. 25 - "Slice: Scattered, Covered and Smothered," featuring works by Hague Williams. A reception will be held on Feb. 16, from 5-8pm, during the Spartanburg ArtWalk. This exhibit, "brings together disparate methods of printmaking by creating unique prints that defy the traditional methods of printmaking while still relying on the pull of ink through a screen," says Williams. "For more than 25 years, I have been exploring the mediums of screen-printing, multimedia, installation and collage." Williams continues. "Combining computer-generated images from symbols, motifs and signifiers throughout different periods – contemporary and ancient and everything in between – a sort of mining of symbology throughout time." Solomon Gallery, Through Feb. 25 - "Pushing Pop," featuring works by eight Upstate artists, including: Adam Burgess, Steve Garner, Andy Adams (who signs his work) A-N-D, Kent Ambler, Peggy Tanner Day, Ryan Roth, Kym Day and Carey Morton, who responded to the changes within popular culture since the original "pop art" movement of the early 1960s. "The first time the term "pop art" was officially used was in 1962, when A Symposium on the Pop Art was held by the Museum of Modern Art," says artist Steve Garner. "The art of popular culture, also known then as popular realism, new realism, neo-Dadaism and factualism, placed meaning and value on products of mass culture and contemporary life, creating a dichotomy between high- and low-brow aesthetics. Today, art is certainly more integrated into popular culture through modes of communication, thus the lines between high- and low-brow are considerably more blurred." Ongoing - The Collective features a twenty thousand square foot facility offering affordable studio space, retail space, three galleries, a full ceramics studio, printery, and works by 50 local artists. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm; with extended hours on the 3rd Thur. of each month until 9pm for Spartanburg's Art Walk. Contact: 864/804-6501 or at (artistscollectivespartanburg.org).

Beer and wine are available for those 21+. Ongoing - Works by Carl Tait and Harold Krisel are on display. Tait was a successful painter, textile designer, and interior designer. His ties to the Spartanburg community originate from his longtime employment at Milliken and Company. Tait was born in Old Town, Maine in 1917 and graduated from the New Hampshire Institute of Arts and Science. In the late 1940s, he moved to New York City where he designed an exclusive line of ladies' handkerchiefs for the department store B. Altman, now considered vintage, collectible items. He also became associated with the American Artist Group designing Christmas cards, an occupation which he kept up throughout the majority of his artistic career. Krisel was a distinguished artist, architect, and teacher as well as a loving father and husband. Though Krisel may not be a household name among Spartanburg residents, he has made a significant artistic contribution to the Spartanburg community. Born in Brooklyn, NY in 1920, Krisel's interest in art and design started at a young age. He attended the American Artist School in New York city as a teenager where he met renowned modern artists, including Piet Mondrian, who greatly influenced his abstract style. After studying architecture at the New Bauhaus in Chicago from 1946-1949, he received his graduate degree from Illinois Institute of Technology in 1952. The following year, he began working for architectural firm Skidmore, Owings and Merrill when Roger Milliken hired them to design Milliken's new research facility in Spartanburg. Upon realizing Krisel was also a sculptor, Milliken hired him to design the spray fountain outside of the facility which functions as a recycler of air conditioning water. He then went on to design the Trident Fountain located outside of the Papadopoulos building on Wofford College's campus. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-7pm & Sat, 9am-3pm. Work by Valerie Zimany

USC Upstate Art Gallery, Chapman Cultural Center, 200 E. St. John Street, Spartanburg. Through Feb. 24 - "Valerie Zimany: Stand Long Enough Among the Flowers". Zimany's work blends Asian and European botanical patterns of 18th and 19th century export wares, exploring the transculturation that produced intricate floral designs known as Hanazume from their origins in Japan's commodity exchanges with Europe. Incorporating advances in digital technology in ceramics, Zimany utilizes both virtual sculpting software and hand-crafting techniques to render densely ornamented surfaces that speak to cultural mixture, conjuring temporal as well as technological incongruities. Zimany is Chair and Professor of Art, Ceramics, at Clemson University in South Carolina, and her work has been widely exhibited nationally and internationally. She received her MFA in Crafts/Ceramics at Kanazawa College of Art as a Fulbright Fellow and Japanese Government Scholar, and she was awarded a three-year residency at the Utsuyama Craft Workshop in Kanazawa, Japan. She received a second Fulbright grant from the US Department of Education in 2011. Ongoing - Directed and curated by Dr. Lex Lancaster, the gallery will feature the work of diverse artists from the Southeast and beyond. Works by Gale Ray Lowcountry Artists Gallery, 148 E. Bay St., Charleston. Feb. 1 - 28 - "Myths From The Sea," featuring a collection of paintings and pottery by artist Gale Ray. The exhibit features a collection of paintings and pottery inspired by shells from the sea. It all came about one day when I was sitting in my studio contemplating a painting of a triton shell, "King Triton". I thought, wouldn't it be interesting and challenging to make a pottery vessel imitating the texture of that shell. I began coiling and pinching out the clay by hand to form the pot. Ongoing - Featuring works by Norma Morris Cable, Fran J. Davies, Lynne N. Hardwick, Asheville Art Museum, 2 South Pack Square at Pack Place, Asheville. Through Apr. 24 - "Natural Collector: Gifts of Fleur S. Bresler". The exhibit features around 15 artworks from the collection of Fleur S. Bresler, which include important examples of modern and contemporary American craft including wood and fiber art, as well as glass and ceramics. These works that were generously donated by contemporary craft collector Bresler to the Asheville Art Museum over the years reflect her strong interest in wood-based art and themes of nature. According to Associate Curator Whitney Richardson, "This exhibition highlights artworks that consider the natural element from which they were created or replicate known flora and fauna in unexpected materials. The selection of objects displayed illustrates how Bresler's eye for collecting craft not only draws attention to nature and artists' interest in it, but also accentuates her role as a natural collector with an intuitive ability to identify themes and ideas that speak to one another." Judith S. Moore Gallery, Through May 15 - "Luzene Hill: Revealate". An enrolled member of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, Luzene Hill advocates for Indigenous sovereignty—linguistically, culturally, and individually, "Revealate" builds upon Hill's investigation of pre-contact cultures has led Hill to the idea of Ollin in Aztec cosmology. Before Europeans arrived in North America, Indigenous societies were predominantly matrilineal. Women were considered sacred, involved in the decision-making process, and thrived within communities holding a worldview based on equilibrium. Ollin emphasizes that we are in constant state of motion and discovery of information. Adopted as an educational framework, particularly in social justice and ethnic studies, Ollin guides individuals through a process of reflection, action, reconciliation, and transformation. This exhibition combines Hill's use of mylar safety blankets alongside recent drawings. Capes constructed of mylar burst with energy and rustle with subtle, the shining material a signifier of care, awareness, displacement, and presence. Though Hill works primarily and sculpture, drawing has increasingly become an essential part of her practice as she seeks to communicate themes of feminine and Indigenous power across her entire body of work. The energy within her drawings extends to the bursts of light reflecting from her capes or the accumulation of materials in other installation works. Explore Asheville Exhibition Hall, Feb. 2 - May 29 - "Too Much is Just Right: The Legacy of Pattern and Decoration". In the past 50 years in the United States and beyond, artists have sought to break down social and political hierarchies that include issues of identity, gender, power, race, authority, and authenticity. Unsurprisingly, these decades generated a reconsideration of the idea of pattern and decoration as a third option to figuration and abstraction in art. From 1972 to 1985, artists in the Pattern and Decoration movement worked to expand the visual vocabulary of contemporary art to include ethnically and culturally diverse options that eradicated the barriers between fine art and craft and questioned the dominant minimalist aesthetic. These artists did so by incorporating opulence and bold intricacies garnered from such wide-ranging inspirations as United States quilt-making and Islamic architecture. Multipurpose Space, Through Mar. 6 - "2023 WNC Regional Scholastic Art Awards". The Museum, with the assistance of its volunteer docents and support from the Asheville Area Section of the American Institute of Architects, is proud to be a regional affiliate partner hosting the WNC Regional Scholastic Art Awards each year. Students in grades 7–12 from all across Western North Carolina are invited to submit work for this special juried competition. The Museum works with the Alliance for Young Artists & Writers to facilitate regional judging of student artwork and to recognize our community's burgeoning artistic talent. Ongoing - The Asheville Art Museum, the hub for 20th- and 21st-century American art in Western North Carolina, has re-opened to the public. The $24+ million, state-of-the-art facility encompasses 54,000 square feet and adds 70 percent more Collection gallery space. For the first time in the Museum's history, it has the capacity to host major traveling exhibitions from nationally recognized museums. The expansion increases its physical space and dramatically increases its role as a community center, educational resource, economic engine for WNC, and cultural concierge for the region's residents and visitors. Southern Highland Craft Guild at the Folk Art Center, Blue Ridge Parkway Milepost 382, Asheville. Main Gallery, Through May 3 - "Follow the Thread by Tapestry Weavers South". Permanent Collection Gallery, Ongoing - "Craft Traditions: The Southern Highland Craft Guild Collection". The Guild's Permanent Collection is comprised of approximately 2400 craft objects and dates from the late 19th century to present. Beginning with a donation from Frances Goodrich in 1931, the Permanent Collection serves the Guild's mission of craft conservation and education. This new installation will feature over 200 works that highlight our holdings in traditional art: woodcarving, pottery, dolls, basketry, weavings and furniture. The subject of this ongoing exhibition is craft history—that of the Southern Highland Craft Guild and the Studio Craft Movement. Wells Fargo of Asheville has donated Hardy Davidson's Carvings to the SHCG's Permanent Collection. Hailing from Swannanoa, NC, wood-carver Hardy Davidson became a Guild Member in 1944 and was awarded Life membership in 1973. The Bank of Asheville commissioned these carvings sometime between 1930 and 1940, according to Hardy Davidson's great nephew, Glen Campbell. Almost eight decades later, the carvings have found a new home at the Folk Art Center on the Blue Ridge Parkway. "We are pleased to donate the wooden carvings by Hardy Davidson to the Southern Highland Craft Guild," said Neal Diquattro, District Manager for Wells Fargo in Asheville. Focus Gallery, Through Feb. 7 - "Treasures," featuring works by Allen Davis (wood), Vicki Love (leather), Lynne Harrill (fiber), Ruthie Cohen & David Alberts (jewelry), and Gigi Renee' Fasano (fiber). Feb. 18 - May 22 - "Attributes," featuring works by: Michelle Tiway (fiber), Timothy Bridges (fiber), Martine House (mixed media), Noel Yovovich (metal), and Deb Herman (fiber). Work by Andrea Rich

The North Carolina Arboretum, Milepost 393, Blue Ridge Parkway, 100 Frederick Law Olmsted Way, Asheville. Baker Exhibit Center Gallery, Through May 14 - "An Abundance of Riches: Woodcuts of Andrea Rich". Rich's intricately designed, carved, and printed woodcuts draw viewers in for an up-close look. Some of the artist's earliest memories are of drawing animals. Childhood encounters with pets, livestock, and wildlife, including birds, deer, and toads, created a lasting connection to the natural world. Through encounters with creatures both tame and wild, Rich developed a fascination and a compassion for animals integral to her art. Ongoing - The Asheville Quilt Guild features a permanent, rotating quilt exhibit at Arboretum's Education Center. Visitors can also enjoy the Arboretum's Quilt Garden year-round, with plantings and patterns that change with the seasons. Admission: Yes. Hours: Education Center hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm. Contact: 828/665.2492 or at (www.ncarboretum.org).

An extensive collection of fine art, pottery, crafts, and gifts can be found at this special gallery. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-4pm. Contact: 252/728-5225 or at (https://beauforthistoricsite.org/gallery/).

Blowing Rock

Blowing Rock Art and History Museum, corner of Chestnut and Main streets, downtown Blowing

Work by Ida Kohlmeyer

Rock. Through May 14 - "Recent Acquisitions to BRAHM's Permanent Collection." The exhibition highlights 16 artworks including gifts and promised gifts to the Permanent Collection. "Recent Acquisitions" presents new additions to BRAHM's vault in light of some of the different ways objects might come into a museum's collection as well as the responsibility of care that an institution undertakes when accepting such objects. BRAHM's expansion of the Permanent Collection has largely been accomplished through the generosity of art collectors who have donated or promised artworks that align with the scope of the Museum's mission. Rankin West Gallery, Through Mar. 18 - "Coast to Coast: Contrasts & Shared Values Across American Impressionism." "Coast to Coast" draws connections across impressionist painting as it was practiced on opposite sides of America in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, focussing on the artists who made the journey—some permanently and some temporarily—and how the relationships that emerged between them led to a dynamic and often divergent approach to plein-air painting. Questions of style, training, the commercial market, and even the physical landscape itself emerge as a network of conditions that encouraged a vibrant departure from East Coast impressionism. This exhibition will include works by Maurice Braun, Alton S. Clark, Elliott Daignerfield, Childe Hassam, Jane Peterson, William Merritt Post, Hanson Putthuff, Jack Wilkinson Smith, and many others. Cannon Gallery, Through May 7 - "Geometry with Feeling: Ida Kohlmeyer in Two & Three Dimensions". The exhibit features the work of Ida Kohlmeyer (1912–1997), most recognized for her role in the vanguard of abstract painting in the American South. BRAHM is pleased to be exhibiting examples of her two and three-dimensional work in our Atwell Gallery in the Fall of 2022. Taking up the brush during middle age, Kohlmeyer quickly developed a distinctive vocabulary of organic and geometric forms that she deployed with irrepressibly bright colors. While abstract expressionist painting is now fully integrated into the canon of American art, it was a controversial turn for an emerging New Orleans artist in the 1950s and 1960s. Caine Gallery, Bales/Garrison Gallery, & Mezzanine, Through Mar. 4 - "The WFDD 2022 Photo of the Year," exhibition showcases all 52 submissions that were chosen as Photo of the Week last year and gives visitors the opportunity to vote for their favorites. As a public radio station based in the Piedmont Triad area, WFDD connects their audience through these featured snapshots from around the region, including some captured here in the High Country. These images illustrate the breadth of North Carolina's culture and natural beauty, from a sunrise in Linville Gorge to an evening at the Carolina Classic Fair. Ongoing - the BRAHM will host exhibits, educational programs and classes that promote the visual arts, history and heritage of the mountains of western North Carolina. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., noon-4pm. Contact: 828/295-9099 or at (www.blowingrock-museum.org).

Work by Michelle Rozic

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Mezzanine Gallery, Through Feb. 4 - "Folded and Gathered: Nicole Pietrantoni". Pietrantoni's exhibition, "Folded and Gathered", consists of vibrant printed accordion books on Japanese papers that expand to create large scale installations. Much of her work is informed by her time in beautiful but ecologically fragile landscapes. According to Pietrantoni, "My artists' books and installations explore the representation of beauty in times of loss, photography's role in producing memory and humans' relationship to the environment. Taking an experimental approach to the book form, my art asks how the book and printed matter can both enable and undercut humans' active role in constructing and idealizing images. Rather than a fixed site or single image, the fragmented paper columns, text, and book forms engage the world as an unstable accumulation of processes, perceptions and narratives." Gallery B, Through May 6 - "Altered Environments / Tidalactics: April Flanders, Guest Curator". "Altered Environments", curated by April Flanders, is a printmaking portfolio responding to the issue of marine bio invasions. The portfolio includes 23 national and international artists from diverse backgrounds, utilizing a wide range of styles and print techniques. Marine bio invasions are the conceptual starting place for these prints, which will be prominently exhibited at the 11th International Marine Bioinvasions Conference in Annapolis, MD in 2023. Aquatic invasive species are a true threat to biodiversity around the world. Artists were encouraged to consider the many ecosystems that are currently under threat from marine bioinvasions. Participating artists include: Alanna Baird, Lorraine Beaulieu, Mary Sherwood Brock, Patterson Clark, Tallmadge Doyle, Beth Fein, April Flanders, Sheila Goloborotko, Melissa Harshman, Marty Ittner, Fleming Jeffries, Anita Jung, Irena Keckes, Eveline Kolijn, Lauren Kussro, Ann Manuel, Sandra Murchison, Michelle Rozic, Marilee Salvator, Rachel Singel, Tanja Soffic, Julie Wolfe, Elizabeth Jean Younce, and Ann Zellhofer/Caroline Zellhofer. In conjunction with "Altered Environments", printmaker and installation artist, Marilee Salvator will create a site-specific installation. "Tidalactics", organized by Dutch-Canadian artist Eveline Kolijn, is an art-science portfolio based around an experiment to create an oceanic worldview. Ten international printmakers collaborated with marine biology researchers to create a print based on the research from the scientist for the portfolio. Gallery A, Through May 6 - "Thin Places: Kilili Yuyan". Yuyan says, "I will always remember those nights with the burning, glowing embrace of the fireflies. In the space around my body, they floated like a thousand miniature green-yellow lanterns, blazing long enough to be seen, but gone quickly enough to escape my cupped hands. It's embedded in me to see the fireflies as spirit beings here. I've never met a person who hasn't felt their otherworldly nature. Indeed, my Indigenous ancestors referred to wild creatures as 'men in other shirts'. For animistic peoples, our world is inhabited by spirits, which only reveal themselves in particular circumstances or places. But somehow, I think, we all feel this regardless of where we come from." Mayer Gallery, Through May 6 - "Transformations: App DigiFab," featuring works by Adam Adcock, Andrew Bailey Aренд, Travis Donovan, Derek Eggers, Richard Elaver, Frankie Flood, Chelsea Helms, Mark Nystrom, Andres Tellez, and Nicole Villarreal. An exhibition of new design and art works showcasing experimental applications of computer-aided design and fabrication technologies. Digital design and fabrication technologies have radically transformed the way artists and designers conceive and produce work. This exhibition explores how digital tools for design and fabrication are being utilized and taught by contemporary artists, designers, and architects, and how those tools influence the work being produced in various fields. A group of faculty and staff from Appalachian State University have come together to exhibit their new work using these digital tools in unique ways. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-6pm; Fri., noon-8pm; & Sat., 10am-6pm. Contact: 828/262-3017 or at (www.turchincenter.org).

ALTERNATE ART SPACES - Boone Throughout Appalachian State University campus, Boone. Through June 30 - "The Rosen Outdoor Sculpture Competition and Exhibition". Cary Arts Center, 101 Dry Avenue, Cary. Cary Arts Center Gallery, Through Mar. 19 - "Cary Photographic Artists Member Show." The Cary Photographic Artists (CPA) formed in January 2007 as Cary's only organization dedicated to photography as ne art. CPA is dedicated to expanding and enhancing knowledge, skill, appreciation, and sharing of both the artistry and the craftsmanship of photography. For more information about programs, outings, education, and fellowship with other photographers, visit (www.caryphotographicartists.org). Cary Arts Center Principal's Hall, Through Mar. 19 - "Creative Imaging Group: Impressions of Stagville," featuring works by Jon Meyer, John Lapp, William Stewart, and Henry Rinne. "Impressions of Stagville", represents the photographers' vision of the historical and moral impact of the site of the former plantation. Stagville Plantation, located in Durham County, North Carolina. With buildings constructed from the late 18th century to the mid-19th century, Stagville was part of one of the largest plantation complexes in the American South. To learn more about this historic site visit (https://historicsites.nc.gov/all-sites/historic-stagville).

Cary Arts Center Display Cases, Through Mar. 19 - "Tansy O'Bryant". This is a series of small drawings paired with iconic ceramic heart shaped boxes. Everyone is familiar with an "I [heart] NY" bumper sticker. The heart icon on the bumper sticker is generic with no personal or inward psychological meaning. Many people recall how Nirvana's song Heart Shaped Box allowed listeners to think about a generic heart shaped box and experience feeling "trapped inside a heart shaped box for weeks". In my work I represent the same icons but add a deeply feminine and personal meaning. I am re-ecting on the feeling of being fully loved, isolated, and bullied. I pair the heart icon and heart shaped box with imagery such as owers, drowning and scissors. In many ways each drawing and box is a self-portrait that re-ects my own heart. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-10pm & Fri.-Sat., 9am-11pm. Contact: 919/469-4069 or at (www.townofcary.org).

Cary Gallery of Artists, 200 S Academy St, Ste 120, Ashworth Square, Cary. Ongoing - The gallery offers high quality art in a variety of styles. Paintings, pencil and colored pencil artwork varies from traditional still lifes and landscapes to abstracts. Portraits of people or animals are available. Photographic work captures magnificent landscapes, small moments in life, portraits, and far away places. The pottery and clay art includes edgy handbuilt pieces, thought-provoking sculpted masks, and decorative and functional pottery that captures images of nature. Our jewelry artists provide a wide range of hand-crafted necklaces, earrings, bracelets and other ornaments from metals, stones, beads and fused glass. Our glass artist creates stained glass hangings, custom stained glass windows and fused glass art. You can also find unusual hand-made books and hand-painted porcelain both antique and new. Hours: Wed.&Thur., 11am-3pm and Fri.&Sat., 11am-5:30pm. Contact: 919/462-2035 or at (www.carygalleryofartists.org).

Cary Senior Center, 120 Maury O'Dell Pl., in Bond Park, Cary. Through Feb. 10 - "Mike Weitzman: Bold and Beautiful Images". Weitzman's objective is to capture the abundant beauty that surrounds us all through his lens. He's motivated by sharing his passion for photography with as many people as possible. The last 12 years, he has exhibited his work as a solo artist in cities in both North Carolina and New York. His work is in several permanent collections, one that he's most proud of is Duke University who has purchased six pieces. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-9pm & Fri.-Sat., 9am-6pm. Contact: 919/469-4081.

Herbert Young Community Center, 101 Wilkinson Avenue, Cary. Feb. 1 - Apr. 21 - "The House of NyghtFalcon: Abandoned". A reception will be held on Feb. 10, from 6-8pm. This is a very special series. It speaks to who we are and to the roots of our passion. Prior to becoming professional photographers, JD Milazzo and I often wandered the nyght in search of places time had forgotten. In 2018, we returned to our roots, to our search for forgotten places. Each image in this series is a moment in the story that is The House of NyghtFalcon. Most of these images were created using vintage Pentax 6x7 lenses on a Pentax 645Z digital camera, while others were created using a vintage Pentax 6x7 film camera. These lenses bring a distinctive view of the world that deeply resonates with places abandoned and forgotten. When coupled with a specially crafted nish that is reminiscent of the late 19th Century, these images are ethereal, mystical, mysterious. These images were created in forgotten places such as Gold Hill, Reed, Damascus, Je erson, and the Oregon desert, in all those places which live now only in the past, sometimes on a misty morning, near sunset, after a driving rain, or at the edge of the coming of nyght. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-10pm; and Sat., 9am-6pm. Contact: 919/4604965 or (www.townofcary.org).

Page-Walker Arts & History Center, 119 Ambassador Loop, Cary. Through Feb. 4 - "Charles Ru n: Prayer Walk for Social Justice 2020". On Saturday, June 6, 2020 a Prayer Walk for Social Justice was held to promote prayer, social justice and unity. Photographer, Charles Ru n shares powerful images of the crowd which represented broad racial and religious backgrounds as they wound their way peacefully through downtown Raleigh, holding homemade signs calling for racial justice. Through Feb. 4 - "Kim Fraser: Modern Millinery." Fraser, shares "I enjoy the meticulous quality of hand-stitching and make all of my hats by hand with the absolute best-quality materials I can nd. I love to mix vintage items with modern materials and a modern sensibility." Each one-of-a-kind hat crafted by Fraser is made from the sumptuous and sometimes rare materials of millinery – velvet felt, silk abaca straw cloth, vintage French silk velveteen, Bakelite buckles and buttons, ethically sourced feathers, and more. Kim blocks hats using her extensive collection of wooden hat blocks, some of which are 100 or more years old. Each hat has a thoroughly modern sensibility, however, and is meant to be worn by the stylish, individualistic, modern hat-wearer.

Through Mar. 4 - "Eric McRay: Mood & Music". McRay blends the verve, images and rhythms of the Bebop jazz age with the non-objective abstraction tradition of the New York School of the 1940s and 1950s. His paintings focus on subjective emotional expression with emphasis on spontaneous creative actions. McRay received a BFA degree at the Maryland Institute, College of Art, where he earned a four-year scholarship for his artistic talent. His work is included in the collections of North Carolina Central University Art Museum, SAS Institute, Duke University Medical Center, Duke Health Raleigh Hospital, NC State, UNC-Chapel Hill, and many private collections. Feb. 8 - Mar. 4 - "Darrell Stover: JAZZY NITE DAZE". A reception will be held on Feb. 24, from 6-8pm. Stover's photographs capture 48 hours of the jazz scene created by music intellectuals in the NC Triangle (Durham/Cary) one August in 2018. Feb. 8 - Mar. 4 - "Vince Pitelka: Recent Pottery Works". A reception will be held on Feb. 24, from 6-8pm. Pitelka makes functional slab-built stoneware pottery featuring relief texture and pattern applied with red clay stamps that he makes. The work is glazed with a broad palette of colorful food-safe glazes, and is soda-reduced to come-7, with mixed-media components added to some pieces after the ring. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-9:30pm; Fri., 10am-5pm; & Sat., 10am-1pm. (It is strongly advised that you call ahead about hours this space will be open.) Contact: 919/460-4963.

Town Hall Gallery, City of Cary Town Hall, 316 North Academy Street, Cary. Feb. 1 - Apr. 21 - "Dean Saults: Reset Exhibition". As an artist in a world where humans are bombarded with information and technology, I feel compelled to create works of art that embraces simplicity. Inspired by the elements of our ordinary lives, and the places these items t in modern culture, I break them down on canvas as minimalist and abstract representations of their discriminating parts, defining them atypically via re-ective visuals. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-5pm. Contact: 919/469-4061.

Chapel Hill - Carrboro

Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Through Feb. 12 - "Beyond Wood: Works From the Collection of Rhonda Morgan Wilkerson '86 (PHD). Since 2018, the Ackland has exhibited five long-term installations of works from Rhonda Wilkerson's distinguished collection of African art. These have focused on an individual artist, on types of objects, and on specific functions. This presentation takes a different approach by highlighting a variety of materials, ones that differ from the wood of masks and figurative sculptures, more conventional works of art that have long been favored in museum displays of the arts of Africa. In contrast, the objects in Beyond Wood are made with materials associated more with utilitarian uses: glass, metal, and clay. They include a diviner's beaded necklace of the Yoruba culture (present-day Nigeria), an ornamental knife of the Konda culture (present-day Democratic Republic of the Congo) and two terracotta portrait heads from the Akan culture (present-day Ghana). Through Mar. 12 - "Pleasures and Possibilities: Five Patrons of the Asian Art Collection". In 1982, the Ackland marked its newly energized ambition to build on earlier acquisitions and aim for a truly significant collection of Asian art, with a small exhibition. In the words of then director Evan Turner, the show was to give "an indication of the range of pleasures and possibilities attendant to the study of Far Eastern art". Separate sections of the installation focus on the benefactors Smith Freeman and Austin Scarlette, Jeffrey and Carol Horvitz, Gene and Susan Roberts, Richard D. Pardue, and the late Charles Millard. Through May 28 - "Ghost of a Dream: Aligned by the Sun (Through the Revolution)". In a time of travel bans, immigration debates, climate change, and a global pandemic, the artist team "Ghost of a Dream" has created their multi-faceted project "Aligned by the Sun" in an effort to bring hope to our collective experience and unify our fractured planet. To assemble the footage necessary for this endeavor, "Ghost of a Dream" has collaborated with artists in over 220 nations by asking them to capture a short video of the sunset. All but seven of the 195 countries recognized by the United Nations, as well as many non-UN nations and territories, are represented by these videos. These videos provide the source material for many iterations of the project, including large installations, video collages, and still-image compositions. Museum Store Gallery (Franklin and Columbia Street), Store hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5:30pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Museum Hours: Wed.-Sat., 1-5pm. Contact: 919/966-5736 or at (www.ackland.org).

Charlotte Area

Bechtler Museum of Modern Art, Levine Center for the Arts, 420 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Fourth-Floor Gallery, Through Feb. 26 - "Pop To Now: Warhol and His Legacy". Andy Warhol was an American artist, film director, producer, and the leading figure in the visual art movement known as Pop Art. His works explore the relationship between artistic expression, advertising, and celebrity culture of the 1960s and 1970s and span a variety of media, including painting, silkscreen, photography, film, and sculpture. Warhol (1928-1987) inspired a host of contemporaries; among the most famous of them were Jean-Michel Basquiat (1960-1988) and Keith Haring (1958-1990). Together, these artists have inspired generations of emerging artists to push the boundaries of art. The exhibition, developed in partnership with Aktion Art, features select works by Warhol, Basquiat and Haring and follows their influence on pop culture, music, fashion, and art through a mix of works on canvas, as well as unique objects and memorabilia from the heady years of the Pop Art movement to today's cultural landscape of NFTs (non-fungible tokens), digital and data-driven art. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miró, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon., Wed.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Sun. noon-5pm; and open until 9pm the 1st. and 3rd. Fri. of each month. Contact: 704/353-9200 or at (www.bechtler.org).

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, Levine Center for the Arts, 551 S. Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Mar. 12 - "Men of Change: Power. Triumph. Truth." The Harvey B. Gantt Center and Levine Museum of the New South are proud to collaborate and bring the dynamic exhibition "Men of Change: Power. Triumph. Truth." to our Charlotte community. This exhibition profiles the revolutionary men—including Muhammad Ali, James Baldwin, Ta-Nehisi Coates, W.E.B DuBois, and Kendrick Lamar—whose journeys have altered the history and culture of the country. The achievements of the men are woven within the legacy and traditions of the African American journey—achievements of excellence in spite of society's barriers. Twenty-five contemporary artists were invited to reflect and celebrate the significance of these ground-breaking individuals through their own creative vision.

These works of art serve as counterpoint to the sumptuously backlit photographs and inspiring quotes, and together honor the truth of the African American experience in history and today. Ongoing - Featuring selections from the John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art, one of the nation's most important and comprehensive collections of African-American art. Hours: Thur. - Sat., noon-6pm & Sun., noon-6pm. Contact: 704/547-3700 or at (www.ganttcenter.org).

Davidson College, Belk Visual Arts Center, 315 North Main and Griffith Streets, Davidson. Van Every & Smith Galleries, Through Mar. 26 - "Jacolby Satterwhite: Finding Home Again". A reception will be held on Feb. 9, from 6:30-8pm, with an Artist Talk at 7pm. Jacolby Satterwhite (American, b. 1986) creates immersive installations, digital media, and virtual reality works centered around labor, consumption, sex, and fantasy. His animations are the result of explorations in drawing, performance, painting, sculpture, photography, writing, and sound. He combines real and imagined objects, people, places, and personal mythologies, anecdotes, and experiences to create epic new worlds, where the artist can be seen dancing and interacting with avatars of friends and family members. "Finding Home Again" focuses on Satterwhite's digital animated series, Birds in Paradise, which features a mythological, queer universe inspired by pop culture, African folklore, ritual, video games, and personal narratives. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-5pm and Sat. & Sun., noon-4pm. Contact: 704/894-2519 or at (www.davidsoncollegeartgalleries.org).

Elizabeth Ross Gallery, Central Piedmont's, Central Campus, Overcash Performing Arts Center, Elizabeth Avenue and Kings Dr., Charlotte. Through Mar. 2 - "Weaving," featuring a group show featuring works by artists Blanca La Cortiglia, Byrona Tensasca, Natacha Sochat, Keudis Sanchez and Irlanda Ruiz. An Artist Lecture will be held on Feb. 22, at 3:30pm, in Overcash Center, 2nd Floor, Tate Hall. Reception to immediately follow. "Weaving" artfully brings together a group of five talented artists with Latinx and Indigenous roots. Through a multi-disciplinary approach, each artist takes their cue from the time-honored tradition of weaving, to create artwork addressing each artist's powerful cultural heritage. "The collective work is an expression to honor our ancestors and the rich history of weaving both in the actual technique that creates wearable fabrics or functional baskets, which have provided essential survival to many cultures, but also the intangible metaphors in its use as a word."

The conversations created through the artwork endeavor to open a positive space for cross-cultural sharing and reverse an ancient practice responsible for artistic expression, feeding families and empowering communities. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-4pm or by appt. Contact: Follow us on Instagram and Facebook at Central Piedmont Arts or call Amelia Zytka, Senior Art Gallery Coordinator at 704/330-6847 or visit (http://blogs.cpc.edu/cpcartgalleries/).

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, Levine Center for the Arts, 551 S. Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Mar. 12 - "Men of Change: Power. Triumph. Truth." The Harvey B. Gantt Center and Levine Museum of the New South are proud to collaborate and bring the dynamic exhibition "Men of Change: Power. Triumph. Truth." to our Charlotte community. This exhibition profiles the revolutionary men—including Muhammad Ali, James Baldwin, Ta-Nehisi Coates, W.E.B DuBois, and Kendrick Lamar—whose journeys have altered the history and culture of the country. The achievements of the men are woven within the legacy and traditions of the African American journey—achievements of excellence in spite of society's barriers. Twenty-five contemporary artists were invited to reflect and celebrate the significance of these ground-breaking individuals through their own creative vision. These works of art serve as counterpoint to the sumptuously backlit photographs and inspiring quotes, and together honor the truth of the African American experience in history and today. Ongoing - Featuring selections from the John & Vivian Hewitt Collection of African-American Art, one of the nation's most important and comprehensive collections of African-American art. Hours: Thur. - Sat., noon-6pm & Sun., noon-6pm. Contact: 704/547-3700 or at (www.ganttcenter.org).

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Ongoing - "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". From crocks, jars, and jugs to pitchers, candleholders, and vases, "turning pots" is one of the oldest and richest craft traditions in North Carolina. For more than 200 years, members of the Cole family have been potters in central North Carolina — Randolph, Moore, Lee, and Montgomery counties. Six generations of Coles, and no fewer than 18 individuals, are represented in The Mint Museum's permanent collection. More than 60 highlights of their wares are included in the installation "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". One reason for its long-term success is that making pottery has so often been a family tradition in the state. Fathers taught the art of forming, glazing, and firing clay objects to their sons, and in later generations also to daughters, who in turn taught their children, and so on through the decades. These family dynasties not only helped to keep the potting craft alive, but ensured continuity in techniques and craftsmanship, as well as introduced artistic innovations in succeeding generations. "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters" presents a visual history of "turned pots" and the family that helped turn North Carolina into one of America's centers for handmade, traditional pottery. Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainger Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainger, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kajo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic works. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Feb. 11 - May 21 - "Picasso Landscapes: Out of Bounds". This is the first museum exhibition to explore Pablo Picasso's deep engagement with landscape subjects and his expansive approach to this traditional genre. Through a selection of more than 40 works spanning Picasso's full career, Picasso Landscapes: Out of Bounds, organized by American Federation of the Arts, is the first of only two venues in the United States — and the only venue on the East Coast — to feature this exceptional exhibition filled with works from private collections and international museums together. The dynamic grouping of works in the exhibition offers visitors an unparalleled window into the artist's creative process, from his earliest days in art school (1896 when then artist was just 15 years old) to months before his passing in 1973. Feb. 11 - May 21 - "Bearden/Picasso: Rhythms and Reverberations". This exhibition examines the impact of Pablo Picasso's rich artistic practice on Romare Bearden and his work. The exhibition is divided into four sections: Bulls & Bullfights; Music & Rhythm; Doors & Windows; and Line & Color. Each section will feature works by Pablo Picasso and Romare Bearden. While various aspects of Bearden's engagement with Picasso and Cubism have been occasionally explored, this is the first museum exhibition organized to explore the parallels between the artists. The works in the exhibition are drawn from the Mint's deep holdings of Bearden's art, as well as from both private and museum collections. Through Mar. 31 - "Rendezvous With Rothko". For the first time in its 85-year history, The Mint Museum has not one, but two, Mark Rothko paintings on view. Through a long-term loan with the National Gallery of Art in Washington, DC, two paintings by the Abstract Expressionist painter Mark Rothko are on view in the Modern Contemporary galleries at Mint Museum Uptown. The two works — "No. 17 [or] No. 15" and "Untitled 1951" — are the only paintings by Rothko currently on view in North Carolina. Through July 2 - "Fashion Reimagined: Themes & Variations 1760 – Now". In celebration of the 50th anniversary of the fashion collection's founding in 1972 by the Mint Museum Auxiliary, Fashion Reimagined features 50 outstanding examples of fashionable dress drawn entirely from the permanent collection of The Mint Museum. Encompassing a wide range of attire, the exhibition includes men's and women's fashions from 1760 to 2022 and is divided into three thematic sections: minimalism, pattern and decoration, and the body reimagined. The exhibition offers a fascinating look at innovative contemporary dress and the persistence of historic and cultural attitudes towards silhouettes, surface design, and corporeal beauty. Craft + Design Galleries, Ongoing - "Craft in the Laboratory: The Science of Making Things," is the first installation in the Southeast to explore how craft artists and designers use science and math concepts when creating works of art. Presented by Müller Corporation, Craft in the Laboratory also celebrates a reinstatement of the Mint's Craft + Design Galleries—the first since 2010. Co-curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of Craft, Design, and Fashion Annie Carlano and Assistant Curator for Craft, Design, and Fashion Rebecca Elliot, "Craft in the Laboratory" includes 100 works from the Mint's collection that are made from precious metals, wood, steel, polymers, and even agricultural waste, that emphasize the preciseness of science used to craft works of art. Made by nationally and internationally renowned artists, the objects are organized by material and subject throughout the galleries. Now - The Mint Museum's new four-story installation "Foragers" offers a transcendent experience while celebrating the tradition of women as makers and providers. Unlike anything ever seen at The Mint Museum before, Brooklyn-based artist Summer Wheat's "Foragers" is a monumental piece of public work of art spanning 96 windows, four stories, and 3,720 square feet at Mint Museum Uptown's Robert Hayward Morrison Atrium. The myriad of vibrant panels that give the illusion of stained glass and celebrates the tradition of women as makers and providers. "Foragers" is part of a larger exhibition "In Vivid Color," which brings together four innovative contemporary artists—Wheat, Gisela Colon, Spencer Finch, and Jennifer Steinkamp—who create works celebrating the power of color and its ability to permeate the space around us. Their work is juxtaposed with a selection of paintings and works on paper, drawn primarily from The Mint Museum's permanent collection, which showcase artists' more traditional exploration of color. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown houses the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. The building also includes a café, a Family Gallery, painting and ceramics studios, classrooms, a 240-seat auditorium, a Special Events Pavilion with outdoor terrace, and an expanded Museum Shop specializing in crafts of the Carolinas. Admission: Yes. Hours: Wed., 11am-9pm (free admission 5-9pm); Thur.-Sat., 11am-6pm; & Sun., 1-5pm. Now Fri. till 9pm. Contact: 704/337-2000 or at (www.mintmuseum.org).

Pauline Dove Art Gallery, Central Piedmont Community College, located inside the college's new Parr Center, Charlotte. Through Mar. 2 - "In Situ In Flux," featuring works by Tom Delaney. Inspired by the threatened and disappearing environment of the coastal dune lakes in the Florida Panhandle, Tom Delaney brings us a multi-media exhibition referencing the flora and fauna of the area. Through the artistic approach of photography, painting and sculpture, Delaney brings awareness to an environment under serious ecological threat. This area of the coastal dunes is one where freshwater and saltwater environments exist, in some cases, only yards apart, occasionally mixing together. As a result, several unique species evolved in this area and exist in a state of fragility. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-4pm or by appt. Projective Eye Gallery, UNC-Charlotte Center City Building, 320 E. 9th Street, Uptown Charlotte. Through Feb. 17 - "Sensation Approaching Naming," featuring work by Walter Jule. Alberta, Canada-based printmaker Walter Jule has earned numerous accolades for his unique creative approaches and his impact as a professor. His highly original, rigorous studio practice has laid the foundation for a lifetime of accomplishments and his work can be found in over 60 major public collections worldwide. He has been described as "the central figure in the Edmonton school of printmaking." Inspired by centuries of Japanese printmaking techniques, Jule's works are both poetic and visually arresting. They evoke a meditative calm that is only broken by the viewer's curiosity for his creative process. Jule received degrees in Interior Design and Printmaking from the University of Washington (Seattle) and studied Art History in Florence, Italy with the University of Arizona. He helped establish Canada's first printmaking master's program at the University of Alberta, where he retired as Professor Emeritus in 2006. In 2019, Jule was honored as a Distinguished Artist by The Lieutenant Governor of Alberta Arts Awards Foundation. "Sensation Approaching Naming" will be a mini-retrospective covering nearly 50 years of work by Walter Jule. Hours: Mon.-Sun., 9am-5pm. Endia Beal, "Office Scene", 2012. Color video with sound, 3 min. 30 sec. Courtesy of the artist. © Endia Beal

Weatherspoon Art Museum, University of North Carolina - Greensboro, Cone Building, Tate and Spring Garden Streets, Greensboro. Gallery 6, Through May 13 - "Endia Beal - Corporate Disclosure". Working from her own and others' personal stories, artist Endia Beal highlights the realities and challenges faced by Black women in corporate workspaces. With equal parts empathy and biting critique, she explores how gender, race, and conventional notions of professionalism are often used - intentionally or not - against women of color. In the videos that comprise this exhibition, Beal deploys a variety of artistic strategies blending documentation and performance. Organized by Dr. Emily Stamey, curator and head of exhibitions, and presented in collaboration with the UNGC School of Art as part of its Falk Visiting Artist program. The Gregory D. Ivy and Weatherspoon Guild Galleries, Through May 13 - "To Serve the People: Prints from Mexico's Taller de Gráfica Popular". In 1937, this belief inspired the foundation of the Taller de Gráfica Popular (the People's Print Workshop), commonly known as the TGP, in Mexico City. Committed to the progressive idealism of the Mexican Revolution, the artists of the TGP worked together to create prints, posters, flyers, and other works on paper aimed at educating the widest possible audience about the social issues of their day. Fundamental to their artistic production was a democratic group process of collective critiques and negotiated decision making. That commitment to shared learning and leadership has likewise fueled the production of this exhibition. In fall 2022, students in two UNGC art history courses came together to study the history and output of the TGP, as well as collaboratively curate this installation. The Bob & Lissa Shelley McDowell Gallery, Through Apr. 8 - "Gilded: Contemporary Artists Explore Value and Worth". Gilded features the work of Radcliffe Bailey, Larissa Bates, William Cordova, Angela Fraleigh, Gajin Fujita, Nicholas Galanin, Liz Glynn, Shan Goshorn, Sherin Guirguis, Titus Kaphar, Hung Liu, James Nares, Ronny Quevedo, Shinji Turner-Yamamoto, Danh Vo, Stacy Lynn Waddell, and Summer Wheat. Weatherspoon Atrium Mural, Ongoing - "Pause and Breathe, We Got This," a mural by Sheena Rose. A homecoming in is the works. The Weatherspoon is excited to announce its commission of a major new artwork by artist Sheena Rose, MFA '16. A multidisciplinary artist working in animation, drawing, painting, and performance, Rose's vibrant and energetic work is at once anchored in her Caribbean heritage and expansive in its explorations of culture and human experience. Lobbies - Featuring works of art complementing current gallery exhibitions which are rotated in the atrium and public areas throughout both floors of the gallery. Tom Otterness' site-specific work, "The Frieze" is permanently installed in the atrium. Sculpture courtyard - Featuring selections of American sculpture from 1900 to the present from the Weatherspoon Collection and on loan works from contemporary artists. Works by Adriana Ameigh

tion explores the significance of materials and their seemingly magical transformation through the artistic process. Much like alchemy, materials and ideas can be combined, reinvented, and translated to create something new. Wet pigments become finished paintings, and soft clay solidifies into sculptural vessels - their emerging shapes, colors and textures convey the stories embedded in the work. Ongoing - The Diamante Arts & Cultural Center is a non-profit (501c3), a community grounded, arts and culture organization dedicated to the preservation, development, and promotion of the culture, heritage, and artistic expressions of the diverse Latino/Hispanic population in North Carolina. Contact: 919/760-8600 or at (https://www.meredith.edu/gallery).

Gregg Museum of Art & Design, The Historic Chancellor's Residence, NC State University, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, Raleigh. Black/Sanderson Gallery, Through July 23 - "True Likeness," presents an exhibition of contemporary portraits from diverse makers in a variety of media including video, photography, painting, collage, installation, sculpture, printmaking, and drawing. Artists, some familiar, others more on the fringe of the art world, hail from all over the United States. Their own identities, and those presented through their works, provide a snapshot of who we are as a country. As the exhibition took shape over the last few years, as overt and coded hate speech became congruent with one of the most divisive elections of our time, it became apparent that highlighting and celebrating diversity was paramount. Adams and Woodson Galleries, Feb. 2 - Oct. 7 - "This is Not: Aldwyth in Retrospect," curated by Mark Sloan, celebrates the life and work of the one-name artist, Aldwyth. Now approaching eighty-eight, the artist surveys the constellation of influences that have brought her this far. Aldwyth has lived and worked in the same octagonal studio/home at the edge of a salt marsh on a small island adjacent to Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, since 1980. For more than six decades, she has been producing significant work in relative seclusion from the larger art world. This retrospective takes measure of her entire artistic output from 1953 to present, highlighting the points at which her fascinations have evolved into obsessions. It also traces the connections between her personal biography and the content of her work.

Historic Residence, Ongoing - One of NC State University's most historic buildings is now the permanent home of the Gregg Museum of Art & Design. The Historic Chancellor's Residence, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, along with a 15,000 sq. ft. addition, increases the museum's visibility while significantly adding to its exhibition and programming space. Hours: The Gregg Museum is suspending the need for timed entry reservations. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm. The Gregg does ask that larger groups (15+) call ahead at (919) 515-3503, to avoid crowding in the galleries. Contact: Zoe Starling, Curator of Education at 919/513-7244 or at (https://gregg.arts.ncsu.edu/).

North Carolina Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. Through Feb. 26 - "Pow-ers Concealed: Egúngúns from Africa and America," showcases egúngúns, created with layers of sumptuous, paneled fabrics sourced locally and globally, that typically appear at annual festivals to honor the past and seek blessings for the future. The exhibition will feature a Nigerian Yorùbá ensemble from the 1930s in the NCMA's collection alongside a newly commissioned egúngún titled Baba Eleko and presented by Babatundé Akinsegun, Alagba, or hereditary chief of egúngún at Oyotúnjí Village in South Carolina. East Building, Level B, Joyce W. Pope Gallery, Through Feb. 5 - "Start Talking: Fischer/Shull Collection of Contemporary Art." This exhibition features selected pieces from an exceptional promised gift to the NCMA from the collection of Hedy Fischer and Randy Shull. Amassed over the past three decades and still ongoing, the collection includes seminal works by Abraham Cruzvillegas, Vanessa German, Trenton Doyle Hancock, Graciela Iturbide, Pope L., Tina Modotti, Gabriel Rico, Alison Saar, Hank Willis Thomas, Nari Ward, and many others. This transformative gift will significantly expand the scope of the People's Collection. It will augment works by artists currently in the collection and add works by artists previously not represented, enabling the Museum to present a comprehensive picture of the many major movements and artists in contemporary art. Ann and Jim Goodnight Museum Park, Through Mar., 31 - "Fall 2022 Billboards: Ralph Burns". Burns surveys the artist's distinguished black-and-white documentary style. These photographs capture the intricacies of worship, ritual, and love through an impartial lens. As Burns states, he uses his camera as a tool "to try to understand." In one photo a penitent in Mexico carries the statue of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Ann and Jim Goodnight East Building, Level B, Video Gallery, Photography Gallery 1 (Julian T. Baker Jr. Gallery) and 2 (Allen G. Thomas Jr. Gallery), Through Feb. 12 - "Outlandish: Photographs by Ralph Burns I" Photographs from the Collection of Allen G. Thomas Jr. Using photography from the Museum's collection, this exhibition examines the peculiarity of human experience and expression. In one gallery a photo series by Asheville-based photographer Ralph Burns captures the intricacies of worship, ritual, and love. For decades he followed crowds of devout Elvis fans during their pilgrimages to Graceland. Burns's documentarian style demonstrates a deep understanding of humanness and emotional connection. Ongoing - "Break the Mold: New Takes on Traditional Art Making". The exhibit showcases contemporary artists who use traditional modes of art making and crafting to tackle timely subject matter. Innovative takes on embroidery, ceramics, quilting, furniture, interior design, and fashion accessories serve to explore diverse topics such as gender assumptions and inequalities, prison reform, racial justice, memory, and loss, as well as how objects transmit and transform social and cultural history. This show features 25 contemporary artists, including Sanford Biggers, Elizabeth Brim, Maria Britton, Julie Cockburn, Rodney McMillan, Rachel Megnines, Katy Mixon, Gabriel de la Mora, Yasumasa Morimura, Thomas Schmidt, Shinique Smith, and Do Ho Suh, whose artworks are displayed alongside some of their historical predecessors. Ongoing - Featuring 10 additional sculptures by the celebrated French artist Rodin on loan from Iris Cantor's private collection. Ongoing - "John James Audubon's The Birds of America". The state has owned this treasured volume since 1848, but it has never been exhibited. Ongoing - The North Carolina Museum of Art has an outstanding permanent collection of more than 5,000 objects spanning antiquity to the present day. On the occasion of the expansion, the Museum has acquired more than 100 new works of art. Representing commissions, gifts, and purchases, the new works encompass important and diverse examples of historic and contemporary art from around the world, and will be installed in the Museum's new building and the surrounding landscape. Highlights include a gift of 28 sculptures by Auguste Rodin, and work by such internationally acclaimed artists as Roxy Paine, Ursula von Rydingsvard, El Anatsui, Jaume Plensa, Jackie Ferrara, Ellsworth Kelly, and David Park, among others. Admission: Yes for some exhibits. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9am-5pm; Sun., 10am-5pm; & open until 9pm on Fri. Contact: 919/839-6262 or at (www.ncartmuseum.org).

Work by Warren Hicks

Upstairs Artspace, (Celebrating 40 Years) 49 South Trade Street, Tryon. Main Gallery, Through Mar. 10 - "Night Watch," featuring works by Vivian Liddell and Jeremy Phillips. A closing reception will be held on Mar. 10, from 4-6pm. Liddell's "Whispering Pines" animation is a playful and piquant look at male bonding and everyday rituals; the animation serves as a conceptual and physical springboard for her paintings and sculptures. Unspecified male figures with "heads" resembling football helmets and trucker caps cavort in beer-soaked revelry under cover of the night. The lushly painted surfaces and extra saturated lighting set the stage for these humorously discomfiting theatrics. Phillips has two series in the show: oil paintings of suburban nightscapes bathed in artificial light and collages of churches lit against black vinyl foreboding skies. Hidden narratives lurk in the shadows of these figureless spaces. The church facades glower out and force their presences in not necessarily welcome ways. Small Gallery, Through Mar. 10 - "Warren Hicks - BEGAT". A closing reception will be held on Mar. 10, from 4-6pm. Using humor to address his frustration with religious hypocrisy, Hicks removed all religious references from the Gospel of Matthew from the Christian Bible. Through 191 illustrations and the extremely redacted text, Hicks revealed a world filled with elves, cannibalism, UFOs, talking fruit, explosions, and more. The exhibition includes prints and 2-D paper sculptures based on his book. Downstairs Gallery, Through Mar 10 - "Upstairs' 5th Drawing Marathon". This invitation-only event brings artists together in the gallery's lower level for two days to draw. The synergy of

Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. Through May 28 - "Black Lives Do Matter at CAM". The Cameron Art Museum has partnered with the arts collective Eighteen Forward to present "Black Lives Do Matter at CAM," an eighteen-letter installation displayed on the museum grounds. The public is encouraged to view these eight-foot-high letters as they meander through CAM's outdoor space. The installation joins the museum's other outdoor works, including the recently opened PNC USCT Park featuring the Stephen Hayes designed sculpture Boundless, activating the museum's 9.4-acre grounds. Through Mar. 12 - "Promise," highlights promised gifts from the collections of Glen and Florence Hardyman and Andrew and Hathiya Hayes, as well as new acquisitions and other promised gifts to CAM's collection. Artists featured in this exhibition include Rick Beck, Lisa Clague, Christina Cordova, Jim Dine, Maud Gatewood, Susan Taylor Glasgow, Sol Lewitt, Juan Logan, Beverly McIver, Joan Miró, Robert Motherwell, Robert Rauschenberg, Frank Stella, Hiroshi Sueyoshi, and Steffan Thomas. Through Apr. 9 - "60+", an exhibition that explores the love of community and art that is the museum's legacy. In 1962, a group of citizens bound by their common love of art came together to start St. John's Museum of Art. Without regular city, state, or federal funding, the community created an art museum that has lasted for 60 years and is now the premiere art museum in eastern North Carolina and one of the most respected art museums in the state. Over six decades much has changed, but the community's passion for and commitment to visual art has not. The exhibition features work by artists at the very core of CAM's collection including: Mary Cassatt, Minnie Evans and Claude Howell and more. "60 +" features an entire room and more is filled by collector Louis Belden's unprecedented gift to the CAM featuring works by Helen Frankenthaler, David Hockney, Ellsworth Kelly, Roy Lichtenstein, Pablo Picasso and more. CAM all-time favorites Diane Landry's Flying School and Alonzo V. Wilson's costumes for HBO's "Treme" are part of this amazing exhibition. Ongoing - Cameron Art Museum presents the only sculpture park in the country created to honor the United States Colored Troops and their fight for freedom. The opening of PNC USCT Park marks the one-year anniversary of the unveiling of Boundless, the public sculpture by artist Stephen Hayes that commemorates the United States Colored Troops and the Battle of Forks Road. This park creates a gathering space for the more than 60,000 visitors from across the country who come to CAM each year and the 8,000 school children who visit the museum on field trips. PNC USCT Park will become a community space for gathering, field trips, classes, workshops, storytelling, live music and USCT living history events for years to come, in which the sculpture Boundless will be the centerpiece. Panceo Art Education Center, Exhibition Cases, Ongoing - View some of the Seagrave and contemporary pottery from the museum's permanent collection in the cases. Thomas Hart Benton (1889-1975) "Bootleggers", 1927. Egg tempera and oil on linen mounted on Masonite. Reynolda House Museum of American Art. Museum Purchase with funds provided by Barbara B. Millhouse. © 2022 T.H. and R.P. Benton Trusts / Licensed by Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York through the lives of Black Americans from the late eighteenth century to the present time. Using labor as a backdrop, Towns highlights the role African Americans have played in building the economy, and explores how their resilience, resistance, and perseverance have challenged the United States to truly embrace the tenets of its Declaration of Independence. Northeast Bedroom Gallery, Through May 28 - "Prohibition Days: The Conservation of Thomas Hart Benton's "Bootleggers"™. Like any organism or machine, works of art need to be maintained, protected from adverse conditions, and occasionally treated or repaired. The canvases of Thomas Hart Benton pose unique conservation challenges, because the artist often combined incompatible media, including egg tempera (in which pigment is mixed with egg yolks and water) and acrylic paint. With funding provided by the Bank of America's Art Conservation Project, "Bootleggers" was recently restored to the sharply faceted, glowing, gem-like glory of its original appearance when it was completed in 1927. Ongoing - Collection of 18th through 20th century art, sculpture, American art, and pottery. Admission: Yes, but free admission on Oct. 15 & Nov. 15. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 9:30am-4:30pm & Sun., 1:30-4:30pm. Contact: 336/725-5325 or at (https://reynolda.org).

"Daddy's Birthday" by Beverly McIver

Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, 750 Marguerite Drive, Winston-Salem. Main Gallery, Feb. 2 - June 18 - "Vitus Shell: 'Bout It 'Bout It, The Political Power of Just Being," an exhibition of portraits by mixed-media collage painter Vitus Shell. A reception will be held on Feb. 2 from 5-8pm. This exhibition is organized by the Hilliard Art Museum, Lafayette, Louisiana and curated by Benjamin M. Hickey, Curator of Exhibitions, Hilliard Art Museum, University of Louisiana at Lafayette. The exhibition is co-sponsored by Blanco Tackabery Attorneys and Counsellors at Law. Portraiture as a genre holds a grand position within the history of art and has for centuries been employed to glorify White monarchs, leaders, icons, and religious figures. Louisiana-based artist Vitus Shell creates portraits that challenge this tradition, while also sharing a concern for the historical representation of Black bodies. For example, the composition of his portraits includes faux gold gilding and oval or circular picture windows—stylistic trends often found in Byzantine and Renaissance portraiture to indicate power, status, and the eternal. Potter Gallery, Through Mar. 26 - "Beverly McIver: Full Circle," is an expansive survey of more than 50 works by the acclaimed North Carolina artist. The exhibition will show the diversity of the artist's thematic approach to painting over 25 years. From early self-portraits in clown makeup to more recent works featuring portraits of others and her own reflections on the COVID-19 pandemic, Full Circle illuminates the arc of McIver's artistic career while also touching on her personal journey. Her self-portraits explore expressions of individuality, stereotypes, and ways of masking identity, while portraits of family members provide glimpses of intimate moments, in good times as well as in illness and death. The exhibition includes McIver's portraits of other artists and notable figures, recent work resulting from a year in Rome with American Academy's Rome Prize, and new work in which McIver explores the juxtaposition of color, pattern, and the human figure. Overlook Gallery, Through Aug. 27 - "Lauren Strohacker: Old Red, I Know Where Thou Dwellest," a site-specific multimedia exhibition exploring the ongoing struggle for survival of red wolves. The three-part exhibition is comprised of an installed multi-sensory experience in SECCA's Overlook Gallery, an outdoor sound installation on SECCA's grounds, and a series of free projection-based events occurring at SECCA and sites across Winston-Salem. Admission is free, with a suggested $10 donation. Red wolves are facing a second extinction in the wild. The last known group of wild individuals are known to roam in and around the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in eastern North Carolina. For red wolves, the state of North Carolina is both haunted and hallowed. The first court-recorded wolf bounties began in the state in 1768. Just over two centuries later, North Carolina became the first state to revive the species from wild extinction when two breeding pairs of red wolves were released into the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in 1987. This dichotomy of eradication, restoration, and the ongoing struggle of the species is the inspiration for this exhibition. Ongoing - Founded in 1956, the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art offers a front-row seat to the art of our time. Through visual art exhibitions, education, music, film, dance and theater, SECCA starts conversations that engage diverse communities and perspectives. SECCA is an affiliate of the North Carolina Museum of Art and a division of the NC Department of Natural & Cultural Resources. SECCA receives operational funding from The Arts Council of Winston-Salem and Forsyth County. Additional funding is provided by the James G. Hanes Memorial Fund. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm, Thur. till 8pm; Sun., 1-5 pm, and closed Mon. & state holidays . Admission is free. Contact: 336/725-1904 or at (www.secca.org).

American Folk Art & Antiques, 64 Biltmore Ave., Asheville. Feb. 1 - 22 - "19th Annual Miniatures Show". A reception will be held on Feb. 3, from 5-8pm. In the depths of winter, American Folk will warm your soul with their 19th Annual Miniatures Show! Just in time for Valentine's Day, these small but mighty works make the perfect gift for that special someone in your life who loves art or has long admired the artists American Folk represents. There is much to love about a small work of art: often the smaller size requires more attention to detail and delicacy than larger pieces & as a result a palpable intimacy can be felt in the imagery and execution. A miniature painting tends to be quite affordable, so new collectors can purchase original art, and experienced collectors can find an exceptional piece to tuck into an established group. The artworks in this show are limited in size to 7 x 9 inches, with no restrictions on subject or spirit! Ongoing - Featuring antique folk art, functional and contemporary folk pottery, furniture and paintings. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-6pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 828/281-2134 or at (www.amerfolk.com).

Work by Gale Smith

New Location Art In Bloom Gallery, 6866 Main Street, Mayfaire Town Center, Wilmington. Through Feb. 26 - "Monochrome Moments: A Photographic Glimpse into Nature," featuring works by Tim Smith. "Smith's images, shown here in black/white, illustrate a keen interest in light and composition. His visual choice is often one of quiet reflection and introspection. He is skilled enough to give the viewer those same emotions. His talents have convinced local and regional photo editors as well as the movie industry to use his photographs on their magazine covers, TV shows and movies, often as light-hearted and beautiful scenes," said Jerry Blow, AIAP, Raleigh, NC. Through Feb. 26 - "Bold and Bright: New Work by Mark Gansor & Gale Smith." Gansor is a landscape painter using impasto surfaces to capture fleeting moments caught in the light. His works are playful and full of color! Complimenting his paintings are the sculptural metal works by, mixed media artist, Gale Smith. Smith's work in this exhibit is about the transformation of sheets of copper into complex assemblages that create a distinctive visual impact while allowing the intrinsic beauty of the metal to shine through. Vibrant colours dance across the copper pieces and create abstract geometrical shapes. These intricate works contain rich textures and reveal extraordinary manifestations of colour and formations. Ongoing - The gallery presents original art by national and local artists. Different artists are featured every 6 weeks along with an ongoing display of new art from the gallery's 30 core artists at (<https://aibgallery.com/artists/>). Online and in the gallery, visitors will find a mixture of traditional and contemporary paintings, sculpture, jewelry, ceramics, glass, fabric, photography, and mixed media. So you're the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you're wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you're the owner of a commercial art gallery and you've never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don't see your exhibits included. My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, "Why that is the case?" If you're not included - it's your fault. Send your info about exhibits to "Carolina Arts" by e-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com). Our deadline is the 24th of the month "prior" to the month your exhibit starts.
