Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte, NC, Offers Works by Seth Rouser

Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte, NC, is presenting Seth Rouser: Hands Held to Empyrean, on view in the CPCC Ross Gallery, through Oct. 9, 2014. A reception will be held on Sept. 4, from 5-7pm. An artist's lecture will be offered on Sept. 18, at 2pm in Tate Hall.

Rouser's paintings depict cloudscapes overlaid with gestural marks and emotive color. These paintings are a manifestation of the artist's thoughts on time, change and the human experience. Rouser uses his clouds to symbolize and confront existential issues and the significance of being.

"I am intrigued by the inherent ability of clouds to represent constant change, while simultaneously evoking a sense of timelessness," said Rouser. "A cloud accumulates, dissipates and is moved by unseen forces, much like a human life. In viewing clouds, one can read them as tranquil or tumultuous, depending on their qualities. I find this constant flux of the sky parallel to the human experience. The mind and the body are always changing and yet there is a sense of a continuous self, or being."

Rouser is an Assistant Professor of Fine Arts in Foundations at Winthrop University and teaches design, drawing, painting and illustration. He received an Partner TreesCharlotte is a public/private collaborative dedicated to planting 15,000 trees annually, primarily through volunteer efforts, with a goal of achieving 50% tree canopy coverage by 2050. The collaborative also educates Charlotte's residents on the importance of the canopy and ways to plant and preserve trees. Among the myriad benefits, trees clean our air, ease storm water run-off, reduce our energy usage, cool our streets, parks, and homes, increase property values, and provide natural beauty that is the envy of cities across the world.

Tree Party plans to support TreesCharlotte's efforts through a Giving Tree of 6"x6" artworks gifted by artists nationwide and sold to the public for $25 each. Ciel will donate 100% of sales proceeds from the Giving Tree to TreesCharlotte, as well as 100% of donations received during the September run of Tree Party.

"TreesCharlotte is grateful for Ciel Gallery's generous support of our efforts to preserve and enhance Charlotte's tree canopy," says Director Dave Cable. "With the Tree Party initiative, Ciel Gallery has set the stage to raise awareness of, and capital for, Charlotte's extraordinary urban forest — what a wonderful gift to our community and to future generations!"

Also planned for Sept. 5 is a book signing by Charlotte author Maggie Barker Booth, featuring her book Treasure in the City, a collection of photographs and history of ten "treasure trees" around the city of Charlotte. The book signing will take place during Friday's reception.

Ciel Gallery is a Fine Art Collective of 27 local artists working in a wide variety of media. In addition to three gallery spaces, Ciel hosts weekly classes for all ages, open studio, art retreats, and special events.
